100 Firemen Battle Blaze; 3 Injured

$1 Million Fire Rips Plant

by TOM JACHIMIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

FIREMEN USED foam in an attempt to quell the blaze which also caused $20,000 damage to a vacant building to the north.

They Geared For Disaster

by WANDALYN RICE

The pillar of black smoke was barely visible on the horizon when the staff of Alexian Brothers Medical Center began preparing for the disaster that never came.

The hospital's disaster plan went into action as soon as word came of the 10 a.m. explosion at Specialty Paint Company. The physical therapy room at the hospital was prepared to receive overflow patients, doctors were called from the floors and placed on alert and everyone waited.

"We can handle the patients on a priority basis and take the most badly injured first," public relations director Robin Leach said. "We're lucky because this early in the morning the doctors are still on their rounds and there are plenty of them in the hospital."

Miss Leach had just arrived back at the hospital from Chicago. Driving on the tollway she had seen the column of smoke and knew it would be a day for action.

"I was coming down the tollway and I was astonished at the reaction of the other drivers to the smoke," she said. "No one paid any attention."

Phones rang constantly in the public relations office as reporters from all the newspapers, radio and television stations called for information. "I'm sorry but we don't know anything yet. No one has come in. We think the flames may be so intense emergency vehicles can't get in," Miss Leach's assistant, Roxanne Foster, told them.

The chief surgeon in the emergency room was in contact with the firemen on the scene. "He said they told him the whole building was a ball of flames and there was no hope anyone inside would get out," Miss Leach said. She signed softly and her voice trailed off. "I don't know if they'd bring the DOA's here . . ."

Word filtered in slowly and doctors and nurses took care of the small boy who had fallen down the stairs, the elderly man who wanted to see a doctor and the other, routine emergencies that make up the hospital's day.

Finally word came from the Elk Grove Village Police Department that there had been only three injuries and all other employees were accounted for.

The tension eased, although the emergency room remained ready for firemen overcome by smoke or otherwise injured.

Miss Leach recalled the last time the disaster plan had gone into effect was when a group of children were overcome by chlorine gas at Kopp Pool in Mount Prospect.

"We have been very lucky," she said. "That was the last time we had anything approaching a disaster."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182 million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

The Market

Stocks fell across a broad front in moderate trading. Market averages finished in reverse gear for the 11th straight session and analysts said, "The worst part is there is no sign of a selling climax." The Dow Jones average had a loss of 8.98 at 838.38. Declines outnumbered advances 1,109 to 318 on the New York Exchange. Prices declined in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Prelude To Major Fire

'It Was Like A Big Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man, standing 20 feet away at the time, described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off . . . pow . . . there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like, only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger.

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety-split out the front door.

"Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they was in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed.

One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second-and third-degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed.

Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS . . . the building is full of every flammable chemical there is . . . there might be more explosions . . . we haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

The Salvation Army was at the fire dispensing coffee and rolls.

"I can't believe it . . . I just can't believe it," said one woman, as she watched the fire.

Work at surrounding plants came to a standstill as one by one curious onlookers, nearby workers and others formed crowds to see the big fire. One couple even came carrying a baby just a few weeks old and swaddled in blankets to protect him from the smoke.

IN A FEW HOURS, the fire spent itself and was under control. Firemen stayed on the scene to spray the smoldering building with water, just to be sure.

None of the nearby buildings caught fire, but at least one sustained some smoke damage.

And by 1 p.m., the paint factory was just ruins, smoking testimony of what had happened.

PTAs Urge 'Pennies For Halloween'

At least two PTAs in Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 are sponsoring "Pennies for Halloween."

The program, sponsored by the national PTA organization, asks that pennies be given children for trick-or-treat rather than candy. The program is designed to protect children from receiving candy or other treats that might contain harmful objects.

The PTA boards of Albert Einstein School in Des Plaines and Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village are sponsoring the program.

They recommend that parents also discard any candy their children might receive.

The campaign is not connected with UNICEF, the United Nations program in which children collect money for the UN children's fund.

Mutual Aid Plan Proved Success

Even before he reached the scene of yesterday's fire at the Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village, Allen Hulett, the fire chief there, notified other fire departments that extra help would be needed.

Hulett's call set into motion a pre-arranged plan under which other area fire departments knew immediately what piece of equipment would be needed. Too, they knew immediately whether to send their equipment to the scene of the blaze or to another station for backup service.

Among other things Hulett's call did the following: It brought a ladder truck to the fire from Mount Prospect. It resulted in the Des Plaines Fire Department sending an ambulance to the fire.

An ambulance from the Hoffman Estates department was moved to an Elk Grove Village station for backup. A fire truck and ambulance from Schaumburg were sent to the fire.

THE MUTUAL AID plan used yesterday was first put into operation last January. Almost 20 Northwest suburban area departments participate in it.

The plan works like this: Each municipality is divided into several sections and each section has been assigned a specific box alarm number. At each department box alarm numbers are kept in a card file along with information on the location of a fire for each box alarm. Also listed is what equipment each town should send in the event of a fire in the specific box alarm location.

The purpose of the plan is to make it easier and quicker for a fire chief to get any additional fire fighting equipment he needs.

The plan has been used in connection with other fires this year. Only a few weeks ago, area departments held a practice session under the plan at Arlington Park Race Track.

Housing Unit Will Discuss 'Direction'

Members of the Elk Grove Village Housing Commission today will discuss the direction their group should take in the study of housing needs.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 901 Wellington. At its last meeting, members of the commission agreed members will present suggestions on what steps the commission should take at this meeting.

Alternatives facing the commission include making an immediate recommendation to the village board of trustees on low and moderate-income housing needs in the village.

Last week a report on a survey of employees in the industrial parks was presented to the commission.

The survey, in which 700 employees of firms in village industrial areas and municipal workers were interviewed, showed an estimated need for 1,055 low-income and 922 moderate-income units.

Under definitions in the survey low-income is $400 or less salary each month and moderate-income is $600 to $1,000 salary each month.

U.N. And Red China Flags To Be Burned

The flags of Communist China and the United Nations will be burned as part of a Reformation Sunday service at the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights Sunday.

According to an announcement from the church, the service will also include "the reading of a proclamation denouncing Richard Nixon, prayers, singing of hymns, special music and the preaching of the Holy Bible."

The announcement attacks the Chinese Communists, President Nixon's China policy and his support of the United Nations and suggests that Chiang Kai-shek's "well trained army be encouraged to invade mainland China."

The 90-minute service will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the church, 303 E. McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Thanksgiving Day At The Movies?

Elk Grove Village residents may be able to celebrate "Turkey Day" with a movie.

Walter Pancoe, developer of the Elk Grove Cinema under construction in the Grove Shopping Center, said yesterday plans are to open the theater sometime during Thanksgiving weekend.

"We don't know yet whether it will be the day before Thanksgiving, the day after, or Thanksgiving Day," he said.

The theater, which will seat 500 persons, is part of the Jerry Lewis Cinemas and will specialize in family-style films, Pancoe said. He added it will frequently hold matinees for children.

Pancoe indicated more plans for the opening of the theater will be ready soon.

Elk Grove Library Slates Kids' Films

The Elk Grove Village Public Library has scheduled a film program for children four years of age and older next Tuesday between 10 and 10:30 a.m.

Films to be shown are, "How the Elephant Got His Trunk," — Rudyard Kipling's "Just So" Story; "Scruffy," adventures of a kitten, squirrel, rabbit and a porcupine who run away from home; and, "The Hamster from Hamsterdam."

The program is free and will be held in the lower level of the library, 101 Kennedy Blvd.

Second Family Life Lecture Tomorrow

Rev. John Gorman

"Will the Whole Child Please Grow Up?" will be the topic of the second lecture today on family life sponsored by St. Julian Eymard Catholic Church

Rev. John Gorman, registered psychologist and president of St. Mary of the Lake Seminary in Mundelein, will speak at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave., Elk Grove Village.

The public is invited. The church's education committee is sponsoring the series on "Family Life: Challenge of the '70's."

Woodfield Park Layout Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons' planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations, financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm, and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield area shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall site, in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site, in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza, to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center, now under construction. A Jewel-Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated. From Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

velopment is a proposed multi-family residential complex, to include 2,500 units of apartments, townhouses or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

Moving back left, fronting Meacham Road, a sports complex with a possible sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams, but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

Benefit Will Be Allowed

A benefit night sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Newcomers Club will be held Nov. 13 without interruption by local police, even though it may be illegal, according to Police Chief Harry Jenkins.

Jenkins said the policy of the village will be to allow the event, though he said he could not speak for the Cook County Sheriff's Police and state police.

The village board voted Tuesday to allow the club to put up signs advertising the event, which will be held at the Holiday Inn, and in essence gave approval for the affair.

When asked Tuesday by Trustee George Spees if the affair was legal, Jenkins said it was not. He gave no further explanation.

Contacted yesterday, Jenkins said that in the state's attorney's opinion such benefits, called "Las Vegas Nights," are "a form of gambling."

Persons attending the events buy tickets and receive play money with which they participate in games. Jenkins said the prizes given usually are worth more than the admission fee and the state's attorney's office construes that as gambling.

PROCEEDS of the Nov. 13 event will be used for charity, said Mrs. Mary Lamb, chairman of the affair for the Newcomers Club.

Mrs. Lamb said she had received the OK from a sergeant at the police department to hold the event four or five months ago.

She added that at one time when the event was to be held at the Salt Creek Country Club in DuPage County, the state's attorney's office there said it would be all right as long as the prizes were not cash.

"This is our major fund-raising event of the year," Mrs. Lamb said.

Jenkins added he has never known such a benefit to be raided by police.

However, in Wood Dale, just south of Elk Grove Village, police in that suburb raided a "Las Vegas Night" a few years ago.

Fireman Hurt Oct. 5 Leaves Intensive Care

Randall Scott, the Elk Grove Village fireman injured Oct. 5, was released from the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday and is now in a private room at the hospital.

Scott is still listed in fair condition and has shown slow but steady improvement, according to Robin Leach, public relations director for the hospital. She said he will not be allowed any visitors except for the immediate family.

Scott suffered serious head injuries when he was thrown from a fire truck which collided with a semi-trailer at Busse Road and Greenleaf Avenue in the village. He has been in intensive care since the accident and was listed in serious condition until last week.

Talk is developing in Congress of a compromise on moves to reduce U.S. contributions to the United Nations, U.S. Rep. Harold Collier, R-10th, reported yesterday.

Collier said a compromise figure of a 25 per cent reduction in the U.S. share is being discussed on Capitol Hill. U.S. contributions are variously estimated from 33 to 40 per cent of the total U.S. budget.

"I personally do not believe a 25 per cent reduction would be adequate," said Collier. Even before the UN vote to expel the Nationalist Chinese government, Collier had favored reducing U.S. expenditures for the UN to a ratio equal to its proportionate population with the total population of member nations.

Collier said the U.S. pays 31.9 per cent of the general operating budget of the UN and 38.7 per cent of the expense of maintaining a peacekeeping force. With various expenditures to specialized agencies of the UN, "it is safe to say that we pay at least 33 per cent," said Collier.

He added that those figures do not take into account the $200 million bond issue approved by Congress several years ago to rescue the bankrupt fund for the peacekeeping force.

McHenry and Knox counties in 1970. Backing Simon for slating by the state central committee are Lake County Clerk Grace Mary Stern, McHenry County Sheriff Art Tyrrell, and County Clerk Yvonne O'Brien and Sheriff Rayder L. Peterson of Knox County.

State Sen. John A. Graham

Tyrrell was the first Democrat to carry McHenry County since the Civil War. No Democrat had been elected in Lake County since 1934, before the election of Mrs. Stern.

In Knox County, the election of Mrs. O'Brien and Peterson marked the first time in 110 years that more than one Democratic candidate carried the county.

THREE SPEAKERS will be featured at a day-long seminar sponsored by the 13th Congressional District Democratic Women, according to Mrs. John Scollay of Palatine, vice president for political action.

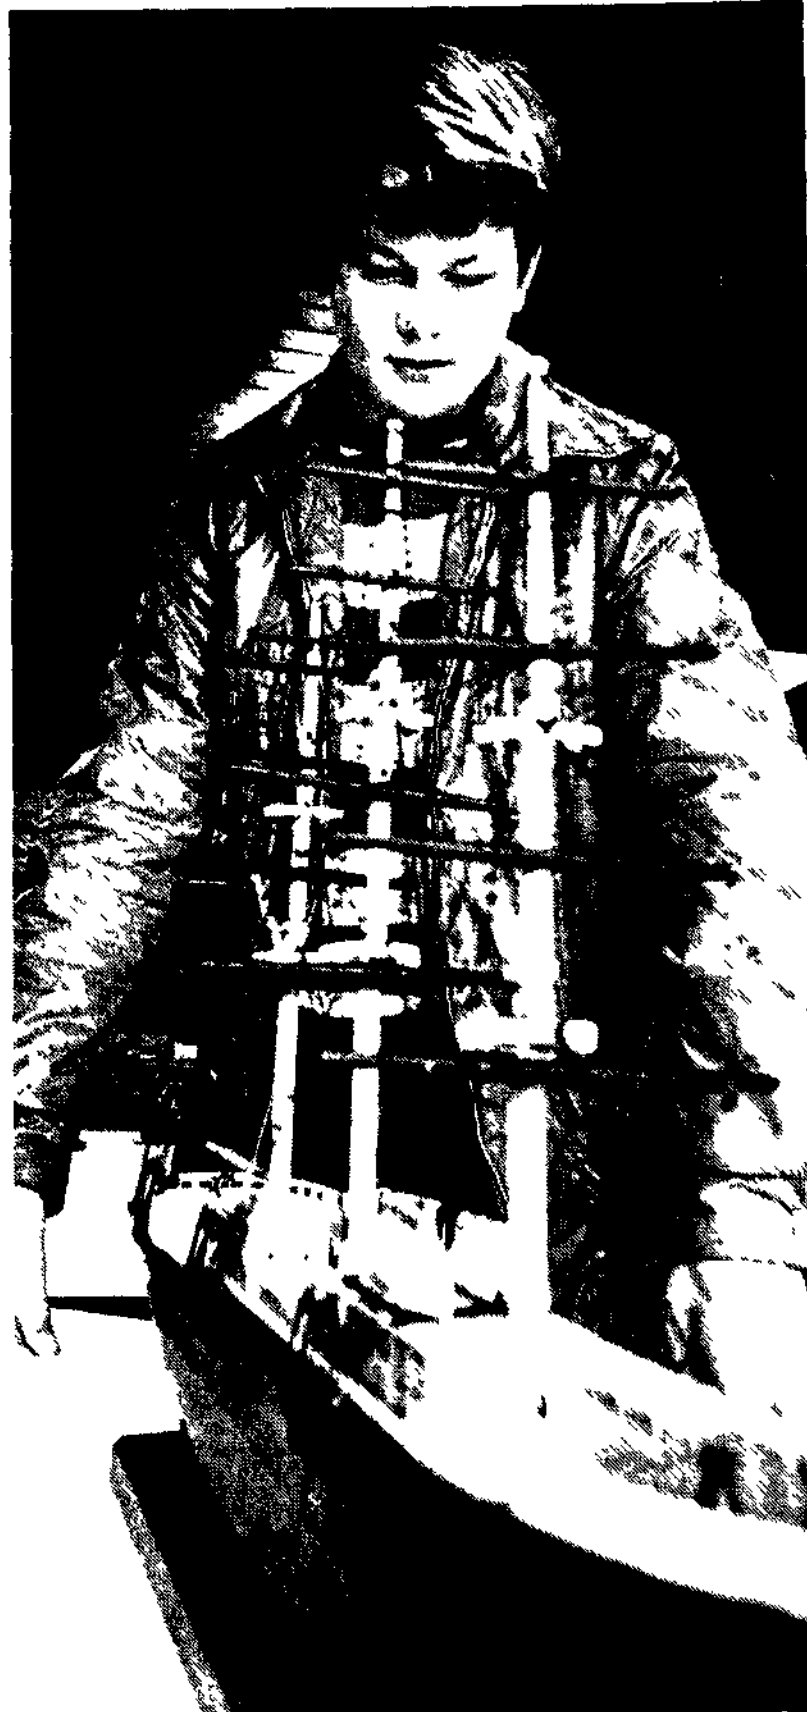

Lynn A. Williams

ALL POTENTIAL Republican candidates for the General Assembly in the newly created 2nd Legislative District have been invited to be interviewed by a committee of Republican committeemen this Saturday.

Incumbent Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, and Rep. John E. Friedland, R-South Elgin, have also been invited to be interviewed by the committee. The new district, which has two open seats for the House, includes all or part of eight townships in Cook, Lake, Kane and DuPage counties.

Members of the interviewing committee and their townships are: Harold B. Smith Jr., Barrington; Jerome F. Mann, Hanover; Bernard E. Pedersen, Palatine; Harry Pillman, Cuba (Lake County); Logan Burnidge, Elgin (Kane County); Robert Mittel, Addison; L. D. LaFleur, Bloomingdale; Elizabeth P. Walker, Wayne and Don Hensel, Winfield (last four all in DuPage County).

LT GOV. PAUL SIMON, tapping all sources to demonstrate his desirability as the Democratic candidate for governor, has attracted the endorsement of four Democrats who successfully stormed Republican strongholds in Lake,

Harper Meeting Is Canceled

A meeting of the Harper College Board of Trustees scheduled for tonight has been canceled. A new date has not been set.

A Harper spokesman said the trustees are in Springfield today to discuss construction plans with state officials. He said they will not be able to return in time for the regularly scheduled meeting.

High School Rolls Increase

Enrollment in High School Dist. 211 jumped 9 per cent this year, 1 per cent higher than High School Dist. 214's enrollment increase.

The total enrollment at Dist. 211's four high schools is listed at 7,901. Last year the Dist. 211 enrollment totaled 7,229. Enrollment in Dist. 214 jumped 8 per cent this year, from 16,135 to 17,419.

Both districts are in the midst of constructing new schools to keep up with the enrollment increases. Dist. 211 broke ground last month for the construction of the Hoffman Estates High School. Dist. 214 awarded a contract this week for excavation of the Buffalo Grove High School site. Dist. 214's seventh school, the Rolling Meadows High School, opened this fall.

THE DIST. 214 John Hersey High School has the highest enrollment in the area, totaling 3,132 students. Dist. 214 Wheeling High School comes in second with an enrollment of 2,708. The 2,256 enrollment at Conant High School is the highest in Dist. 211.

The 1,578-member student body at the Dist. 214 Rolling Meadows High School is the lowest in the area. In its first year of operation, the school has only three classes. The Dist. 211 Palatine High School has the second lowest enrollment with a student body of 1,689.

Girls outnumber the boys in Dist. 214, while the ratio is reversed in Dist. 211. Dist. 214 Arlington High School has the biggest discrepancy with the girls (1,241) outnumbering the boys by 120 students.

'Longhairs' Are Dropping From Sight

by DOUG RAY

John Lennon cut his. Paul McCartney trimmed his. And so did Abbie Hoffman. The shaggy-lock hairstyle brought to this country from England by the Beatles rock group in the mid-1960s — which became shoulder length until the '70s — may have run its course.

The American male who copied the Beatles' trend in hairstyles, first with hair over the ears, then the collar and sometimes over the shoulders, seems to be again following the McCartney and Lennon examples.

At least some Northwest suburban barbers, who were affected most by the longer locks and less frequent trips to the barber chair by customers, believe there is a trend toward shorter hair and they couldn't be happier.

"THE SHOULDER-LENGTH hair is gone forever," predicts Carmen Sorrentino, owner of a downtown Arlington Heights barbershop. Sorrentino said more men in the "mid 20s" have learned that they must get short haircuts when looking for jobs. "The tight job market may have had something to do with it," he said.

However, he believes the "older generation" is just now catching up with the longer hairstyles. "The older men who used to get flat-tops now let their hair

"TRIM IT UP" is a phrase heard more often by Northwest suburban barbers as hair styles are stabilizing. The age of the shoulder length style is gone, according to observations from area barbers.

grow. They blame it on their wives, who like the longer hair," he said. But Sorrentino believes the older male will never let his hair grow like the youth have.

"The young boys don't want to look like their fathers, who are just now catching up," he said.

A customer at the Sorrentino shop yesterday said his son, who is a member of a local rock group, is "getting a trim now" compared to the previously shoulder-length style.

Barbers at Neumann's Barber Shop in Arlington Heights said they feel the shoulder-length fad may be fading from the scene. However, they said the flat-top type style also is probably gone forever on the American male.

Lee Ahrens of the Arlington Barber Shop said he feels the extremes in haircuts are a relic of the past. "The flat-tops are letting their hair grow and the shoulder-length is not seen much any more." He said the look is "the full cut."

TOM HARTNETT and Paul Grundmann of Tom's Barber Shop in Arlington Heights have just returned from a hair-styling school in England and had some observations on English hairstyles, which usually are a forerunner of American styles.

"They do a lot of straightening and coloring in England," Hartnett said. "The bank director in his 60s has sideburns and a full haircut."

There is a difference between the Beatle look and the English version of long hairstyles, Hartnett said. "They keep it groomed and usually go to the barber weekly."

He believes the "style of way over the collar is gone" but he says "the full-cut hair is going to be around for a long time."

Jerry Jewell of Jerry's Barber Shop in Palatine said he has observed hair becoming shorter, especially on high school students.

"The styles aren't down to the shoes any more," laughed Veto Chiovani, a Palatine barber. He also termed the recent hairstyles "full cut."

IGGY CASCIO of the Southland Barber Shop in Rolling Meadows says shorter hairstyles are the trend, especially for men in the "25 to 30" age category. That age group was "in on the beginning of the long hairstyles," he said.

Cascio also said some large companies have established hair length guidelines for employees. "They want the hair off the collars," he added.

Al Weber, owner of the Rolling Meadows Barber Shop, said that "every week a few are coming in for short haircuts." But he also predicts the styles will never be as extreme as the flat-tops or the excessively long, unless there is a mobilization of men for a national emergency when the men have to keep their hair trimmed short.

According to the area barbers, the length of sideburns have stabilized at the bottom of the ear and mustaches are seen less.

Arlington Heights barber Don Markus also has found that elderly men are lengthening their hair slightly. "Except for a few," he laughed as he trimmed a balding customer.

HAIR STYLES like this may be seen less frequently, according to observations from area barbers who believe men are shortening their hair length. Some barbers are finding more customers asking for shorter styles each week, specially from patrons in the mid 20s.

'Need Rate Hike' —Bell Telephone

An Illinois Bell Telephone Co. executive said Tuesday the company is "a victim of inflation" and needs a $182 million rate increase to maintain its present level of service within the state.

George W. Winks, Illinois Bell general solicitor, was the lead-off witness at the first of what is expected to be a lengthy series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into the firm's request for a rate increase of about 15 per cent.

The proposed rate increase, which would affect about 280 million residential telephones and 405,000 businesses in Illinois, is being opposed by several groups, including the Independent Voters of Illinois.

Last November, after more than a year taking and weighing evidence, the commission granted the company a $78 million rate hike.

BUT WINKS said the 1970 increase had already been swallowed up by record high labor contracts signed this summer that will cost the company an extra $200 million in the next three years and by rising interest rates.

Illinois Bell rates have increased "only about 6 per cent" since 1953, Winks testified, while "since 1953 the consumer price index has risen more than 50 per cent and is still going up."

"So we are not producing inflation. On the contrary, we are a victim of inflation and we have resisted it as hard and as long as we can. We simply cannot continue to provide the quantity and quality of service that the public demands at prices that are only 6 per cent above 1953," he said.

Richard K. Means, an IVI attorney, called the proposed rate hike "not in the public interest." He charged the company was "ineffectively managed" and said it has made "needless" expenditures of more than $5 million this year for advertising.

200th birthday — about a year late. You know I wouldn't kid you.

Well, it's like this: In 1970 which in fact was the 200th anniversary of the composer's birth, CBS said it was going to pay tribute to him with a 90-minute special. Terrific idea, right?

I mean, the network had a super plan. The program was to be called, "Beethoven's Birthday: A celebration in Vienna with Leonard Bernstein," and there would be music and history and all that wonderful stuff.

Then suddenly it seemed awfully close to what would have been a logical air date for the show, but CBS kept himing and hawing and avoiding setting any date.

ALAS AND ALACK, the truth finally came out: after all that trouble in getting the program in the world, nobody — that is, no sponsor — would buy it. I mean, what sponsor would buy Beethoven when he can get "Mannix" instead?

So there sat CBS with this 90-minute special just bursting with culture and prestige and all the kinds of things that a network loves to put in one of those periodic weeks when the rating people take a vacation from putting out ratings.

And then, I said behold, to coin a phrase, CBS announced that the special will indeed be aired this year, on Christmas Eve as a matter of fact.

It will be from 9:30 to 11 p.m. EDT, preceding the hours when the three networks usually fill up the air time with special shows of yule music and Christmas Eve services.

ANYWAY, I'VE looked through the press release about Beethoven's CBS show pretty carefully, and I don't find any mention of a sponsor.

If this means the network is still on the hook for the tab, I hope it has some luck in finding an advertiser because it would be rather humiliating for Beethoven to be unable to come up with a sponsor when Doris Day can.

On the other hand, maybe it would be fitting justice for CBS to have to pay through the nose for such a special as partial punishment for letting the new series "The Chicago Teddy Bears" be loosed on an innocent public.

SO EASY! SO QUICK! SO SIMPLE!

And so inexpensive!

Trick And Treat Or Extortion?

Halloween Out Of Hand?

IN TOM TOWN
UPPER SADDLE RIVER, N.J.
There is a woman in my neighborhood who each year at this time makes a special trip to the grocery to stock up on cartons of eggs, rolls of toilet paper, aerosol shaving cans and blocks of wax. Then she distributes the goods to her children.

And they in turn go out and "celebrate" Halloween.

At any other time of the year such a practice would be called contributing to the delinquency of minors. But at the end of October it's called arming the trick-or-treaters. As the mother with the munitions explains, "I buy stuff for them because the stores will not sell to kids around Halloween. I don't see anything wrong with it. It's the kid's one night to howl. It's good, clean fun."

Good clean fun? A police officer in this town calls it extortion.

ACCORDING TO HISTORY, the incredibly cheeky customs of modern Halloweenism had their beginnings in the Middle Ages. As the Christian church sought to eliminate the old "Allhallows" traditions (a festival of the dead), the rural populations of Ireland and Great Britain began substituting pranks and mischief for fear and paganism. Wandering groups of celebrants would cap chimneys, tear down gates or rattle windows — much the same, they felt, as real demons.

The process of Halloween extortion (trick-or-treat) was originated in Ireland. Initially, Irish peasants went from door to door demanding food or other gifts. If they got it, fine. If they did not, the stingy homeowner was vandalized.

The custom took grip in the United States in the latter part of the 19th century — largely unchanged from its dismal, senseless, Middle Ages beginning.

And so it continues today. But somewhat altered. There is no longer an "either - or" proposition. Trick-or-treat is academic. Even if you pay off, you're still likely to wind up, as did one of my neighbors last year, with the hose cut into noodles, two basement windows broken, and the mailbox pounded to a crunch.

THE YOUNGER children, of course, are not to blame. They are only looking for handouts. The cuties in the bunny costumes, the lads dressed up like skeletons — they are seasonal accessories with which nobody can reasonably quarrel.

But when the girls get too big for the rabbit ears, or the boys outgrow the skeleton suits, it's no longer just grins and goblins, it's more often plain crime.

For example, last Halloween a friend of mine spotted a lad of 12 or 13 in his garage. The friend hollered. The kid started to run. The friend grabbed for him, missed, stumbled, skinned his leg, ruined a pair of slacks, and ended up, soon after, paying a couple hundred dollars to repair his acid-scarred automobile.

Olson Is Assigned

Airman Steven L. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart L. Olson, 248 Alcoa Ln., Hoffman Estates, has graduated at Keesler Air Force Base Mississippi as an administrative specialist.

The airman, now proficient in preparing Air Force correspondence and reports, is being assigned to O'Hare Airport for duty with the reserves.

Olson is a 1968 graduate of Conant High School.

"I was lucky," says my friend. "He could have thrown the acid in my face."

In truth, of course, there is very little acid-throwing on Halloween. And heavy damage is, in my town and most others, the exception. But, says a cop in a nearby city: "There is way too much potential for disaster. One time I caught a kid taking a mailbox apart, so I got out to question him. He got panicky, and then started yelling and swearing. I was really worried there that he'd take a pop at me. Well, fooling with a mailbox is one thing, but fighting with the policeman is a serious offense. The kid could have been in real trouble."

The cop says something should be done about Halloween mischief — for the sake of the mischief makers. And he's right. There are too many kids in trouble as it is to allow (or to encourage) further breeding in the world of delinquency.

THE STATISTICS make it plain. Last year, according to incomplete and understated FBI records, there were at least 1,600,643 kids under 18 arrested (which was a fourth of all people of all ages arrested). In the last 10 years, according to the same FBI figures, arrests of juvenile offenders have more than doubled.

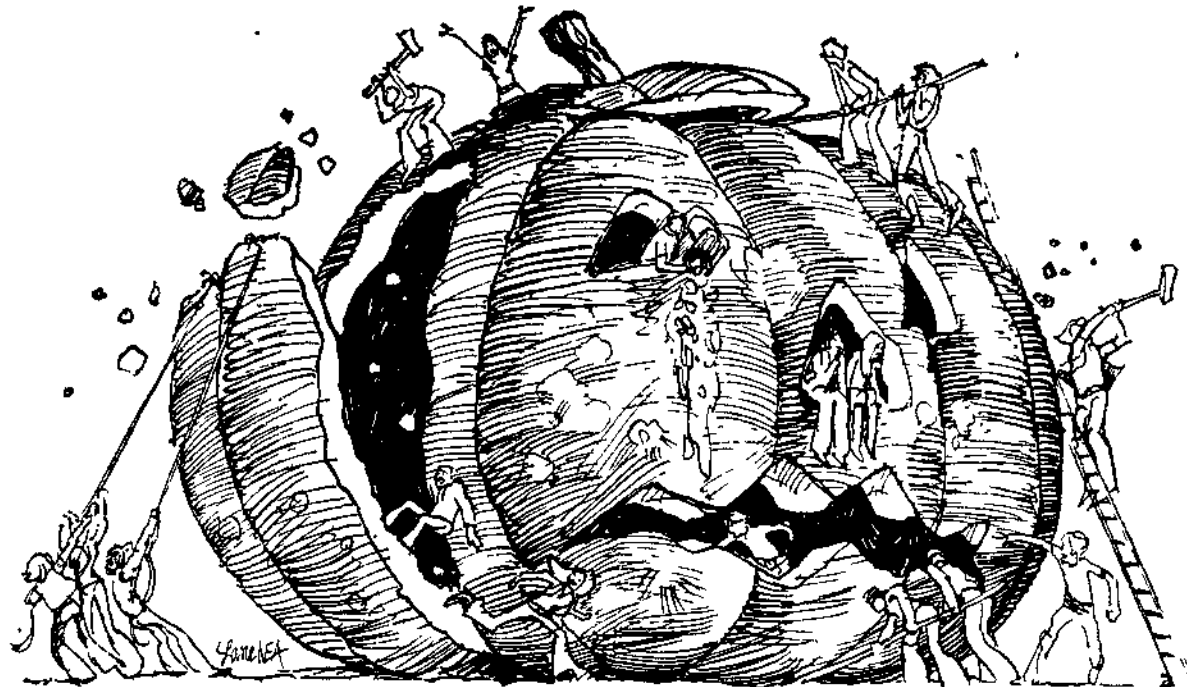

And it's not just 16-17-year-old toughs. In 1970 at least 22,000 youngsters under 10 were arrested for larceny, at least 16,000 kids 11-12 years old were nabbed for burglary, 148,000 kids 13-14 were charged with crimes against property, and at least 50,000 youths under age 15 were jailed for simple vandalism.

The bleak fact is, say many of the nation's leading law authorities, as many as nine of 10 children commit arrestable offenses before their 18th birthday.

Some of these youngsters, by the way, are caught on Halloween.

And so, Call me a bluenose, but I can't go along with my munitions supplying neighbor Good, clean fun? For whom? Not for the fellow on a budget who has to buy a new mailbox. Not for the police, who got no kicks out of chasing spooks. And not for the kids who get caught practicing this outdated rite of the Middle Ages.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

List Tips To Make Halloween Safe

Halloween brings joy to children. It also brings needless tragedy unless safety rules are observed. To make this Halloween safe for your children, here are some tips from the Illinois State Medical Society:

—Don't allow children to carry candles or other open flames. Give them flashlights instead.

—Make costumes fire-resistant by soaking them in a solution of three quarts of warm water, seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid.

—Make sure children are visible at night by sewing retro-reflector tape, arm bands or dangle tags on costumes or accessories.

—Shorten long costumes so children won't trip over them.

—Substitute cardboard replicas for sharp objects such as wooden or plastic knives or swords used in costumes.

—Masks can block vision by sliding over children's eyes. Use eyebrow pencil, grease paint, burnt cork or cosmetics instead.

—Younger children should have adult supervision, and children of all ages should be warned against entering the homes of strangers.

—Children should not eat treats until examined by an adult. Pins, razor blades or poison have been found in treats collected by children.

—Caution children to observe traffic rules, tell them not to dash between parked cars, to cross streets only at corners and to look both ways before crossing.

—If you are driving on Halloween, slow down! Watch out for children too pre-occupied to watch out for you.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, in ordering the mailing of Eisenhower proof dollars beginning Oct. 14, said: "October 14th is the birthday of our former President and I believe the mailing on his birthday of this beautiful coin struck in his honor pays deserved tribute to his memory."

"Demand for the Eisenhower proof coin was unprecedented," Mrs. Brooks continued. "and to the cutoff date of Oct. 8, 4.5 million coins had been ordered." She added that it will take until spring of 1972 to complete mailings.

In addition, a mint spokesman said orders have been received for well over 6.5 million of the uncirculated silver specimen. Delivery on these began in August.

CERTIFIED DOLLAR

The 99 Company has announced the release of its "Eisenhower Certified Coin" First Issue cover. The coin contained in this envelope is of the sandwich, cupro-nickel variety. The October, 1971, Gettysburg postmark verifies that the dollar displayed in the patented window is from among the first pieces released.

The back of the Eisenhower Certified Coin envelope bears the large vertical 6-cent Eisenhower stamp canceled on the first day of issue, Oct. 14, 1969, at Abilene, Kan. This makes it a double for collectors of First Day covers and First issues in coins.

"While more than the number of envelopes necessary to service the Certified Coin Collector membership were prepared," according to Birt Slater, general manager of the 99 Company, "we cannot hope to fill all of the orders from new collectors. Consequently, they will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis."

Eisenhower Certified Coin covers retail at $7.50 each with one of each mint mark to an order. The cupro-nickel dollars were struck at the Philadelphia and Denver mints and 99 received a supply from both facilities.

CANADA CUTOFF

Canadian mint officials set Oct. 31, 1971, as the last day orders will be accepted for 1971 dated single coins and Canadian coins sets. Frank Rose, Coin World's Canadian editor, advised that orders postmarked on or before Oct. 31 should be accompanied by certified checks, money orders or bank drafts in Canadian funds and made payable to the Royal Canadian Mint, Ottawa, Canada.

The mailing address is Coins Uncirculated, P.O. Box 470, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

Social Security and You

Q — I HEARD Medicare was going up $8 beginning Jan. 1, 1972. Does that mean my Supplemental Medical Insurance premium will be increased?

A — No. It does not. The in-patient hospital insurance deductible will increase from $60 to $68. The deductible for the 61st to the 90th day will increase from $15 to $17, and the lifetime reserve deductible will increase from $30 to $34.

Q — I HAVE accumulated over $100 in medical bills this year. Should I file a Medicare claim now or wait until January?

A — You can file now or next year. If you would like to avoid the January rush, submit your claim now. If you need assistance in completing your Request for Medicare Payment, telephone any social security office.

Q — MY MOTHER passed away last month and I paid the last of her doctor bills from my personal funds. Can I receive anything from Medicare on these bills?

A — It is possible you could receive partial reimbursement for these bills. Secure a paid receipt from the doctor showing you paid the bills in full. The receipt should also show the date, place, and description of each service, and the charge for each service. You then can telephone any social security office for completion of the claim form.

Chicago Area Merger Pace Remains The Same

The merger pace set in the Chicago area during the first and second quarters of 1971 continued through the third quarter, according to figures compiled by the Harris Trust and Savings Bank.

Total transactions for the third quarter remained at about the same level as the second quarter and also approximated the same level as the third quarter period a year ago.

Merger activity in the Chicago area in the third quarter did not appear to have been hampered by President Nixon's wage-price freeze.

"However," said Roger Molzahn, Harris corporate services officer, "there has been insufficient time to fully analyze the impact of the freeze and the constraints which may follow."

Molzahn feels that some of the factors which seem to be constraining rapid growth in merger activity include high interest rates, more stringent accounting rules for combinations, and the general uncertainty as to the economy's future growth trend.

Acquisitions proposed and/or completed by firms in the Chicago area continued to exceed the number of takeovers of Chicago area companies by outsiders. Of the total transactions where terms were made public, common stock and cash were the most frequently used methods of payment.

Have A Warm And Cheery Hearth

An unused fireplace is a waste. If you are lucky enough to have a fireplace, you have something to provide warmth and comfort along with its cheery look.

Most people don't use the fireplace because of the unfortunate experience of having it smoke or shed sparks. Some people spend more time getting the fire started than they spend sitting in front of it.

There's always a remote possibility that the fireplace wasn't built correctly, but if it was properly built (and most are) you should be able to get a fire going with a minimum of trouble.

The secret of any good fire-building is to provide a draft. So don't just dump logs on the hearth and expect them to burn. The logs should be supported off the hearth by a grate or andirons. Air will then flow under and through the logs, making complete combustion possible.

BUILDING A FIRE requires more than logs. Crumple paper into loose wads and put these on the hearth first. Over these place kindling — small sticks, scrap lumber, twigs.

Then place the logs on the andiron and use at least three. Place the largest to the rear, the next in front of it and the third on top. But before you place the third log in position spread some kindling over the first two, which will allow some air space and allow the top log to start burning before it settles against the other two.

Build your fire against the back wall. Most fireplaces are on an outside wall of the house and you want to heat that back wall. When the back wall is hot, it throws warm air into the room. Keeping the fire to the rear also keeps the smoke back there.

A cold fireplace and a cold chimney, common conditions with fireplaces built on outside walls, can cause smoking, since cold air doesn't rise. Before you light the fire, but after you have everything prepared, preheat the air in the chimney. Hold a lighted newspaper in the top of the fireplace where the chimney starts. When the newspaper is finished burning, start your fire.

SMOKING CAN be caused by a clogged damper or a damper that isn't open. Check this. Your chimney also may need cleaning. If there are overhanging branches outside, these may obstruct the flow of smoke, forcing it back into the room.

When the fire is burning, it uses up a lot of air. To keep that air flowing through the fireplace and up the chimney, provide ventilation elsewhere in the house. A partially opened window will do nicely.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

"Curiouser and curiouser," thought Alice. "Ever since I arrived in Wonderland my bridge hands have been terrific."

The Duchess opened the bidding with one club. Alice's partner, the dormouse looked even sleepier than usual as he passed. She decided that he could not have much in the way of cards.

The Cheshire Cat grinned and bid one spade.

Alice had been daydreaming and now she started to sort her hand. All she could find for awhile were hearts. When she got through she was looking at nine of them. Four hearts looked like her best bid. She could count 10 tricks and from the looks of the dormouse she was going to get no help from him.

The rest of the bidding is shown in the box. Alice saw no reason to go down two tricks at six hearts. She had a plan to beat the five-spade contract. She opened her ace of clubs and in spite of looking at the seven of hearts in dummy Alice led her deuce. Sure enough the four was played from dummy and the dormouse won the trick with his six. It took some time to appraise him of that fact, but he DEAR DR. LAMB — During a recent checkup an internist told me I had a heart attack in the past and my electrocardiogram shows scarred tissue. It came as a shock as I've never been known to have a heart condition previously. Could this possibly be brought on by smoking? On my medical claim he diagnosed it as ASHD — old M.I. Could you please explain this in your column and is it very serious?

Dear Reader — Yes, you can have a heart attack and never know it. We call these "silent heart attacks" and they are usually found with an electrocardiogram during a routine examination, or are noted on a post-mortem examination. Not all of these are truly without symptoms or silent, but cause such mild symptoms that the condition is not suspected. I have seen several apparently healthy men who have had this occur and then they remembered an episode of mild indigestion they had ignored. We had problems of this sort with the Air Force flying population. Others had no story of any illness whatever. Some people normally have electrocardiograms that look like those caused by heart attacks. This is why I hate to diagnose a heart attack if the person has not had any trouble and otherwise appears normal. The best way to be sure a heart attack has occurred is to have an old record available for comparison. Since we had yearly records for the Air Force flying population we were able to spot changes and also knew what a man's record looked like normally. Sometimes we could spot heart trouble sooner because a change had occurred from the earlier record. This is one reason I recommend that every adult should have an electrocardiogram and it should be part of the permanent medical records for later study and comparison.

SILENT HEART attacks are caused by the same thing as those that cause symptoms. This includes smoking. A heavy smoker — man or woman — will increase his likelihood of having a heart attack as much as three times the risk he might have if he didn't smoke. Stopping smoking almost immediately removes the increased risk — so it is never too late to quit.

M.I. means old myocardial infarction, the medical term for damage (infarction) to the heart muscle (myocardium), and ASHD is an abbreviation for arteriosclerotic heart disease, the common type of heart disease caused by fatty deposits (atherosclerosis) in the arteries leading to the heart.

I am amazed that there are not more silent heart attacks since the heart itself is nearly devoid of nerves for pain. The pain from a heart attack is really referred pain to other areas of the body, like the arm, shoulder or chest.

Veterans' News

Q — IN THE Veterans Administration deeply involved in medical research?

A — Yes... nearly 6,000 research projects are under way at VA hospitals and private clinics. It has paved the way for the successful treatment of tuberculosis, developed use of the Pacemaker for heart victims, and played a key role in medical breakthroughs such as the first successful kidney transplants, the laser cane for the blind, cobalt treatment of cancer, and use of psychotropic drugs that have revolutionized mental health care.

Q — I RECEIVE 30 per cent disability from the Veterans Administration. I will soon be 65 and retired. Can I waive my disability compensation and come under the VA pension program?

A — Suggest you make application for pension. VA will pay you the higher amount if you are eligible for two benefits.

Q — I HAVE a large dividend accumulation on deposit with VA on my insurance. May I withdraw a part of it?

A — You may withdraw all or any part of accumulated dividends.

Q — CAN A veteran pursue any educational program he desires?

A — Yes, if the course or program given leads to a recognized educational, vocational, or professional objective, and if the school and course are approved by the state-approving agency.

Q — AFTER World War II, I converted my GI insurance to a 20-year endowment plan that matures next year. Will I have to take face value, or can I convert it to another type of insurance.

A — You may exchange it for a policy of lesser cash value if you prove to be in good health. This must be done before the policy matures.

Q — MY SON died in service during the Korean Conflict. Am I eligible for educational benefits from the Veterans Administration?

A — No. Educational benefits are not available to parents.

'Crush' Fosters Bad Legislation

It has been charged that a law passed by both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and signed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie was the result of a Democratic plot to sneak it through the legislature and across the governor's desk to give Mayor Richard J. Daley the means to bail out the bankrupt Chicago Skyway.

The bill in question purports to give municipalities authority to use motor fuel tax funds for the purpose of improving and maintaining railroad grade crossings.

It is remarkable that nobody brought up the question of the Skyway until the bill had been made into law.

After the fact, Republicans have raised the alarm that the bill will enable Daley to use motor fuel taxes to pay off the $101 million Skyway bond issue, on which some $7 million in interest is already past due.

Gov. Ogilvie has maintained that neither he nor his research staff saw anything in the bill he signed to authorize such use of the funds. He has denied existence of a letter to his office by a member of the Senate Republican staff pointing out this aspect of the bill.

The governor's office was notified of that letter by Sen. Donald Carpenter, R-Moline — after the bill was signed.

The governor also has said that his legal counsel disagrees with the interpretation that the bill enables the city of Chicago to pay off the 7½-mile-long tollway with motor fuel taxes.

The more important issue, however, is that the legislation was approved by the General Assembly and signed by the governor apparently without clarification by any of the parties as to what it would do.

The bill was one of hundreds rushed through the General Assembly in the closing hours of the legislature's spring session, although it had been introduced months before. One of some 5,000 pieces of legislation given legislators for consideration, it apparently received little study by most of those who voted for it.

Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, readily declared recently that she had no knowledge of the contents of the bill, but may have voted for it. There is in her statement nothing to indicate laxness in her performance of her duties, however.

Mrs. Chapman is known to her colleagues in the House as a conscientious and hard-working legislator. But she, like the other able legislators, simply cannot become conversant with each of the thousands of bills offered in the legislature.

On those bills with which they are not familiar, they must base their votes on what they are told. In some cases they rely on information from an inadequate research staff — there are 24 staff members for the 177 representatives in the House — or from the sponsors of the bill.

More often, however, they rely on the leadership of their party.

It is this situation which makes it possible for key members of the legislature, with the acquiescence of the governor, to pass legislation which benefits special interests without raising a public outcry.

Whether that indeed was done in the case of the Chicago Skyway remains to be seen.

But the situation cries out for greater staff assistance to an increasingly overburdened legislature and more adequate rules for screening legislation.

Low-Income Housing Is Not Low-Cost

This is written in response to your Oct. 5th editorial "Housing Dilemma Must Be Solved." We agree with the view expressed by you that low and moderate income housing in the suburbs is inevitable. On the basis of pure economics, divorced from any moral or humanitarian concepts, it is inevitable.

As industries continue their move to the remaining open land located in the suburbs, their work force will follow creating an increased demand for this type of housing. As the population continues to "explode" at its present ever upward spiraling rate, people will look to the last resource of open land nearby on which to build their homes, again located in the suburbs.

It is a fact of life that our open spaces are becoming fewer and farther between because of the sheer force of our numbers. We must begin to face the reality that inevitably there will be no place to run which is not touched in some way by the onslaught of further industrialization. Disappearing fast is the concept of the little house in the country surrounded by nothing but acres of land and trees, with nary a smokestack in sight.

Once we determine to deal with these realities, we can then begin to plan the shape we wish this inevitable expansion to take. We can plan our communities to be balanced beautiful places where all may live together regardless of race, creed or economic status. We can plan a community of $20,000 to $80,000 homes which houses factory workers as well as corporation presidents, so that ALL may enjoy good schools, parks, transportation and shopping facilities. The added tax base created by the intelligently planned location of industries in our communities will help to ease our ever increasing financial burdens. No longer will we be forced to read with regret that yet another referendum was defeated which would have helped our schools, because they will get the financial support they need from the taxes paid by industries. We have the opportunity to do something now ourselves; but if we wait too long, this housing may be forced on us by the federal government in a form which is not only unacceptable and detrimental to us but to those who need it as well.

We were encouraged to read that the Chicago Housing Authority and the Housing Authority of the County of Cook have perceived these realities and have reached an agreement to develop up to 500 units of low income housing in the suburbs. As a further response to the information concerning the HACC's desire to "enlist the support of . . . community organizations," we have written to both of these agencies and offered our help.

We also agree that further public discussion of this issue is necessary and will help to dispel fear and confusion caused by misinformation. In pursuit of that very necessary goal, we would caution you when writing your editorials and articles to use accurate terminology and not refer to low-income housing as "low-cost" housing as you did in the above mentioned editorial. Otherwise you may simply become another source of misinformation.

Low-income housing is NOT low-cost housing. It is housing which is built according to the village's current rigorous zoning and building codes but is financed, built and controlled by a housing authority, enabling its rental fees to meet the needs of low income people. (Moderate income families are able to rent housing financed by the Illinois Housing Development Corporation or through one of the Department of Housing and Urban Development programs (HUD). Thus the Cook County Housing Authority can supply low-income housing of high quality acting as an agent of a community, or the individual communities can by creating their own housing authorities. Low-income housing needs must be fulfilled through a housing authority because of high land prices which make the individual unit prices of housing financed through HUD or IHDC still out of the reach of low income families.

We commend you for attempting to help educate and enlighten the communities you serve, and are certain you will continue to be an invaluable informational resource to all of us.

Positive Experience

The All's Fair Committee would like to express its appreciation to Paddock Publications for its coverage of All's Fair. We are especially grateful for Mr. Akeron's fine story which captured the spirit and purpose of All's Fair and the photograph that accompanied it. The success of this exposition is certainly dependent on this type of exposure. Thank you for helping us to provide a very positive experience for our community with minority people, which they otherwise might not have.

We would also like to use this particular opportunity that your newspaper affords, to thank the Randhurst Corporation and Mr. Harold J. Carlson, Vice President and General Manager, in particular. Mr. Carlson, despite his busy schedule, provided us with invaluable assistance and cooperation. It was through his efforts and willingness to participate in a new idea, that made All's Fair possible.

The Smart Guys Plan Ahead

Men discuss many things over lunch. Politics. Sex. Business.

Some even discuss the high cost of dining over split pea soup and roast beef sandwiches.

For instance, listen to this conversation overheard in a local cafe:

" . . . and I said I got plenty of life insurance. Say Jack, have you bought a grave site yet? You gonna have a last big bash or slip out quietly?" asked Roger, about 40.

Death was a reality for Jack. He was 39 going on 77.

"I'm trying to make up my mind. I don't know what would be best for my wife, assuming, of course, I go first."

"I have a grave . . . six of them in fact. I don't know what to do with them all. I bought them when I was young and we never had any kids. I still have some planning to do on my estate."

Then a third chimed in, proud as a peacock, Tom, age 51.

"I signed my body over to science. Carry a card now, so no matter where I duck out, I'll be of some use. Wife and I both did it."

Then it was Gene's turn, a businessman of the same vintage.

"That's not for me. How you know it won't hurt? I never heard anyone come back from the dead and say it don't hurt."

"Oh, I've been dead lots of times and there's no pain . . . nothing to it. Get smashed sometime, you'll see."

Brekke
Brad

"No thanks. I want to go with all my parts intact . . . no cutting off my legs and arms and head for science. Christ!" said Gene, slopping his soup.

"Suit yourself," said Tom.

"I damn sure will," said Gene. "I know lots of people who have donated their bodies to science, but not this cookie . . . no s'ree-bob. How 'bout you Jack?"

"Maybe I'll have me a good Irish wake — you know, the men in the basement with beer and cigars and the women up in the kitchen fussin' over a ham in the oven. Always had a good ham in the oven. Those wakes used to be a lot of fun when I was a kid . . . knew some guys used to make it a regular practice, whether they knew the deceased or not, because they could get free food and drink."

"Yeah . . . I used to do that in Chicago when I grew up. In the old neighborhood, but only on Saturdays when I didn't have enough money to go to the pub," said Tom.

Then it was old Jack's turn.

"You know, it wasn't too many years ago wakes used to be held in the homes . . . late 30's and early 40's they were still doing it. Oh, they had funeral parlors in them days, but they gave it a more personal touch if they were held in the home."

"Hell, I know of one woman who kept her husband on a slab of ice for two whole days . . . so's all their friends could come see him. No kidding, just like a fish . . . those were the old days."

The younger men joshed his story.

"She flip him over every hour to keep him cold on both sides?" asked Roger.

"I don't think so . . . but he didn't smell much. People weren't embalmed in them days, you know," said Poked-faced Jack.

"They have drinks?" asked Tom.

"Sure, all you could drink," said Jack.

"Well whatta' do for ice . . . just go over and chip it off the cadaver?" asked Tom again.

"Yeah, like excuse me Uncle Charley . . . in all due respect, I gotta move your leg so I can chip off some ice for my drink," joked Roger.

"Careful you don't poke him in the skin with that ice pick . . . he'll start smelling," offered Gene.

"Well, you can say what you want . . . but you weren't there . . . and let me tell you it was an okay wake. Plenty of ice in the kitchen. Talk about embalming, did you know you don't even have to do that now?" said Jack.

"That's right," said Gene. "It's law . . . you don't have to embalm unless you plan to ship the body out-of-state or show it for a few days in an open casket . . . otherwise you can bury him as is . . . but if he's embalmed, he'll keep for a thousand years maybe . . . if that's what you want."

"The Jews got the right idea," said Jack. "Bury them quick as possible. If you die before sundown, you get buried that day."

"How they do that? Who digs graves that fast?" asked Tom.

"Special arrangement with the cemetery I hear," said Jack.

"I'll be darned."

"Is that a fact?"

Jack nodded his head yes. No he wasn't kidding. It was indeed a fact.

"Its costly dying these days," offered Roger. "My wife just had to bury her father in California. Cost $8,000. And when her brother went, he cost $7,000 to bury."

"Wow," whistled Gene.

"No kidding . . . and that's not much these days. Hell, I buried one of my kin not too long ago and it cost $5,000 and that was with nothing fancy."

"Well I figure they can salt me away for $2,000 and just have a memorial service . . . no wake. Save the money. Why waste it on a big Ta-Do?" said Jack.

"When I'm gone I don't care what they do with me," said Roger.

"Well, you gotta have enough insurance for protection . . . maybe not an elaborate funeral . . . but protection," said Tom.

"Heck, if worse comes to worse, I'll have VA do it for nothing. I'm an old soldier . . . I was a doughboy in the First War," said Jack.

"I can too . . . World War II," said Gene.

"I fought in Korea," chirped Roger.

"I fought in Vietnam," said the bus boy, picking up their dirty dishes.

"Bully, we're all vets and maybe we'll all be buried in a mass grave at some VA cemetery, with 21 gun salutes and all," said Jack.

"Yeah . . . by jing . . . that ain't a bad idea. Tell my wife about that tonight . . . her worries are over . . . cash in the insurance now and live it up," said Gene.

"Say, how'd we get on this subject? I don't want to talk about dying yet."

"Me neither, especially at lunch."

"See you gents . . . I got better things to do than talk about cadavers . . . gives me the chills," said Gene, standing to hike his pants up where they belonged.

"But you gotta think about it," said Roger.

"I do . . . but not for long . . . too much living to do yet," said Gene.

"Maybe I'll see you spooks Halloween and we can pick it up again," he said as he strode through the door, smiling.

And on that note, the lunch was over.

All's Fair: Meaningful Experience

As a sponsoring agency from the Northwest Suburbs, Focus would like to publicly thank and commend the officials and staff of Randhurst Mall for their part in the success of the recent All's Fair. All's Fair played an important role in the education of our suburban community about the developing economy of some American minority groups. More importantly it became the vehicle for cultural exchanges and dialogue between whites, blacks, Indians, Orientals and Spanish Americans.

In addition to Randhurst we would also like to thank your newspaper for the publicity and coverage afforded the exposition. It was this kind of insight that helped make the fair a meaningful experience for the exhibitors and the people of our community.

Motorist Is Final Loser

In response to Mr. Olsen's letter to the editor printed in the Oct. 18 edition of the Arlington Heights Herald, I would like to correct your mistaken attitudes on the gasoline market as elicited in that letter.

First of all, gasoline "wars" are news, and your suggestion that someone may have paid the Herald for writing an article on this subject is childish to say the least.

Secondly, poor customer service is not a myth but an economic fact of life. If the service station dealer can't make an honest profit, he cannot pay for help and not enough help equals poor service to the consumer.

Thirdly, as for the Herald's article being "a dream come true" for oil marketers, the answer is "an oilman's nightmare" would be closer to the truth.

Fourthly, I do agree with the last paragraph of your letter regarding overbuilding of service stations. The public should fight the building of new stations in their community unless there is a proven need for one.

Finally, I'd like to say that the present marketing policies of certain irresponsible suppliers has reduced service station dealers in general to economic serfs and modern day share croppers and that you, Mr. Olsen, and the rest of the motoring public will be the eventual losers if this below cost selling of gasoline continues much longer.

Talented Writer

Brad Brekke's story "Roger The Terrible" was very well written. Mr. John Cunningham's comments and names were incorrect.

The painter's business agent was not Youngblood, but Charlie Youngblood (Local No. 147). The feud between Wallace and Youngblood was personal and had nothing to do with union racketeering.

Years before the death of Wallace, Wallace was authorized by the painters union to pay Touhy $26,000 to scare Capone Touhy was successful.

In 1942, Wallace appeared at the Youngblood household (according to the official police report). Wallace, in attempting to kill Youngblood killed Mrs. Loretta Youngblood. In the exchange of shots, Wallace was fatally wounded.

Charlie Youngblood was a personal friend of mine and gave me my first job in the United States.

The Herald has a very bright future with writers like Brad Brekke.

Teach Equal Respect

Want to congratulate you for your unbiased editorial "On Public Piety." (I say Amen to it.)

Pardon my "baiting" with the religious history course stuff, but I hoped to get a "religious nibble" on the hook I threw out.

It's really too bad that religion couldn't be taught, such as the Unitarians do, by teaching the various faiths, and teaching equal respect for the differing faiths and non-faiths.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new anti-perspirant commercial on television is raising more eyebrows in the broadcast world than anything since comedian Henry Morgan first began kidding sponsors and their products a generation back.

Morgan never went quite so far as to say a product wasn't as good as the sponsor contended, but he would read the commercial in dry, skeptical tones and comment, "That's what it says here."

There have been plenty of commercials that made extravagant contentions but used deliberate tongue-in-cheek verbiage or style to lend an atmosphere of "sincerity," making it clear the viewers weren't supposed to take everything the announcer said about the product literally.

BUT BOB Dolobowsky's announcements for Stay Dry apparently broke new ground in TV advertising, particularly in the cosmetic field. Dolobowsky, president of the Warren, Muller, Dolobowsky ad agency, does the commercials himself and he comes right out and says antiperspirants will not keep you dry.

"It's an antiperspirant with two kinds of drying ingredients and still it can't keep you dry," Dolobowsky says on the air. Then he adds that Stay Dry will keep you comparatively fresh for quite a spell.

If he were peddling a pharmaceutical there'd be nothing unusual about Dolobowsky's commercials. The Food and Drug Administration requires such disclaimers in the advertising of many pharmaceuticals.

In cosmetics, where purple prose, poetic license and extravagant claims long have been the rule, this new note of personal sincerity aroused instant trade attention. The prestigious Advertising Age and the advertising columnists of New York newspapers were intrigued by the boldness of the disclaimer and by Dolobowsky's going on the air himself with the commercial.

ANYTHING that's successful in broadcast advertising usually starts a trend. Dolobowsky and his Stay Dry commercial have been on the air only since Sept. 21, so the sales response, which he says was initially good, hasn't been proved yet as to definitive impact.

One New York advertising columnist saw endless possibilities in the Stay Dry commercial. He noted that while the actors' union permitted Dolobowsky to waive initial payment for the commercial it would not allow him to waive residual rights. "That," said the columnist, "would seem to open all sorts of new profit centers for agency brass."

How Can Handicapped Help? Ask Nick Schmitt

A handicapped person, if properly placed in a job, can do just about anything.

That's the opinion of George Conn, executive director of the Illinois Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. The committee recently presented its Illinois Public Personnel of the Year award to Nicholas "Nick" Schmitt of Rolling Meadows.

"There is a degree of disability that should be considered in placing a handicapped person on the job," Conn said. "The mentally retarded, for example, can perform many service jobs better than the person of average intelligence because they enjoy their work. They don't get frustrated with the boredom of the job."

Conn said that although the unemployment rate is generally higher among the handicapped than among others, Illinois industries have a better record of hiring the handicapped than most other states. "Also, Illinois now has the strongest legislation on the subject of any state," Conn said.

HE SEES HIRING the handicapped as a direct savings to the community and is a benefit to person, Conn added. His association reorganized the continuing work in hiring the handicapped by Schmitt, who is assistant vice president in charge of distribution and plant manager at Bantam Books, Inc., in Des Plaines.

"Hiring the handicapped has proved to be a real asset to our company," according to Schmitt. "It is more than altruistic; it has resulted in substantial savings for the company."

There are 30 handicapped persons on the work force of 200 at the Des Plaines distribution center. The company has handicapped personnel in almost every kind of job in the plant, including order picking and packing.

Schmitt's willingness to give another man a chance for employment is not limited to the handicapped. He'll talk with anyone having a hard time landing a job. This means ex-convicts, veterans, non-English speaking and minority group persons, and those with alcoholism and other mental problems.

AMONG OTHER awards presented to Schmitt for his efforts on behalf of the handicapped are a letter of recognition from the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, an award from the American Legion for hiring handicapped veterans, and a citation from the Clearbrook School in Rolling Meadows for hiring the mentally handicapped.

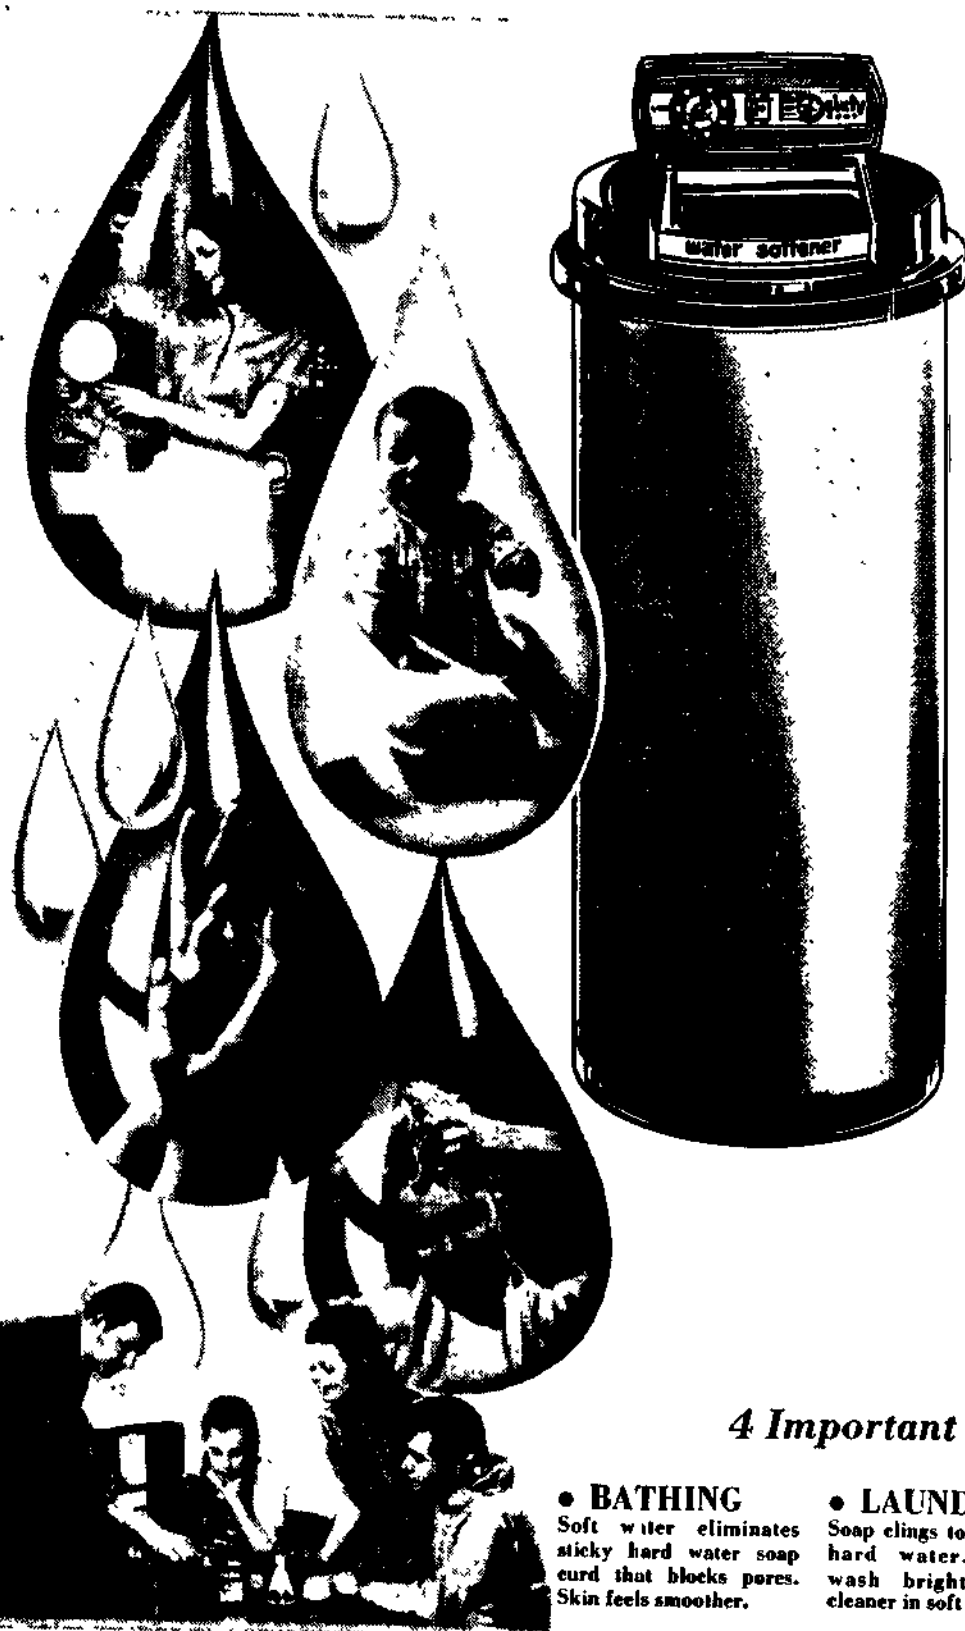

In 1970 Schmitt received a plaque from the Italian Policemen's Association for books contributed by Bantam to the Dixon State School. He was honored by the Illinois Cooperative Education program for participation in their training programs.

Schmitt is a member of the Rolling Meadows Mental Health Board and is a welfare officer for the municipality. He was instrumental in helping to establish a taxing program in Rolling Meadows to aid the handicapped and retarded.

4 Important Reasons for Soft Water:

- BATHING
Soft water eliminates sticky hard water soap curd that blocks pores. Skin feels smoother.
- LAUNDERING
Soap clings to clothes in hard water. Clothes wash brighter, rinse cleaner in soft water.
- CLEANING
Everything washes faster with soft water. Cut expenses on washing products, too.
- APPLIANCES
Last longer. Mineral deposits in hard water are harmful to water heater and plumbing.

Businessmen, Economists Optimistic But 'Confused'

Confused optimism was the consensus of the economists and business executives who presented their views on the economic outlook at last week's meeting of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce in Chicago.

"It seems a little ludicrous for someone to be honored as I am to talk to you today about the retail outlook for 1972 when, for the life of me, I don't know how to price our spring catalog," began James W. Button, senior vice president of merchandising for Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago. He referred to uncertainties caused by President Nixon's new economic policies.

Button said retailers can seek a better understanding of the economic outlook by placing greater emphasis on consumer psychology. "Under our national accounts system, consumer spending represents about 63 per cent of the Gross National Product," he said.

"While unemployment is considerably higher than we would like it to be and while industrial production is sluggish, there is no quicker and better way to remedy these ills than for the American consumer to develop the confidence in our nation necessary to start circulating these funds in the marketplace. The multiplier effect could be enormous," Button said, adding that the President's new economic program should relieve the consumer uncertainty. He forecasts an increase in retail sales and services of 8 per cent in 1972.

EBON C. JONES, executive vice president of Owens-Illinois, Inc., based in Toledo, Ohio, said that as Phase Two of Nixon's program unfolds, the economic puzzle of controlling inflation is obvious. Phase Two may provide the positive effect of restoring consumer confidence, he said. He predicted a continuing profit squeeze however, citing "inequities inherent in the wage and price control program."

"I do not completely share the bullish views of some economists who are forecasting a real growth of as much as 6 per cent in 1972," Jones said. "I am hopeful, however, that as a nation we can achieve a rate of growth of as much as 5 per cent, with reduced inflation perhaps in the range of 3.5 per cent, for a total growth in the Gross National Product for 1972 of some 8 1/2 per cent." He predicts that the packaging and glass container industries will grow by about 5 per cent next year.

The President's new economic policy has added a note of uncertainty in the railroad wage patterns, according to Theodore E. Desch, vice chairman and chief executive officer of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad. The inauguration of Amtrak this year added other complications in industry forecasting, he said.

Noting the adverse effects of declining passenger traffic on this year's industry earnings, Desch said he is convinced this slide in traffic will stop in 1972. The Surface Transportation Act of 1971, now pending in Congress, could boost the industry he said.

"THE ADMINISTRATION'S new economic plans provided an additional expansive thrust to the pace of business," said William J. Korsvik, vice president and economist for the First National Bank of Chicago.

"The anticipated step-up in business activity and the consequent rise in the demand for credit will tend to push up interest rates," he said. "Offsetting this upward force on the interest rate structure will be the gradual and partial disappearance of the inflation premium investors were demanding. This assumes of course a continuing easing of inflationary pressure in the year ahead."

Korsvik said his prediction is that interest rates will move sideways with the prime rate and commercial paper yields, in the range of 6 to 7 per cent. Corporate bonds will probably stay in the 7 to 8 per cent range and government issues will be in the 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 per cent range, he said.

"The utility business is alive and well, having a profitable year in 1971 with another in prospect in 1972," said Robert M. Dreys, president of Peoples Gas Co., Chicago. He recounted the efforts of the energy industry to find new or alternate sources, of power. "As to controls, let me point out that we are accustomed to price regulation," he said. "We have lived with this for years."

The steel industry is recovering from a severe reversal since Aug. 1 of this year said Michael Tennenbaum, president of the Inland Steel Co. He predicts "a reasonably good year" in 1972, boosted by greater steel consumption and a slight drop in steel imports.

Compensation Forms Mailed To Small Firms

An estimated 120,000 Illinois small business firms and non-profit organizations will receive registration forms within the next several weeks designed to determine whether they will be subject to the state unemployment compensation law effective Jan. 1, 1972. John M. Linton, State Employment Security Administrator said the first 10,000 forms were mailed last week.

Under a recent change in the law, business firms not previously covered but which, in 1971, had a payroll of $1,500 or more in a calendar quarter, or one to three employees in at least 20 weeks, will become subject to the law. Previously exempt non-profit organizations with four or more employees in at least 20 weeks in 1971 will also come under the law.

According to Linton, the mailing of the registration forms will be completed by Nov. 30. Recipients of the forms are being asked to complete and return them within 10 days. Linton pointed out that every small business firm and each non-profit organization affected by the change in the law is required to register. He emphasized that any such firm or organization that does not receive the form by Nov. 30 should immediately write to obtain one from the Division of Unemployment Compensation, 165 N. Canal St., Chicago, Ill. 60606.

SET BACK FROM THE ROAD between office complexes is the large, converted residence which houses Incentives, Inc., a mental health center in Des Plaines.

Twelve in-patients and numerous out-patients relearn how to function happily in society through their treatment at Incentives.

been named to the Two Thousand Women of Achievement by the organization of the same name for their work in psychology.

Dr. Jeanine Gavin's 'Idea' Center

They Take Their Lives To Incentives

by DOROTHY OLIVER

You're a housewife who can't cope. The grocery store is a threat. Keeping up the house becomes a monumental problem. You can't tolerate the kids, communicate with your husband or even chat with the neighbors.

You're a teen who can't relate. You've replaced reality with drugs. There are parents on your back, school pressures, social pressures and peer pressures.

You're old and confused. You're a burden to those you love. It's hard to remember what just happened but memories of years past are clear and constant. You're waiting to die — but not sure you really want to.

People with problems — problems that disrupt the home and interfere with relationships.

"THE MENTALLY ILL bring their life to you and you educate them so they can function happily. This is the cornerstone of all our programs," said Dr. Jeanine Gavin, executive director of Incentives, Inc., a private mental health facility on the far east side of Des Plaines. "This is a therapeutic community. We try to help someone relearn in a setting as similar as possible to what they really will face in the outside world."

Incentives operates out of a large, comfortable residence at 2424 Dempster. Twelve in-patients, from the elderly to the middle-aged to the young teen, interact, assume responsibilities and are treated in this family setting. Numerous out-patients come and go throughout the day for social activities, discussion and therapy.

"THIS IS A HOME, not a sterile hospital ward," Dr. Gavin said. "Our patients go through situations that parallel the problems they've had at home. They deal with an age range at home — they have to deal with an age range here."

Designing the programs at Incentives and overseeing methods of treatment is Dr. Gavin's job. She holds a Ph.D. in both sociology and psychology, has an extensive background in psychiatry and research, and was recently chosen one of the Two-Thousand Women of Distinction by the organization of the same name, headquartered in Dartmouth, England.

"I decided in first grade to be a psychologist," she said. "While studying psychology I was overwhelmed with the individuality of persons. Then in sociology I began to learn the sameness of people in cultures. It becomes striking how much people are similar and how much you can predict what they are going to do."

"WE TAKE THAT TACK with many of the programs we have here," she continued. "The patients are very much like other people. They may not fear the same things but they know fear. They may not get angry at the same things but they know anger. The geriatric can relate to the 16-year-old because they know the same feelings."

Incentives is an idea, according to Dr. Gavin, and it was her idea. At one point in her career she was able to see her hospital patients in a social situation at a cottage tea. "Seeing social pressures at work was such an insight. There is a lot to be said for group social pressure. The patient who doesn't care in their hospital ward will try to use good manners, dress nicely, etc., at a tea."

"I tried to discover how to manipulate the social pressure and use it to help them. I've based Incentives on social principles that work. We offer what is not available at a hospital but are in no way competing. We are an idea."

THE "IDEA" CONSISTS of comfortable, brightly colored, three-bed bedrooms, a spacious sparkling kitchen where patients are able to prepare their own meals; a dining area, a living room with overstuffed furniture, a television and game tables, a finished basement with a pingpong table, recreational facilities and conference rooms, and a large back porch, which is the site of summer barbecues and peaceful relaxation. The property is well maintained with flower beds, lawn areas and a private swimming pool.

The programs are innovative and constantly expanding. Dr. Gavin's personal philosophy of treating the mentally ill is evident.

"Systems can be conditioned by changing the chemical structure, but I'm not for this system. I'm interested in the alternatives. Human beings can be changed without drugs. This is a psychological center."

INCENTIVES WAS a methadone treatment center until last spring when the state of Illinois decided not to renew its license to provide the drug for heroin addicts. Dr. Gavin instituted an experimental program using a substitute for methadone for the addicts remaining at Incentives.

"We are using a non-addictive drug to help them with some withdrawal symptoms (Methadone is addictive). When someone is ready to get off, they have been able to with the drug we are using. If they begin taking drugs again they experience pain and we know what they are doing. It's a bad trip — a type of negative conditioning — and it's worked."

Another program she has instituted gives patients a project they must work on together. They make a video tape working through communication to express their feelings and their thoughts to an audience. They write the script, make the props, create the music, fight through their differences, film the program and wind up with a 15 minute finished product. At the same time they are dealing with the personalities and feelings of others — the life parallel in the therapy.

DR. GAVIN HAS designed a new program for Incentives and is ready to initiate it. The program is for housewives — everyday ordinary women in the community.

We know there are thousands of women having kaffee klatsches sitting with people they can trust, sharing the problems of their marriage, their affairs, their fears, etc. The afternoon coffee however can perpetuate some problems. There is no one to turn to and say 'I hate my child.' The others will turn on her in anger and disgust. There is no one to tell her that this feeling is normal and natural. Sometimes the kaffee klatsch can make a woman feel abnormal or sick.

"Our program would use the kaffee klatsch idea, only a professional would be available to make the conversation usable rather than abnormal."

"THERE ARE WHOLE segments of the population with similar situations and similar problems. They would benefit from sitting around a dining room table with a professional and sharing their thoughts. The Vietnam wife has her special problems as does the housewife the single woman, etc."

Whatever the problem, Dr. Gavin and her professional staff of psychiatrists, social workers, nurses, therapists, specialists and counselors seek to provide the services to meet a patient's needs.

"We offer the same range of services as any mental health clinic, but we are designed to develop programs and services around the needs of the people who come here," Dr. Gavin said. "The world doesn't work the same as a scheduled program. You have to let it happen."

SITTING AROUND A kitchen table a group of patients at Incentives, Inc., 2424 Dempster, Des Plaines, discuss their problems, their fears and their world with a therapist.

Incentive patients range in age from over 65 to the young teen and face a home situation, similar to the one they came from, during their treatment.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to remove a disagreeable odor from an innerspring mattress used by two elderly people who, because of their disabilities, didn't bathe often? There are no visible stains on the mattress. —M.E.

Mattresses present a problem because odors often penetrate through the cover. If the odor has gone through to the stuffing, you're in trouble. A couple of experiments seem to be in order. Dampen a cloth and wring it out in either a baking soda solution or a mild household ammonia solution and sponge the surface. If the odor is only on top, either of these solutions will take care of it. Another way is to spread on a layer of activated charcoal or the granules used to line kitten boxes. Unhappily, that much charcoal might be too expensive, especially for just an experiment. It also might help to thoroughly coat the whole area with a spray disinfectant. But, again, all these are for surface "damage." If the stuffing has been affected, you're going to have to throw away the mattress.

Der Dorothy: Here's a hint you and your readers might enjoy: Add a little dry or semisweet wine to the drippings in the pan during the last 45 minutes of the roasting time of either turkey or chicken. The alcohol evaporates but the flavor that's left gives the gravy a real lift. —Joni Monroe

Dear Dorothy: I know you are not supposed to cover an entire shelf with foil when baking something that might boil over but I do put a sheet of foil about an inch larger than the pan holding the food — on the shelf — below — but not until the last 15 or 20 minutes when the food shows signs of running over. —Jane S.

SIU Graduates Married

Graduates of Southern Illinois University were married Sept. 18 in the bride's hometown of Ridgeway, Ill. Marie Etoile Scherrer, daughter of the John J. Scherrer, became the wife of Stephen Schaefer Smith of Arlington Heights, and the newlyweds are making their home in Wheeling.

Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verne R. Smith, 1110 N. Dale Ave., Arlington was graduated from Southern Illinois in 1969 and is working for Sara Lee in Deerfield. His bride was just graduated from SIU in June.

Marie attended Sacred Heart Girls School in St. Louis and Steve attended Notre Dame High and Arizona State University before transferring to Southern.

THEIR CANDLELIGHT wedding took place at 1:30 in the afternoon in St. Joseph's Cathedral, Ridgeway, and was followed by a buffet reception in the garden of the Scherrer home. One hundred fifty guests greeted the bride and groom.

For the double ring ceremony, Marie wore a candlelight satin gown with chapel train and a long flowing illusion veil, both trimmed with Valencia lace. Highlighting the gown's neckline, she wore an antique cameo from her great-grandmother. Her bouquet was a cascade of white orchids with ferns.

Her five attendants were gowned alike in watercolor printed chiffon in blues, orchids, pinks and greens. They wore large blue picture hats with tulle trim and each carried a single long-stemmed white rose.

The bride's sister, Anita Scherrer, was maid of honor, and the groom's brother tates, was best man. Bridesmaids included another sister, Rita Scherrer; the groom's sister, Mrs. Eugene La Plante, Traverse City, Mich.; Maureen Fallon, Springfield, Ill.; and Suzanne Sturgeon, Jacksonville, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Smith

GUESTS WERE seated by the groom's uncle, Dr. Richard Schaefer, Lansing, Mich.; Nick Scherrer, brother of the bride, Gerald Gray, Berwyn, and Don Verne Russell Smith Jr. of Hoffman Es- Retondo, Prospect Heights.

Mrs. Scherrer chose an aqua crepe ensemble with a white orchid corsage for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Smith wore gold lame with amber bead trim and also had a white orchid corsage.

Special guests at the wedding were the couple's grandparents Steve's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Schaefer, came from Lansing, Mich., and Marie's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Hermes, from Aurora.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week on Cape Cod before settling in an apartment in Wheeling.

St. Joseph's Card Party Is Nov. 7

The Potting Shed by Mary B. Good

Would you like to save the last rose of summer? Try picking rose hips to transform into rose hip jelly.

A trip out into the country can yield a bumper crop of rose hips, the seed pod of the unpicked, fallen wild rose.

The red heads of the hips are easy to spot among the nearly naked branches of the briar patch.

Stems of wild roses are thorny, and leaves look similar to, but smaller than, cultured rose varieties. Perhaps you can make the identification where you find a few leaves still hanging on the branch.

Remember to collect only wild rose hips, as backyard-type roses are not edible due to the type of pesticide spray commonly used on them by homemakers.

Gather up supplies of pectin and paraffin, jelly jars, cheese cloth and sugar and get "in business." Consult directions in Euell Gibbons' fine wild cookery book, "Stalking the Wild Asparagus."

THIS IS REALLY a very sneaky way of suggesting those interested get hold of the Gibbons' book. It would be much simpler to print the recipe. But then, if you are even a mite intrigued by wild food, you might not go the step further. And then you would miss out on hun- of goodie ideas — like how to put to use those Hops crab apples which are dropping in your flower beds and rotting all over the driveway (I can't even get my blue jays to eat them, those birds are so spoiled on peanut butter and bacon grease).

Speaking of birds, you can get the insect-eaters to stay all winter with a substitute diet of the above, or sweet balls. The seed eaters, of course, will thrive on sunflower seeds or millet set out for them.

AND PLEASE, PLEASE, don't start feeding the birds if you don't intend to keep up a regular schedule all winter. Once the insect-eaters decide not to migrate, they are in the dangerous position of starving to death should you decide to take off for Jamaica come December, sell your house, or just plain quit because the snow is too deep and you don't want to make the trip to the bird feeder.

Hedge hogs, cayenne pepper, lemon juice, garlic juice, dried blood, bone meal, basil are all easily acquired items. They are available to those who would rather repel insects and animal pests cheaply and safely, rather than spray with a pesticide that may be dangerous to people as well as pests.

These and many other simple remedies are among the offerings in a recently-published booklet which I compiled for the ecology-minded. It is called "The Housewife's Guide to Fighting Garden Pests" and it contains a tabular list of 35 different kinds of invaders commonly encountered in the house and garden, and the organic alternatives for ridding your domain of these pests.

OTHER TIPS on commercial pesticides considered "safe" as opposed to the "hard" pesticides are also enumerated. (Note: no pesticide is 100 per cent safe, ecologically speaking. They are all designed to kill.) But do you know which is the least harmful to birds, which can be absorbed in your system through a cut, or which kills bees as well as mosquitoes? Sevin, rotenone, malathion, pyrethrum, isotox, thuricide? My booklet tells you what to use and what not to use. It belongs in every home, pasted on the garage wall or garden supply shelf.

To receive a copy, readers may send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents per copy desired to me, c/o The Potting Shed, Box 260, Arlington Heights, 60006. The money will be turned over to the local ecology group, Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP), to carry on their work.

Expectant Parents Course Next Week

Newlyweds On West Coast

Living in Capitola, Calif., after their Sept. 18 wedding are Scott W. Gentry and the former Candy J. Rosetta. The couple traveled to the West Coast after their double ring marriage in the First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights, and a reception at Old Orchard Country club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Rosetta, 511 N. Stark Drive, Palatine. Scott's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Grant C. Gentry, 524 S. Patton, Arlington Heights.

They exchanged vows and rings by candlelight at two in the afternoon. The bride had just one attendant, Linda C. Harris of Rockford, her childhood friend. The groom chose Michael Mitchell of Mount Prospect as best man, and ushers were Randall L. Rosetta, the bride's brother, and Les Strzelecki of Arlington Heights.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her father, Candy wore a Victorian gown of white taffeta embroidered down the front in white and pastel blue daisies. The train and long sleeves also had accents of the two-toned embroidery. Candy's triple-tiered elbow length veil was held by a crown and bow of white taffeta in a daisy motif. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy tied with white satin streamers.

Her maid of honor wore royal blue taffeta trimmed with white lace. The dress was Empire styled and floor-length. With it she wore a Camelot cap and elbow-length veil in blue, and she carried blue bachelor buttons, white baby's breath and daisies tied with royal blue streamers.

THE MOTHERS OF the bridal pair each had a white orchid corsage for the afternoon service. Mrs. Rosetta was attired in an apricot ensemble and Mrs. Gentry in powder blue.

After the buffet luncheon and reception for 115 guests, the newlyweds started on a two-week trip to California.

Candy is a '70 graduate of Palatine High School and studied at Harper College for a year. Scott is a '67 graduate of Wheeling High and spent two years at Harper.

The BERTA HUMMEL 1971 CHRISTMAS PLATE

You Have Asked For It — You Have Waited For It...
AND HERE IT IS IN A VERY LIMITED QUANTITY

A treasure for connoisseurs is this first edition of the Berta Hummel Collector Series. It depicts the talent and perception of an artist whose portrayals of children are unequalled in this century. The Christmas Plate reproduces the charm, flowing beauty and simple grace of the little people Berta Hummel loved so deeply.

A masterpiece of delicate design and exquisite coloring, this first Christmas Plate features the art of the shy Bavarian girl who, so adored God's children, his flowers, birds and animals that she decided to devote her life to Him. After studying at the Munich Academy of Fine Arts, she became a Franciscan nun at the age of 25, taking the name of Sister Maria Innocentia $15.00

See our great collection of Collectors' Plates from the world's finest art and craft centers.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT:

by this country's most famous artist

ANDREW WYETH I "The Kucerna Farm"

This marks the first time that Andrew Wyeth has ever participated in a commercial venture of any kind involving his work. The plate is the first in a series created in association with Georg Jensen with and under the artist's guidance and control. The 8" porcelain plate is made in the USA and comes in its boxed at $50 each. The edition will be very limited and is restricted to two plates per customer. Orders taken subject to prior sale. Nursing Home Aide To Speak

Mrs. Jeannette R. Kramer, administrator of the Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine has been invited to speak on "Management in the Interest of Quality Care" at a conference at the State Department in Washington, D.C. on Nov. 2 which will develop national and regional policies for nursing home and long term care in the United States.

The three-day conference, from Oct. 31 to Nov. 2, entitled "The Nursing Home: Critical Issues in a National Policy," will focus on quality health care for the aged with particular emphasis on planning for future needs. The proposals which the conference will adopt will be submitted to the administration and the White House Conference on Aging, to be held later this year. The conference is sponsored by Duke University's Center for the Study of Aging and Human Development and the American Association for Retired Persons.

Some of the other speakers at the conference will be consumer advocate Ralph Nader, Sen. Frank Moss of Utah from the Senate Committee on Aging, Rep. David Pryor of Arkansas, HEW Secretary Elliott Richardson, Dr. Arthur Flemming, chairman of the White House Conference on Aging, and John Martin, administrator of the Administration on Aging.

Exit Planned In 1973

Glenbard To Leave MSL

GLENBARD NORTH High School, labeled the "black sheep" of the Mid-Suburban League by some coaches, will be leaving the conference in 1973.

The Herald learned of the school's withdrawal earlier this week from Albert Weber, principal of the Carol Stream school.

"I think it should be known," said Weber of the school's planned move from the MSL to the Tri-County Conference in a phone interview on Monday. "At the Mid-Suburban Conference meeting last week I told the men there, so it isn't at the rumor stage anymore. They (the league officials) are aware of it."

Glenbard North has already been accepted formally into the Tri-County, a league that is resigning for the future. Now the only action needed to be taken to make the change official is an okay from the Inter Suburban Association's (ISA) board of control.

The ISA, a governing body over five suburban leagues that total 45 high schools, will meet sometime in November for a semi-annual meeting at which time the Glenbard issue will be discussed. Dr. Edward Gilbert, president of the ISA and the District 214 superintendent of schools, said he "wouldn't foresee any problems" in the withdrawal.

However, even if there were some slight problems, Glenbard could leave anyway because the conference it is joining is not connected with the ISA. This drastic divorce is very remote, according to both Dr. Gilbert and Weber, for the separation will be beneficial to both the MSL and Glenbard.

Those who have not followed this school's athletic teams the past three years might ask, "Why move?" Weber, a former Glenbard East athletic director, is quick with the answers.

"The main reason is simply one of geography," he explains. "The schools in the Tri-County will be much closer to us. We're way on the southern end and every school in the Mid-Suburban is north of us."

"It's a problem every time you play away. It's not a problem for those schools (the rest of the MSL) because they only make the trip to Glenbard once. We're always traveling it seems."

A second most telling reason is the lack of victories by Panther teams on all levels against the rest of the league. The past two years these hapless teams have won just 73 events, lost 440 and tied 4 to easily cement Glenbard in the conference cellar.

As a comparison, Arlington — holder of the best record over that span — is 377-170-8. Palatine — unfortunate enough to have had two below par years — has nearly triple the wins (195-329-3) although finishing just ahead of Glenbard. The rest of the schools, needless to say, have also joined in feasting on the Panther entries.

"We haven't competed well in the league," admits Weber in the understatement of the month. "Our kids have just been tremendous and their school spirit is great, but I don't know how long it's going to last. Other than wrestling (26-11-2 over two years), we've really struggled . . . We just haven't had any success."

One of the reasons for this weak showing is the school's small size — 1500. All the rest of the league schools have much larger enrollments, some are nearly twice as big.

Glenbard had been expected to be of equal size with the others by now, but lack of growth in the school's drawing areas has prevented this. Presently many homes are being built which will help to increase enrollment in the future, but that doesn't help right now.

One of the school's coaches had this to say about another problem:

"We're not in their teachers' association and we never see them (other coaches). The only time we see them is when we play them in the conference meets and that's it . . . we're just kind of a bastard school . . ."

Two occurrences have helped clear the way for Glenbard's move — two more schools coming into the MSL and two leaving the Tri-County, both changes happening in 1973. Buffalo Grove and

Paul Logan

Hoffman Estates will have high schools to help take the place of Glenbard and Mundelein and Crown are exiting the T-C in favor of another league. The two open spots in the T-C will be filled by Glenbard and a new school, Glenbard South.

"I think we will do better in the Tri-County," says Weber. "I think a couple of wins in a row would do an awful lot for our athletic program."

Besides being able to compete more easily with the T-C teams, Glenbard will also have many natural rivalries, 100 per cent more than it has now.

"I could never understand how we wound up with them anyhow," commented one MSL head coach after hearing of the move. "I'd much rather play two games with a natural rival than play one game with a natural rival and travel to Glenbard and play a game where nobody comes."

"We don't seem to have much in common with them down there," he continued. "I think, in some cases, it is hard to prepare."

"I really think it's a good thing for them. They just haven't been able to compete since they began," he added.

"I think our association in the league, as far as enjoying it and so forth, has been most gratifying," says Neal Hudson, Glenbard's athletic director. "The Mid-Suburban is a fine league, there's no question about it. As to whether it's tough for us right now, I think it is."

And so, beginning the 1973-74 season, the MSL will be made up of just District 211 and 214 teams. This leaves all kinds of possibilities in regards to division play, such as each district being a division or formation of two leagues, one for each district. Either could take place in the future for District 211 is expected to grow as large or larger in number of high schools as District 214, presently the largest Chicagoland district with seven schools.

One thing's for certain; nobody's going to kick old Glenbard North around anymore after next year. All those "easy" victories over the Panthers will be gone.

The so-called "black sheep" of the league will be pasturing in the Tri-County and possibly doing some feasting of its own.

The parting of Glenbard from the league has been long overdue. It's just too bad it didn't come sooner.

Palatine Continues To Impress

Strong Area Showing In District CC Runs

The first test is over. Now comes a bigger hurdle — the sectional.

The Crystal Lake cross country sectional will be the next stop for seven Herald area schools that qualified in two district runoffs Tuesday.

Palatine and Fremd led qualifiers at the Fremd district at the Union 76 Oil grounds in Schaumburg, staging a close finish before Palatine finally won by four points. Schaumburg, from the same district, also earned a ticket to Crystal Lake by finishing fifth. Others were Crystal Lake, third and McHenry, fourth — both well behind Palatine and Fremd.

Top individual qualifier on the flat three mile course on the windy day was Gary Mandehr of Antioch with a 15:25.8 winning time. Following were Brian Barnett of Palatine with 15:27 and Mark Nugent of Fremd with 15:43. Arnold Jackson of Schaumburg, only a sophomore, was just two seconds behind Nugent.

From fifth through 10th, in order, were Bill Santino of Crystal Lake, Jamie Olson of Fremd, Bill Gross of Fremd, Rich Flynn of Cary Grove, John Diedrich of McHenry and Fred Miller of Palatine.

Others helping the winning cause of the Pirates were regulars Mark Johnson (11th), Steve Peterson (12th), Paul Kearns (14th), Dave Tehle (32nd) and Scott Williams (34th).

No Harper Game Today; Play Monday

Harper College was scheduled to square off with Elmhurst College's junior varsity team this afternoon at 3:30. However, the game won't be played.

"They thought they didn't have enough people for the jayvee game," said John Eliasik, Harper's head football coach. "They said they had only 11 people that didn't figure in their game last Saturday."

Harper, 1-5 on the season, could have chalked up today's scheduled game as a forfeit, but that's not Eliasik's way.

"I'd rather try and win one," he said. So the Hawks will be idle until Monday afternoon when they hope to take on another jayvee team — Illinois Benedictine College of Lisle. The school was formally known as St. Procopius College.

Harper will play the hosting Eagles at 3:30. The final game of the season will be at Northeastern College on Saturday, Nov. 6, at 3:30 p.m.

Fremd had Steve Inbody (16th), Ken Geheb (21st), Chuck Ruppenthal (24th) and Mike Rohrer (28th).

The sectional will be run not at Barrington as had been originally planned but at Crystal Lake's Veteran Acres Park on Route 176 at 11 a.m. Saturday. Members of the top three teams plus the top 10 individuals will qualify for the state meet at Peoria the following Saturday, Nov. 6.

Palatine, coming on amazingly strong late in the season, notched its third win within a week over Fremd, which until this year perennially dominated area cross country. The Pirates beat the Vikings in the biggest dual of the season just a week before and followed that with the Mid-Suburban League meet victory Saturday. Nugent was the individual winner in that one but Barnett avenged that victory Tuesday.

"Kearns ran the big race for us today to give us the lift we needed," said Palatine coach Joe Johnson. "And Barnett has been sick with a cold so he ran with a lot of courage."

"If any one of our guys has a lot of trouble, the others pick up the slack. That's the way it's been for us the last few meets."

"Fremd came on real strong today, especially Olson and Gross. They'll be tough in the sectional because they run real well on hills like there are at Crystal Lake."

Fremd coach Ron Menely agreed, saying, "I think the hilly course at Crystal Lake will be to our benefit. Our boys enjoy hilly courses and run best on them. They know how to attack a hill. All of the base mileage they run in the summer helps here."

"I think we have as good a chance as anybody to get downstate if everybody comes through in the sectional. We made a big improvement in the district and I was much more pleased."

Headed by defending state champion Maine East, five area teams qualified for the sectional meet this Saturday by taking the top five places in the Maine West District cross country meet.

Along with the top five teams from the district, the top 10 individual winners also qualified for the sectional. All but three of the top 10 harriers, however, came from the first five teams in the Maine West District.

Rick Runtz of Notre Dame was the district's individual champion and he was followed into the chute by teammate Gary Les.

Maine East's winning total was 60 points and Notre Dame took second with 108. Host Maine West was third with 120. Elk Grove fourth with 130 and Forest View fifth with 131. These five will attempt to qualify for the state meet in Peoria by finishing in the top three at the Barrington Sectional.

Maine South was sixth with 132, Evans-ton seventh with 153, Hersey eighth with 159, Arlington ninth with 201, Maine North 10th with 293, Niles North 11th with 304, St. Viator 12th with 312, Niles West 13th with 333, Niles East 14th with 432 and Rolling Meadows 15th with 445.

Joining the Maine West District qualifiers will be the Fremd District qualifiers Palatine, Fremd, Crystal Lake, McHenry and Schaumburg and the Warren District qualifiers New Trier West, Zion-Benton, Glenbrook North, New Trier East and Deerfield.

Runtz won the Maine West District with a 15:22 clocking and Les was second in 15:26. Brian Powell of Elk Grove was third in 15:27 and Kevin Wright of Maine West was fourth in 15:34. Maine East's John Lovasz was fifth in 15:36 and Mike Seifert was sixth in 15:38.

Frank Walsworth of Hersey qualified for the sectional by finishing seventh in 15:39. Larry Bates of Evanston was eighth in 15:39. Kevin Huffman of Maine South was ninth in 15:42 and Jim Wise of Forest View was 10th in 15:43.

Rounding out Maine East's contingent were Gary Marshak in 14th place in 15:58, Rick Phalen in 17th in 16:07, Pat Moyer in 18th in 16:08, Chris Bednarowicz in 22nd in 16:25 and Joel Aven in 46th in 16:57.

The other Notre Dame harriers were Tim Riley in 20th in 16:17, Dave Miro in 27th in 16:28, Jim Riley in 58th in 17:11, Rich Steinken in 79th in 17:39 and Phil Schloss in 87th in 18:03.

For Maine West, Wright was fourth in 15:34, Chip Barbour 12th in 15:53, Dan Long 29th in 16:30, Tony Winder 34th in 16:41, Kevin Skahan 41st in 16:52, Dean Kamin 45th in 16:56 and Scott Sedlack 84th in 16:58.

Powell was third for Elk Grove in 15:27 and Damian Archibald was 19th in 16:12. Fred Klink 21st in 16:18, Tom Ziffra 26th in 16:46, Dave Dell 51st in 17:02, David Jackson 54th in 17:07 and Larry Cryer 70th in 17:27.

Forest View's qualifying team had Wise in 10th in 15:43, Scott McGovney 15th in 16:02, Richard Nilsson 30th in 16:31, Bill Bates 32nd in 16:38, Ted Francis 44th in 16:55, Rich Sales 62nd in 17:16 and Steve Tyk 75th in 17:33.

For Hersey, Walsworth's seventh place came with a 15:39 clocking. Tom Burdick was 26th in 16:28, Ron Stephani 37th in 16:48, Tom Black 42nd in 16:53, John Jones 47th in 16:57, Dan Leider 64th in 17:17 and Dave Jones 90th in 18:07.

Arlington's leading harrier was Jim McGrath with a 16th place in 16:03, Tom Jarm was 28th in 16:30, Bill Schmid 50th in 17:01, Scott Barnett 52nd in 17:04 and Niel Haseman 55th in 17:07.

Kerry Arko paced Maine North with a 25th place finish and a 16:28 clocking while Bill Fancher was 43rd in 16:44. Mike Sharpe 66th in 17:23, Bob O'Donnell 67th in 17:23, Dan Jacobsen 92nd in 18:12, Jim Balmes 103rd in 19:10 and Mark Sikorski 106th in 19:25.

For St. Viator, Joe Sweeney was 24th in 16:27. Bill Ellsworth 53rd in 17:05, Joe Gunterman 71st in 17:28, Tom Orcheff 81st in 17:46 and Randy Hughes 83rd in 17:57.

Prospect's harriers were Tony Brocato in 23rd in 16:26, Karl Prinslow in 69th in 17:25, George Busse in 73rd in 17:31, Tom Scheisser in 78th in 17:38, Don Burger in 86th in 18:02 and Steve Brice in 89th in 18:06.

For Rolling Meadows, John Kreutzer was 74th in 17:31, Jerry Porters 82nd in 17:49, Mike Suerth 94th in 18:16, Richard Jensen 96th in 18:34, Mike Scott 99th in 18:42, Greg Sharon 100th in 18:54 and Carl Straumann 104th in 19:19.

Fremd Dominates Lower Levels In Cross Country

Fremd's chances of a perfect Mid-Suburban league cross country program for 1971 were dashed at the varsity level by after Viking sophomore and freshman Palatine and Forest View, but not until units had both rounded out unbeaten seasons with triumphs at the conference meet last Saturday.

Fremd's sophomore club edged Conant by 11 points to annex their loop crown. The Vike frosh nosed out Arlington by 12 points. Both outfits had posted 11-0 marks in dual competition.

At each underlevel the top places remained unchanged as a result of the conference meet, which was conducted in Lombard and hosted by Glenbard North. In soph action Fremd had gone in first, Conant second, Arlington third and Prospect fourth.

The Viking sophomores compiled 41 points to 51 for the Cougars, 72 for the Cards and 111 for the Knights. Individual winner was Fremd's Chuck Ruppenthal.

Individual frosh laurels went to Ken Higginbotham of Conant, Fremd, Arlington and Schaumburg had gone in 1-2-3 and the Vikings scored 49 for their second freshman title in a row while Arlington had 61 and Schaumburg 93.

THE FINAL YARDS. Heading for a collision course in the neck of the chute are Tom Ziffra (563) of Elk Grove and Hersey's Ron Ron Stephani (672). Ziffra held on for 36th in 16:46 while Stephani was a close 37th in 16:48. Maine East won the District but Elk Grove and Hersey's Ron Stephani (672). Ziffra Saturday's Sectional at Crystal Lake.

Meadows Boosters Participate In First School 'Homecoming'

The Mustang Booster Club took an active part in the final activities of Round-Up Week at Rolling Meadows High School this past week.

At last Thursday night's Pep Rally, co-captains of the football team, Bill Geegan and Jack Lloyd, dropped 180 miniature footballs from the snorkel unit of the Rolling Meadows Fire Department into the large crowd of spectators below. Those who caught numbered footballs received prizes corresponding with the numbers. Local business firms donated the footballs and prizes to the Booster Club. The event was planned and organized by Jack Kosmoski, Ways and Means Chairman.

In spite of the weather at Saturday night's game, Boosters once again stood the elements and served coffee to the dampened fans. The cheerleaders also received help in selling their "purple power" buttons. The last of the purple and white knit hats were sold but a second order has been placed and should arrive in two to three weeks.

The laides of the club came to the aid of the Student Council by donating cookies for their Saturday night dance, which climaxed the week's activities. Booster members who served refreshments and assisted as chaperones were Mayor and Mrs. Roland Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Brightwell and Mr. and Mrs. Don Rose.

Hawk Golfers Split In Warmup For Region Test

Harper College's golf team hosted College of DuPage and Morton at Palatine Hills Golf Course Tuesday, the final duals of the season and a warmup for the Region IV championships this weekend.

The Hawks only had one player break the 80 barrier, however, in splitting with the visitors. DuPage topped the locals 328 to 333 with the Hawks easily beating out Morton's lofty 365.

Joe Fritzel, a 91 and 88 shooter the previous two outings, fashioned a fine 78 to capture medalist honors for the first time this year. Had Fritzel received some support from his teammates, the Hawks might have upset the Chaparrals of DuPage, losers of only one dual this year.

The other three Hawks whose scores counted in the final totals were Scott McMillon (82), Frank Fenton (85) and Brad Stake (89).

North Austin Tips Cougars

The Elk Grove Cougars lost to North Austin 13-0 only in the score. Even with two key men still out of action, they outplayed their opponents completely and marched the ball downfield successfully all day.

Overanxiousness caused illegal motion penalties that cost the Cougars three touchdowns. Outstanding offensive players were Chuck Harris, Steve Moyer, Dave Tiritilli, and John Farley. On defense, the stalwarts were Scott Stromberg, John Venner, Ron Gore, and Scott Peterson, who just returned after a hand injury.

The Elk Grove Panthers were dropped into second place by North Austin, who beat the Panthers for the second time 26-6. The highlights of the game were Pat Flahive passes to Phil Taylor, one for 15 yards and the other for their lone touchdown. Outstanding defensive work was handed in by Kevin Moriarty.

In a game of hometown rivals, the Packers edged the Colts in a hard fought thriller. The game was marred by numerous fumbles and penalties, but both teams shrugged off adversity frequently to keep the tension and pressure on each other. The Packers got on the board first on a two yard burst off tackle by Tom Stringfellow with the extra point scored by John Woelfel.

The Colts came right back and on four consecutive first downs led by the running of Bob Kraus and Lance Shriner, Kraus ran a seven yard sweep for the TD, with Lance Shriner scoring the extra point. On a fumble recovery the Packers marched downfield and John Woelfel scored on an 18 yard run. PAT was no good. Neither team could do much on offense the rest of the game although Bobby Kees had a 36 yard touchdown — called back because of a pushing penalty.

Glen Ellyn Tops Raiders

The Raiders of the Hoffman Estates Athletic Association lost to Glen Ellyn, 21-0, in a hard-fought youth football game.

The winners were held scoreless through the first half. Midway through the third quarter, Glen Ellyn scored on its only completed pass of the day.

On the next series of plays, a Raider punt was blocked on their own 25-yard line and Glen Ellyn took over. A roughing-the-passer penalty gave Glen Ellyn a first down on the 15-yard line. On the next play came the second touchdown.

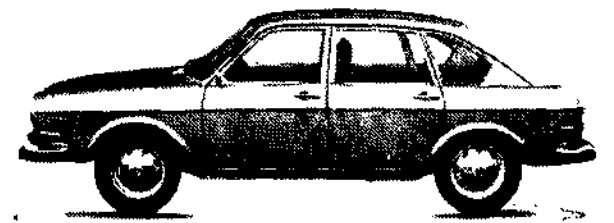

Jim Thomas returned the kickoff 32 yards. A pass to John Pellegrino and another run by Thomas moved the ball to the 20. Dan Miller gained another 14 yards, but a Raider pass was intercepted in the end zone to kill their best scoring chance of the game.

Four plays later Glen Ellyn scored the final TD on a stunning 90-yard run. Led by quarterback Red Rech, the Raiders gained a total of 190 yards. But fumbles and penalties at critical moments prevented any scores.

Defensive standouts for coach Sam Goranson were Brian O'Donnell, Mark Sander, Cary Lammond, Dale Brown, Dan Neswold, Ed O'Malley, Bill Armstrong, Joe Kuzik and Dan Miller. Leading ground gainers were Thomas, O'Donnell, Miller and Rech.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Bringing Down Home Costs

by DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI) — "By the end of this decade, at least two-thirds of all housing production in the United States will be factory produced."

This, the prediction of George Romney, Secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development, HUD, may, to some, conjure up row on row of flat-roofed, box-like dwellings in town after town across the nation. It shouldn't.

Industrialized, or systems, building is coming of age. There are problems still, but progress is being made — not only in the technical and cost aspects of factory building, but in the area of design as well.

By way of proof: the second Industrialized Building Exposition and Congress — INBEX-71 — with its displays of some 300 manufacturers including 32 total structures even one three-story model, building systems, components, building products, and equipment used in handling, transit and on-site erection, as well as consultative services in design, production and management marketing.

INBEX, held in the Kentucky Exposition Center, Louisville, will attract an audience of more than 15,000 professionals drawn from all phases of the building industry for five days Oct. 31 to Nov. 4 of seminars, panels, workshops and round tables on all facets of industrialized building.

The exposition is sponsored by the building industry publications of Cahners Publishing Co., in cooperation with the National Association of Building Manufacturers.

Marsh P. Trimble, Cahners vice president, publisher of Professional Builder magazine, and executive director of INBEX, discussing the role of industrialized building, said factory housing promises more and better homes for more Americans.

Rapidly soaring costs of land and labor, he noted, are increasing the selling price of new homes to the point where relatively few families can afford them. Only 29 per cent of American families, he said, can afford the normal monthly mortgage and upkeep costs on a house selling for more than $27,000, which is what the average new single family home costs today.

There always will be the conventional built, cost-is-no-factor, one-of-a-kind custom home, Trimble said, but if the goal is to be realized by decent housing for all Americans, and home ownership for those who want it, industrialized housing and land planning will have to provide the answer. They can, he believes.

Technically, Trimble said, just about anything that can be done by means of conventional on-site "stick" construction can and is being done in one form or another of industrialized building.

—Modular, three dimensional, cubical or box-shaped units, one or more to a structure, completely factory built and finished, often down to floor and wall coverings, and requiring only to be put in place and connected together at the building site.

—Componentized, assembled on site of a variety of factory-built component parts, assemblies and sub-assemblies.

—Precut or packaged, simply a conventionally-built house in which all of the structural parts are cut and assembled in a factory for erection on site with considerably less labor, time and expense than if all cutting and assembly work were done on site.

Mobile homes, Trimble explained, are a form of modular construction but, unlike other industrialized building, generally do not meet minimum FHA standards.

Technological advance has been rapid, Trimble said. Increasingly, too, he added, housing manufacturers are spending time and effort on design. They are beginning to realize that, often, a little extra effort can lift a design out of the ordinary and mediocre into the stimulating and exciting.

They are beginning, too, to follow their products off the assembly line to the site and to make sure they are utilized in a way to take advantage of their full "liability" potential. Increasingly, Trimble said, industrialized builders are concerned with planning for people. "Land planning, land design, and preservation of the earth's badly-abused resources are as important as architectural design in assuring the livability of a home, school, office building, institution — or any other type of building."

Virtually without exception, Trimble said, those in the industrialized housing field are spending time researching the matter of cost for, to realize full potential, industrialized housing must achieve the savings which have been promised. It will not be enough to reproduce today's house at today's cost, if all who need housing are to have it.

CHECK FOR $2,500 was recently presented to the Wheeling Park District by Tekton Homes during the grand opening of the Cedar Run project. The development includes 456 quadruminum units in Wheeling. A total of $5,000 will be presented by the building in return for waiver of condemnation rights on six acres of land in the project. The check was presented by Tekton Homes vice president and general manager Lewis Wright to Robert Ruley, acting district superintendent for the Wheeling Park District.

CHARTERS WERE recently issued to the following new corporations by Illinois Secretary of State John W. Lewis: Medical Pediatrics, Ltd., 321 W. Edward Kimbroff, to own and operate an employment agency.

TRANSIENCY in employment is adding to the apartment rental market according to John Smolenski, manager of the Walden project in Schaumburg. "Over one-third of our tenants stated in a recent survey that they were planning to be transferred within the next several years," he said. "Only slightly more, 39 per cent, said they were renting because it is not financially feasible right now." Smolenski noted that 25 per cent of the couples living in Walden townhouses did not want the upkeep problems of a house.

RESIDENTIAL CONSTRUCTION Employers Council held its annual meeting at the Sheraton Oakbrook Hotel in Oakbrook yesterday. A new regional bargaining concept was discussed at the session.

Board Meeting Is Tonight

Professionalism in making a sale will be discussed at tonight's meeting of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. It will be held at Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

The Oct. 28 meeting will include a film by J. Douglas Edwards on closing a realty sale. After the film a discussion will be led by John C. Chikeman of Accent on Selling.

The term closing is used as the final meeting between buyer and seller to complete transactions for the sale of a property. The film includes a discussion of various techniques involved in a closing.

A social hour will start at 6 p.m. dinner will be served at 7 p.m. The cost is a person.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards convention will be held Nov. 14-18 in Miami Beach, Fla. The Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards will have a hospitality room at the Fontainebleau Hotel in Miami during the convention.

The board recently announced the reinstatement of two firms into the board: George L. Busse & Co. in Mount Prospect and H. Myles Gordon & Associates, Arlington Heights.

Contractors' Convention Is Set For Today

Productivity and collective bargaining procedures in the construction industry will be spotlighted at a day-long convention of general contractors on Thursday, Oct. 28, at the Regency Hyatt House.

John E. Healy II, president of the Associated General Contractors of America, will examine Productivity & the Construction Industry as the keynote speaker of the conference sponsored by the Builders' Association of Chicago.

Following morning business sessions examining the impact of legislative changes on the industry getting the most out of association seminars and marketing techniques useful to contractors, BAC members and guests will be addressed by construction journalist Peter Cockshaw at a noon luncheon.

Cockshaw, who is publisher and editor of Construction Labor News & Opinion, a confidential national newsletter to industry executives will present a critical appraisal of the machinery for collective bargaining and the needs for change.

Afternoon business sessions will deal with the benefits of regional bargaining, how members can better utilize association services, the proposed new minority relations program, and application of new health and safety regulations.

The meeting, open to personnel of BAC members and non member contractors who operate in Cook, DuPage, and Lake counties, will conclude with a president's reception. Registrations are being accepted at the BAC.

Set Seminars On Cash Flow

How to prevent logjams in an apartment building's cash flow will be the subject of two seminars to be presented in November by the Portland Cement Association.

The meetings titled the dollars and sense of concrete apartments are open to anyone interested in the financing planning or construction of apartment buildings.

Subjects to be discussed include the why the initial cost is only one part of building investment analysis, and different aspects of a building's cash flow.

A Nov. 2 seminar will be presented at the Glen Ellyn Lombard Holiday Inn in Glen Ellyn. A Nov. 9 session will be held at the Chicago-Northbrook Holiday Inn Northbrook. Sessions begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. Registration for the meeting is at 8:30 a.m. The cost is $20 a person including lunch. Additional information is available from Jack Barnes, Midwest regional manager at the association office in Skokie.

Diversity In Financing

An unusual degree of diversity exists in the mortgage market, with an applicant finding opportunity to match loan maturity, rate, and down payment to his financial condition and outlook, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB).

The semiannual survey of the mortgage market conducted by the Research Department of NAREB among 200 Realtors in selected areas of the country disclosed also that although costs to the average home buyer are somewhat higher than they were last March, they are far below those of a year ago.

Mrs. Catherine Martini, director of research, pointed out that at the time this survey was conducted, the wage, price, and rent freeze had been in existence for four weeks. It is now evident, she added, that during this period the Federal Reserve Board was acting to expand credit. Simultaneously, federal agencies either administering or associated with mortgage credit programs continued to make every effort to widen the opportunity for home purchase. Interest rates and loan availability should be reviewed in this light, she said.

"For many young families, the long-term low equity conventional loan, with private mortgage insurance, makes home buying feasible earlier than anticipated. For the family with sizable assets, a short-term, high equity loan with a favorable rate is now available in many areas. There has never been a financial climate in which so many lending institutions were offering variation in loan characteristics," Mrs. Martini said.

"This major feature of the market is advantageous not only to buyers but to potential sellers who have hesitated to offer their properties because of costs that might revert to them," she said.

For a conventional loan on an existing house in a good neighborhood, interest rates in the 7 1/2 to 8 per cent range dominated the market in mid-September, the survey disclosed. A year ago, quotations of a prevalent rate below 8 per cent were infrequent. At that time, a charge of 8.5 or above was common in more than two-thirds of the nation.

The trend for rates for a conventional loan on a new house followed a similar pattern. Although the same in many areas, costs in a few communities are a bit lower than those for a mortgage secured by an existing unit, Mrs. Martini added.

These averages, however, conceal a broad range of terms available, she pointed out. Some buyers are able and willing to make a substantial down payment. It may represent savings, inheritance, or the equity from a previously owned home. With a 40 to 50 per cent down payment, these borrowers may obtain a 6.75 or 7 per cent loan, or with a 30 per cent equity, the rate may be 7.25 or 7.50 per cent.

As to the availability of mortgage funds, the respondents in two-thirds of the country reported ample supplies for an existing home mortgage in a good neighborhood.

The supply was moderate in more than a fourth of the country. Availability is superior to that prevailing a year ago, but somewhat below the favorable climate of last spring, Mrs. Martini said.

For the new house, resources are ample in almost three-fourths of the nation and moderate in a fourth. The situation compared to a year ago approximates that for existing homes.

"Although an improved private market for FHA-insured home loans, with declining discounts, was widely expected last March, it did not materialize," Mrs. Martini commented. "Instead, sources dwindled, and, beginning in late April, yields on competing investments attracted funds from the FHA mortgage market."

According to our panel of respondents, the private market for FHA insured section 203 home loans is either thin or virtually non-existent in about half of the market areas, she added.

The first cool days of fall are here. The American Gas Association suggests that now, before the cold weather arrives, is the time to prepare for winter.

If the pilot on your furnace has been turned off, follow the instructions on the plate attached to the furnace to light it. When there are no instructions, check with your local utility.

Don't attempt to light the furnace pilot until you are sure you know how to do it correctly.

Once the pilot is lit, set the thermostat at its lowest setting, and make sure the burner valves and the electricity to the furnace are turned on. Now, turn the thermostat up to start the furnace, and let it run long enough to be sure that it is working properly. Be sure the area around the furnace is clean and uncluttered. Lubricate the furnace blower motor if needed, and change the filter.

Check all heat registers and radiators to be sure they are free from obstructions, turned on and producing heat. Now, simply set the thermostat at the temperature you find most comfortable, and leave it alone.

If the heating system doesn't seem to be working properly, this is one area in which you should not try to do-it-yourself. Call your local utility company or heating contractor for assistance.

Follow these simple hints now, and later you won't be left out in the cold.

She'll Manage Celebrity Room

Cheri Blessing has been promoted to manager of the Horseshoe Club Celebrity Room in the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

An Arlington Heights resident, she was assistant manager before her new appointment.

Fuel Oil Supply Outlook Is Good

Local oil heat associations across the country, including the area's own Oil Heat Marketers Association (speaking through T. E. Gorman, managing director), are issuing the following statement on fuel oil prospects for winter 1971-72.

At a time when utility customers are anxiously watching the headlines for news of what they can expect in the way of supplies this winter, owners of oil-heated homes can relax in the knowledge that their dealers are staying on top of the fuel oil situation for them, with every reason to be optimistic. Based on weather predictions and past experience, we are able to project what domestic heating demands the coming cold months will bring, and, as of now, the type of No. 2 light oil used in most homes is in adequate supply.

Management Meeting Set

National convention of the Institute of Real Estate Management will be held Nov. 11-16 in Miami Beach, Fla.

The meeting will be highlighted by the inauguration of Paul Riddle of Pittsburgh, Pa., as president. The event will be held in the Carillon Hotel.

Educational sessions are planned during the convention. Participants in a discussion of condominiums will include Robert Cagann of Arlington Heights, J. Clair Lanning of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Aaron Chaney of Honolulu, Hawaii.

The use of computers in property management and the Department of Housing and Urban Development's role in management will also be discussed.

Want A Purebred Arabian Show Horse? Random Draw To Select Another Winner

Among other things, Napoleon Bonaparte had a thing about horses, Arabian horses to be exact. He always rode a chunky, magnificent looking Arabian into battle; and, it has even been said, that his well-known appreciation of the fair sex was subordinate to his love for his gallant steeds.

This fact, coupled with his fondness for cognac, has created what has become an annual feature of the National Horse Show to be held at Madison Square Garden, Nov. 2-9. To commemorate his 202nd birthday, the Courvoisier firm of Jarnac, France, will give away a purebred Arabian show horse, a dapple gray that closely resembles the Emperor's favorite mount.

Nearly a half a million entries were received for a similar Arabian last year, won by the wife of a New York banker and her brother, former Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor.

The winner will be selected by random draw and anyone can enter. It is not necessary to be at the Show to win the three-year-old gelding, Al-Marah Napoleon, bred by Mrs. Bazy Tankersley at her Al-Marah Farm in Barnesville, Md.

Entry blanks are free and may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Courvoisier Horse Contest, Room 1206, 509 Madison Avenue, New York N.Y. 10022.

The winner will be chosen at the final performance on the evening of Nov. 9.

Builder Reports Record Revenues

Record revenues and increased earnings were reported by the 3H Building Corp., based in Rolling Meadows, for the fiscal year ended June 30.

Major activities during the past year included concentration on the moderate income housing market, a cost control program and the implementation of a new marketing program.

Gross revenues for the past year reached $26,288,588, up 63 per cent from the $16,145,321 reported a year earlier. Net income was $723,889 compared to $380,402 the previous year. Earnings per share totaled 71 cents compared to 1970 earnings of 42 cents a share, representing an increase of 70 per cent. The company sold 678 houses in the past year compared to 431 a year earlier.

As an example of its successful marketing program the company cited its Plymouth Square project. It featured a three-bedroom ranch model priced under $21,500. It was substantially sold out in six weeks. The Madison, one of the company's Dimension 70 models won a first place design award from the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland.

Contracting and Consulting Corp., a full line construction service subsidiary, serves as general contractor or construction manager for many firms.

Stewart Grill recently stepped down from his position as chairman of the board of directors to become the chairman of the executive committee. He remains a member of the board of directors.

George Cadar, formerly executive vice president, is now the president and chief administrative officer of the building firm. Ronald J. Benach, formerly president, became chairman of the board of directors and chief executive officer.

Rounding out its management team, 3H appointed Edward Kirk vice president for forward planning and marketing; and Peter Bianchini as vice president of operations.

Bussart Gets New Post At Motorola

Dean A. Bussart, 411 S. Princeton Ave., Arlington Heights, has been named manager, military sales for the consumer products division of Motorola Inc., according to James E. Stewart, director of international operations.

Dean A. Bussart

Bussart had been manager, marketing administration for the consumer products division's international department. Previously he spent twelve years with Pure Oil Co. in various sales capacities.

He is a graduate of the University of Illinois where he majored in marketing. He holds an MBA from the University of Michigan.

Ritchie Company Announces Sales

Ritchie, Realtors, of Wheeling announced that its sales this year have exceeded $4½ million in conjunction with the Northwest Suburban Computer Multiple Listing Service. The company originally projected $5 million in realty sales for the year.

"We now fully expect to exceed that goal and will probably finish out the year in excess of $6 million," said Donald Ritchie. He said the company's average sale occurred within 28 days after a property was placed in the market.

The company also announced that four of its personnel are million dollar salesmen. They include Donald Ritchie, Charles Ritchie, Cliff Pastorski and Tom Durnan.

The company plans to open another sales office in the area after the first of next year.

Horn To Manage Des Plaines Walgreen

Stuart M. Horn, R.Ph., of Skokie, has been named manager of the Walgreen Drug Store at 1485 Ellinwood, Des Plaines.

Horn joined the firm as a sales clerk in 1959. Following his graduation from the University of Illinois College of Pharmacy in 1962, he was promoted to assistant store manager. He served various local Walgreen Stores in that capacity until 1970, when he was promoted to manager of a Park Ridge Walgreen's.

Has New Office In Schaumburg

Dick McArthur was accepted this fall as an active member in the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

He recently opened an office in Schaumburg at 1685 W. Wise Road. McArthur has eight sales associates.

The new McArthur firm has diversified into residential, commercial and industrial sales. In addition the realty company manages about 300 apartment units.

McArthur attended Northern Illinois University, majoring in accounting. He holds the Graduate, Realtors Institute certification. His previous experience includes several years as assistant sales manager for Campanelli Brothers. He worked in sales for another area realty firm where he achieved the $1 million mark for three years.

A resident of Schaumburg since 1959, McArthur has a list of "firsts" to his credit. He was the first resident in the Weathersfield project, charter member in the Schaumburg Jaycees, charter member in the newly formed Greater Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry, developer of the first completed office structure in Schaumburg (Fairlane Office Building) and owner of the first locally owned realty office.

McArthur lives at 521 S. Auburn Lane in Schaumburg. He and his wife Mary Ann have five children.

Portion Control Promotes DeKoatz

Portion Control Industries, whose major division is Pronto Foods, has promoted Carl L. DeKoatz of Mount Prospect, to production manager and elected him to the firm's executive committee.

The announcement was made by Norman L. Chapman, president of the Chicago-based firm. P.C.I., a subsidiary of Hershey Foods, is one of the nation's leading producers and marketers of frozen, fully cooked foods for the food service industry.

DeKoatz will be responsible for supervising processing operations at P.C.I.'s General Processing Center, scheduling production, coordinating production with shipping and also handling the production aspects of P.C.I.'s entire packaging program.

See Upswing In Housing

The housing industry will usher in a bull market of major proportions in the early weeks of 1972 according to Jackson W. Goss, president of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, Mass.

Investors Mortgage Insurance, a subsidiary of Continental Investment Corp., also of Boston, is in the private mortgage insurance industry.

"With more than 2 million starts assured for 1971, housing has proved conclusively that consumer demand can be delayed and postponed but never totally stifled," Goss said. "It appears that other industries will not be able to match the blistering pace which has been set by the housing industry, at least during the last three months of 1971. However, some of them will begin to catch up in the early weeks of 1972, and that's when the market will really head upward."

The coming bull market, he believes, will be fueled by a continued high rate of consumer savings and the Federal Reserve Board's continuing efforts to maintain a strong money supply. "Much of the market's current wait-and-see attitude prevails because of the yet unanswered questions on President Nixon's new economic game plan. While some short-term effects of the new plan are beginning to take shape, there will be a few definitive results until Congress acts on certain of Mr. Nixon's specific proposals," Goss said.

However, he adds, two economic facts of life have been reaffirmed during the past nine months: any backlog of demand must eventually be satisfied; and economic trends are not easily reversed, especially overnight.

"It has taken a long time for the housing industry to reach its present level of activity. This will be a record year and 1972 should be even better with housing starts reaching and possibly passing the 2.3 to 2.4 million mark. The next two months will see the air clear somewhat on Mr. Nixon's new game plan and consumers should begin to loosen their purse strings as the Christmas buying season rolls around," said Goss. "And, with the housing industry in the forefront, all of these factors will furnish added impetus in the economy, giving it a mighty shove into the bull market of 1972," he concludes.

Two Get New Posts At Compact Industries

Compact Industries, Inc., Wheeling, board of directors has announced the promotion of Martin Smoler of 138 Selwyn Lane, Buffalo Grove, to vice president. He was previously general sales manager for Compact.

As corporate vice president Smoler will be responsible for the sales and marketing functions of the various sales divisions.

He joined compact in February of 1968 as a regional field sales manager in the midwest. He was later promoted to national sales manager in charge of franchise dealers and in early 1970 was promoted to general sales manager in charge of all sales divisions.

In another management move, Compact has announced the appointment of

Martin Smoler

George C. Rhinehart of 1108 Sycamore Lane, Mount Prospect, as national accounts manager.

He previously served as national accounts manager for General Foods Corp. for 23 years and most recently was national accounts manager for R. J. Reynolds Foods.

Rhinehart's responsibility will involve the overall supervision and direction of Compacts national account program to nationally known chains involved in vending, fast food service, as well as the military markets.

Recreation Is Condo Feature

Village on the Lake condominiums in Elk Grove Village offer a variety of recreational facilities according to Allen J. Davis, United Development Co. vice president.

Davis said the community is being built on the tip of a 35 acre lake, ideal for boating. A swimming pool and tennis courts are also available.

An exterior maintenance program is provided at Village on the Lake.

All units include carpeting in the living and dining rooms and bedrooms, a dishwasher, oven, disposal, and refrigerator.

Village on the Lake is a $22 million project which will include 700 condominium units.

Models, located on Biesterfeld Road between Rt. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, are open daily for inspection.

Realty Lending Is Accelerated

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago recently reported on mobile home credit and other aspects of commercial bank activity in the Seventh District.

MOBILE HOME CREDIT grew faster than total consumer credit at member banks in each district state over the year ended June 30. The gain was greatest in Iowa, where the share of consumer credit accounted for by loans on mobile homes, excluding travel trailers and similar recreational vehicles, increased from 5.6 per cent in mid-1970 to 7.2 per cent this June. Mobile home credit accounted for more than 8 per cent of consumer credit in Indiana and Michigan on June 30 but was relatively less important in Wisconsin (3.6 per cent) and Illinois (3.0 per cent).

The increased importance of mobile home credit reflects both a greater number of units purchased and higher per unit prices, partly due to the popularity of large, more elaborate units.

LOAN GROWTH varied markedly among member banks in district states outside the five major cities in the year ending June 30. Moreover, this variation was especially great among the small banks (less than $5 million deposits). In Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, the largest gains occurred at banks with deposits of $5-$15 million. In Iowa, the largest gain was recorded for the smallest banks.

REAL ESTATE LENDING by commercial banks has accelerated in the past year. On June 30, real estate loans on the books of district member banks were 5 per cent greater than at mid-1970. This compares with a gain of only 2 per cent in the previous year. Gains in the most recent year ranged from about 8 per cent in Wisconsin to about 2 per cent in Iowa. In each district state except Indiana, an increased share of the loan volume was on multifamily residential properties. Loans secured by one-to-four-family residences declined relative to the total, although they are still the major component.

Farm mortgages also declined as a proportion of the total in Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin, but rose in Indiana. Loans secured by nonfarm, nonresidential properties (commercial buildings, churches, etc.) increased relative to all real estate loans in Illinois, Iowa, and Michigan.

NEGOTIABLE CERTIFICATES of deposit (CDs) issued by major commercial banks rose sharply during September, despite heavy maturities at the mid-month tax date. Outstandings at the large weekly reporting banks in this district increased 6 per cent, compared with a 4.6 per cent gain in September 1970. A year ago, banks were moving aggressively to restore these deposits from the low levels to which they had fallen in the 1969 period of monetary restraint. Nationwide, last month's gain amounted to 4.6 per cent, compared with a 7.2 per cent gain a year earlier.

The current CD level represents an all time high, with district banks accounting for $4.2 billion of the $33 billion total. Posted rates on 60-89 day CDs are down about 1/4 per cent since mid-August, while the yields on Treasury bills of comparable maturity are down about 3/4 per cent.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System has issued a new regulation, effective November 1, entitled "Rules Governing Borrowers Who Obtain Securities Credit." The purpose of Regulation X is to implement the provisions of Title III of the Foreign Bank Secrecy Act (enacted October 26, 1970) that relate to margin credit requirements in securities transactions. Regulation X requires borrowers to comply with the margin regulations already applicable to U.S. lenders extending such credits, as specified in Regulations T, U, and G. If a person residing in the United States borrows abroad, he must comply with the margin requirements that would apply if the credit were obtained in the United States. Exempt are U.S. Citizens living abroad with less than $5,000 in outstanding security credit, foreign affiliates of U.S. firms that obtain credit to finance certain of their operations, and foreign borrowers acting for U.S. parties when granted an exemption.

The regulation will apply to credit extended, arranged, or maintained after Oct. 31, with restrictions on substitutions and withdrawals from margin accounts applicable on May 1, 1972 to credit extended after Oct. 26, 1970.

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

Home Building Activity Tops Last Year's Totals

Total housing permits in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area more than doubled the permits issued last year in the September Bell Federal Survey of New Building. The monthly report indicates that new housing permits totaled 7,455 compared to 3,665 units reported in September, 1970.

This marks the fourth consecutive month permits for apartments in the Chicago area reached a postwar record. September home permits were at the highest level for the month in 16 years.

Several Northwest Suburban communities are among the "top 10" in home building for all of 1971 according to the report. The year's home building leaders include: Bolingbrook, 1,313 permits; Schaumburg, 849; Arlington Heights, 368; Hanover Park, 800; Streamwood, 628; Tinley Park, 540; Hoffman Estates, 483; Bloomingdale, 411; Downers Grove, 247; and Wheaton, 409.

Apartment permits were issued in the six-county area during September for 4,114 units. This is 97 per cent increase over the 2,089 units reported in the same month last year. The City of Chicago reported 582 apartment units compared to 149 units last year; unincorporated areas had 850 apartment units against only 6 units a year earlier. In the suburbs, apartment permits increased 46 per cent from 1,934 last year to 2,872.

Apartment permits issued in Northwest Suburban communities include: Arlington Heights, 192; Elk Grove Village, 95; Mount Prospect, 324; Schaumburg, 42; and Wheeling, 244.

Single-family home permits in the Chicago metropolitan area rose to 3,341 from 1,576 last year during September, an increase of 112 per cent. The City of Chicago reported 354 home permits, more than three times the 93 reported a year earlier. Home permits more than doubled in the unincorporated areas, increasing from 244 last year to 498. Home permits in the suburbs increased from 1,259 a year ago to 2,489.

Single family home permits issued in the Northwest Suburbs include the following: Arlington Heights, 32; Des Plaines, 6; Elk Grove Village, 73; Hoffman Estates, 14; Mount Prospect, 21; Palatine, 19; Rolling Meadows, 3; Schaumburg, 162; and Wheeling, 5.

The September seasonally adjusted annual housing rate rose 12 per cent from the August rate. Permits were issued at annual rate of equivalent to 78,780 housing units. This compared to the August rate equivalent to 70,260 housing units.

All housing at the end of the first nine months of the year totaled 45,944 units, 67 per cent above the 27,446 units during a comparable period last year. Homes improved 85 per cent over last year and apartments increased 57 per cent from a year ago.

The total value of all permits issued in the six-county area (residential, commercial and industrial) totaled $302,304,834. This is an increase of 170 per cent over the last year's total of $111,983,053.

Four Receive Awards From Prudential

Richard W. Bokelmann, 629 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, and Des Plaines residents John Resudek, 115 Dover Dr.; James M. Degenhart, 9518 Dee Rd., and Vic Alesi received cash awards totaling $250 from the Prudential Insurance Co. in recognition of their progress in continuing business education.

Employees of Prudential's Mid-America Home Office, Chicago, they were honored at a special luncheon as completers of courses in the nationwide insurance education program of the Life Office Management Assn. Institute.

Alesi, Bokelmann and Resudek received Prudential awards of $75 each for completing "Fundamentals of Life Insurance" and "Life Company Operations."

Degenhart, a previous completer of these courses, this year added an advanced course, "Agency and Home Office Administration," to his credits and was presented with an additional $25 award.

Alesi is a member of Prudential's Ordinary Agencies Administration Division. Bokelmann is a methods examiner in the Systems Division. Degenhart is an assistant section supervisor in Electronic Operations. Resudek is an underwriting approver in the New Business Division.

The four area residents are among 30 employees of the Mid-America Home Office who shared in a total of $1,900 in cash awards from the company for passing certain Institute examinations this year.

Adds Three Offices

The opening of three new offices and plans for additional outlets was announced by Robert A. Kole, head of Kole Real Estate, Ltd. The company's three original offices are located in Des Plaines, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

"The real estate business has been extremely successful in the last two years," said Kole commenting on the rapid expansion of this realty firm. Within the last two weeks offices are open at 208 E. Rand Road in Mount Prospect (also company headquarters); 1000 Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights; and 135 N. Northwest Hwy. in Park Ridge.

Each office will be a full service operation with a secretary and sales manager in addition to the regular sales staff according to Kole.

A Realtor who measures success in the number of satisfied customers, Kole said he plans to double his business within a year. "We're doing around $12 million annually in the first three offices," he said. We have 45 sales people on the staff and we plan to double this number." The Kole company's three original office average some 40 real estate closings a month.

"We will open three more offices after the first of next year," Kole said. "One will be in Hoffman Estates and another in Schaumburg and the location of the third is undecided, according to Kole.

He is recruiting sales associates to staff the new offices through weekly training sessions held at the Mount Prospect office.

Kole is initiating a uniform in navy and white for sales personnel. He said the firm sponsors a continuing educational program for its sales personnel, in the mechanics and psychology of realty sales.

"Buying a home is an emotional experience," Kole said. "People need someone in sales to give them confidence." He believes that the sales person can be

Robert A. Kole

A key to his real estate success is devotion to listings, Kole said. "We sell 75 per cent of the properties we list," in cooperation with other brokers in the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors Multiple Listing Service," Kole said.

Managers of the new Mount Prospect office are Maxine Kokonas and Larry Hamm. The Park Ridge office is managed by Pauline Squire and the Arlington Heights operation is managed by Joe Zwierzinski.

Kole specializes in strip shopping center sales throughout the state in addition to area residential sales. He formerly managed a retail store.

A graduate of Ohio Christian, Kole is active in the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. He is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and serves on its multiple listing committee as well as its director of advertising.

Kole Real Estate Ltd., firm has specialized in the sale of lower priced homes. The firm will sell homes in all price ranges with the addition of three new offices, he said.

Revised Realty Book Announced

A second edition of the book, Industrial Real Estate, has just been published by the Society of Industrial Realtors.

The 642-page book, written by William N. Kinnard Jr. and Stephen D. Messner, covers all phases of the industrial real estate field — site selection, development, marketing, leasing, financing, appraising, industrial parks, rehabilitation, investment, management, zoning, and taxation.

The new edition incorporates the changes affecting industrial real estate which have occurred since 1967, when the first edition of the book was published: new trends in financing, including equity participation; new tax laws; environmental problems facing industry; and corporate investment in real estate, among others, in its 17 chapters.

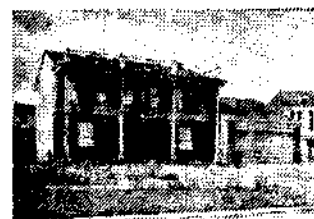

Some 14,000 copies of the highly acclaimed first edition, written by Kinnard, are now in circulation. In addition to being used as a reference by those in industrial real estate and related fields, the book has been used as a text for courses at universities and colleges.

It contains more than 100 tables, charts, forms, and illustrations.

Kinnard is associate dean of the School of Business Administration at the University of Connecticut. Messner is director of the Center for Real Estate and Urban Economic Studies at Connecticut. They prepared the up-dated second edition with the cooperation of members of the Society of Industrial Realtors — specialists in marketing industrial properties and meeting the real estate needs of industry. The Society is a professional affiliate of National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Copies of the new edition may be ordered at $12.50 each from the Society of Industrial Realtors, 1300 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Seeking Visual Harmony

A modern suburban structure compatible with surrounding residential and commercial development was the goal of architect Richard Barancik in the design of Walden Office Square in Schaumburg.

The first of three five-story buildings that will make up the complex now is under construction in the eastern section of Walden, a joint venture of William J. Walsh and Associates and McCormick Investments. Walsh, president of Walden Investment Corp., said the developers selected Barancik, Conte and Associates, Chicago, as architects for the Office Square because of the firm's experience in designing not only major city office buildings but suburban structures.

"In developing the architecture for Walden Office Square," Barancik said, "we kept two thoughts uppermost: An interior as up-to-date as that of the most modern Class A downtown building. Exterior proportions more human, more residential than would be possible in a major city location."

In addition to proportion, exterior appearance was vital, because of the interrelationship of Walden Office Square with residential and other commercial structures in the over-all Walden development, according to Walsh.

Barancik worked closely with Sasaki-Walker and Associates, Sausalito, Calif., landscape architect firm that is land-use consultant for the entire 155-acre Walden tract, bounded by the Northwest Tollway, Meacham and Algonquin Roads and Arbor Drive.

The result will be a lake-side grouping of three buildings. The offwhite panels of exposed, washed-gravel aggregate, with which the structures will be surfaced, will offer a subtle contrast with the greens of the plantings and the bronzes of the buildings' tinted windows, Barancik said.

Inside, 15,000-square-foot floors will offer great flexibility in space planning because of wide spans and a minimum number of columns. Corrugated metal decking, that serves as the lower forms for the poured concrete slab floors, also is an integral part of the structural steel framework, Barancik said.

"In Walden Office Square we will have two features that are unique in suburban office construction," he added. "Four 'wet' columns on each floor will enable facilities requiring water or sewer connections to be planned beyond the elevator core area. The elevators will be Otis high-speed/electric traction equipment, in contrast with the hydraulically operated lifts installed in many suburban buildings."

Buildings will be centrally air-conditioned, with all-electric heating and cooling, and comfort levels controlled in individual offices. Lobbies will be paneled in oak and travertine, and all public corridors will be carpeted, Barancik said.

Visual harmony is essential in a development the size of Walden, Walsh added. "We wanted the office buildings to be distinctive — thus the white exposed-aggregate panels, compared with the dark brick and redwood used in the townhouses and apartments to the west," Walsh said. "And Walden Office Square will have its own man-made lake, separated from the landscaped lakes in the residential sections."

"The motor hotel to be built just north of the Office Square lake will offer an architectural transition," Walsh added. "Elements of both types of exterior materials will be incorporated to provide a visual link between the offices and residential units."

The 6-million-gallon lake, and the landscaped plaza separating it from the office buildings, will serve an additional purpose, Walsh said. "We wanted more than office structures, with ample parking, arising from the prairie," he said. "We believe that occupants of suburban offices and their visitors are entitled to enjoy open spaces, in as pleasing and relaxing an environment as we can provide."

Pepper Construction Co. is the general contractor for Walden.

Romanek-Golub and Co., Chicago real estate and development firm, is leasing agent for Walden Office Square, the first unit of which will be ready for occupancy early in 1972.

Hard-Core Unemployed Trained As Managers

Hard Core unemployed trained 2-36 hold The challenges and outstanding results of a property management program for the hard-core unemployed conducted by J. Clair Lanning, CPM (Certified Property Manager), St. Petersburg, Fla., inspired him to urge others to sponsor similar training.

Writing on Management Training Programs for the Hard-Core Unemployed in the current issue of the Journal of Property Management, he described the training program initiated by his firm — Real Estate Management Co. — in cooperation with the JOBS Program of the National Alliance of Businessmen. Training contracts were subsidized by the Department of Labor.

The Journal is published bimonthly by the Institute of Real Estate Management, a professional affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Four separate training programs were set up, Lanning related. The maintenance program, lasting seven months, takes the trainee through all phases of work needed in the residential apartment building, including elementary plumbing and electrical maintenance.

Other programs teach trainees to become general office employees and residence managers. A fourth program enables graduates to advance to added responsibilities, so that a resident manager can become a building supervisor having several buildings under his jurisdiction.

Success stories are impressive. One woman, prior to entering the program, was a motel housekeeper. Today, after completing all phases of the training, she manages three offices and sits on the executive committee of the author's firm, he said.

"In recruiting for our training program, one of the first problems we found was that our normal employee application form was absolutely worthless," Lanning explained. "Too many people had police or prison records, too many needed assistance in filling out the forms because they couldn't read or write. We felt the latter could pose many problems — if a load of janitorial supplies was sent to a building, the employee would be unable to tell, for example, whether the invoice was for nine brooms or three brooms.

"Therefore, it was necessary for our federal government contract to start with an education program. We were able to make an agreement with our local school system to teach reading and writing in our employee training program, and those needing this training spent approximately 10 hours per week learning to read and write.

"We also find that many of the people in our training program need constant motivation in order to fulfill their training requirements; therefore, our contract called for a psychologist and/or social worker to assist them. The social worker was able to reach and communicate more quickly, for we found that although we could talk and talk and talk, we got little results because someone was talking at them and not with them. The social worker worked out such things as baby sitters, what transportation was necessary to get to and from work on time, absenteeism, and the like."

Approximately 25 per cent of those entering the program complete it, Lanning said. This is considered a high figure for hard-core unemployables. Buoyed by the success of this kind of minority group training, Lanning's firm also has started a program to train managers for senior citizen housing.

As a direct result of the training program for lower rental housing employees, maintenance costs have dropped from 37 per cent to 22 per cent in four years. Realtor Lanning is immediate past president of the Tampa Bay Chapter of IREM and is chairman of the Seminars and Accredited Programs Committee at the national level.

Lookers And Buyers Use Touring Guide

A busy fall home shopping season is expected by Chicago area homebuilders as the demand for new housing continues to percolate throughout the area, said Morton E. Silfen, sales vice president of Hoffman Rosner Corp.

He reports there is a much higher percentage of home seekers than idea hunters among visitors. "You are always going to get some visitors who are more interested in decorating ideas than they are in new housing," he said.

"You can always tell which is which because people just shopping for decorating ideas are lookers, not talkers. Judging from the high level of sales occurring in 1971 and the number of serious discussions between salespeople and visitors, there seems to be more earnest shopping for new homes," Silfen noted.

Silfen said that whether your mission is to find a new home or a decorating idea there is a right way and a wrong way to tour a model home to make it an enjoyable and efficient experience.

His advice is based on experience in its new developments. Hoffman Rosner Corp., based in Hoffman Estates, currently has four major new communities under development; Westlake in Bloomingdale; Indian Oaks in Bolingbrook; Frankfort Square near Frankfort; and Foxcroft in Aurora.

Excluding Foxcroft in Aurora, whose models are scheduled to open in the fall, Hoffman Rosner currently has on display 50 completely furnished and decorated model homes. The figure includes 25 detached single family models, 13 townhomes, and 12 condominiums (condominium type units).

"Knowing what to do when you go through a model home can help you get the most out of the visit, and also contribute to the comfort and pleasure of those who follow you," said Silfen.

Here are the specific suggestions he offered:

Try to schedule your visits to model homes before 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Generally, the largest crowds show up after 2 p.m., which means you'll be able to see and do more if you're not caught in the crowd.

Dress comfortably. Women are urged to wear low-heel shoes or flats to avoid fatigue. High heels are not only more tiring but may cause the wearer to trip or to sink into lawns.

Use the designated parking space provided by the builder. Avoid parking where you'll block drives, walks, and other cars. Parking in the right place is your assurance that you can won't be blocked when you're ready to leave.

Most builders welcome visitors with children, but hope you either carry small toddlers or else hold them firmly by the hand. Some model home areas feature play yards or even a cartoon movie theater where you can leave the children while you tour the model homes.

You'll have an easier time, your shoes will stay clean, and so will the model homes if you stay on the walks and driveways. Cutting across lawns and flower beds may give you muddy feet, and won't help the grass.

Some builders rope off the interior of the house. This is done primarily to keep traffic moving in an orderly manner and to keep room interiors looking fresh, so it's best to stay behind the ropes.

Furniture in model homes is for show, not for use. If everyone used the chairs and sofas in a model home, the furnishings would quickly become worn and unattractive. If you become tired while out visiting model homes, you are welcome to use the comfortable chairs in the sales or information office.

To keep the models looking their best, most builders keep the water in bathrooms turned off. Adequate rest room facilities and drinking water are available in the sales office.

Because of the heavy traffic through model homes, and also because of the possible danger to furnishings, most builders ask that you don't smoke while in the models.

If you carry a note pad and pencil to jot down questions as you go through a model, you'll remember points to discuss later on with the salesman. Most builders will be glad to tell you where they purchased their furniture, or who did their decorating or anything else about the home.

To help keep the model homes comfortable, builders hope you'll close the outside doors firmly as you enter and leave. This will keep the model warm in winter when the furnace is operating and cool in the summer when the air conditioning is on.

Carrying food such as popcorn, ice cream bars, and soft drinks through a model inevitably leads to mishaps, not only to the model but perhaps to your clothes.

During busy periods, salesmen may get tied up with customers and prospects. They'd like to get to you as soon as they can, so be patient.

You're welcome to the literature on the model homes in the sales office. But since these booklets may cost 50 cents each, the builder hopes you'll treat them with care and not scoop them up indiscriminately.

Builders expect a normal amount of wear and tear in model homes. But they will appreciate your thoughtfulness if you point out any items that may have become broken or out of order.

"In short," Silfen said, "if you regard the model homes just as you would the home of a close friend, you'll enjoy it more."

HOME SEEKERS and idea hunters frequent the planned community developments as Westlake in Bloomingdale, on the weekends. This is one of four new Hoffman Rosner communities in the Chicago area. Home seekers can avoid large crowds if they set their visits before 2 p.m. on the weekends, advises the company in its guide to touring model homes.

Housing Needs In Inner City

The greatest needs in the apartment industry is not in the suburbs, but in the inner city according to Bob Ross, recently elected president of the National Apartment Association.

The San Antonio, Texas, investment builder and apartment owner said his primary aim is to change the course of housing investments. He has been active in the residential building field for more than 30 years. He feels that for every one dollar invested outside the core area, $10 should be spent in neighborhood improvement programs on the periphery of the downtown business districts.

He said it is all right to assume some of the residents of the blighted areas want to move to the suburbs and certainly these desires should be encouraged and their rights protected. "Let's also assume that a lot of these residents would like to remain in their neighborhoods if proper housing were made available," Ross said. He emphasized that he was not advocating ghetto living.

"I'm advocating the construction of modern, attractive homes and the whole-sale remodeling of sub-standard dwellings which are occupied now because their occupants cannot afford anything better," he said.

Ross says the industry is too number-conscious. "We feel that if we build 2.6 million housing units, everything will work out okay. We think housing is like automobiles. You keep on building more homes and sooner or later everybody is accommodated."

"It doesn't work that way," he said. "We need more housing, but housing for the low income groups." Ross said when you build a $25,000 home, 10 years later it will still have a market value of $25,000, if not more. Furthermore, it is probably in an area inaccessible to those who need it worst.

"I have no aspirations of correcting all the social ills of this country, nor of providing equal opportunity for every citizen," Ross said. He added, however, he did want to see every American living in a home that has lights, hot and cold running water, adequate sanitary facilities, free of rats and vermin, adequate heating and ventilation and is structurally sound."

Money Supply Under Pressure

There will be no sharp fluctuations in interest rates in the next six to 12 months and if any change is noted, it will be a slight downward trend according to Durand A. Holladay, of Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston, Mass.

"This means a period of unusual stability... with a better than even chance that there will be a cut — slight though it may be — in the prime rate," he said.

Continental Mortgage, which has made more than $1 billion in mortgage loans since 1962, is a real estate trust in mortgage lending. Holladay is also chairman and managing trustee of Diversified Mortgage Investors, also of Boston, a multi-specialty investment trust which has made more than $500 million in mortgage loans since beginning operations in late 1969.

Holladay observes that a reduction of the rates may come about for one or both of two reasons: the money supply is stronger than the demand, or for political considerations.

"The political aspects must be considered because of the large number of businessmen who want to actively support President Nixon's new economic policies by making certain that a sufficient supply of money is maintained. There is every indication that they will accomplish their goal."

"However, the government's efforts to fund the federal budget deficit will put new pressure on the money supply..."

Keys To Success In Construction

The housing industry, flexing its muscles, never looked better, said Richard P. Halverson, senior investment analyst for Waddell & Reed, Inc., Kansas City-based national financial services complex.

"There is an intense demand for housing; resources are plentiful; the labor supply is good, and money is available," Halverson said. "These factors combined make the housing picture bright for the coming 12 months."

Waddell & Reed manages and sponsors the United Funds, Inc. and United Continental group of mutual funds. The group has assets of approximately $2.7 billion and more than 500,000 shareholder accounts.

"While housing strength is general across the nation," Halverson said, "there has been increasing activity in the urban areas of the Northeast, in the South and Southwest and even in California — surprising, considering the economic situation in that state."

Halverson notes a definite trend toward smaller, single-family homes in the lower-price ranges, a trend which he expects to continue for the next few years. These homes, he adds, typically are three-bedroom, one-and-a-half-bath units with an average area of about 1,200 square feet.

"While multi-family units and townhouses have enjoyed great popularity in recent years, there has been some slowdown in this area, although these units are still very popular in many sections of the country," Halverson said.

He said that there has been some limited technical progress made — pre-cutting in housing construction with wall panels, roof trusses, pre-fitted windows and pre-hung doors manufactured elsewhere and shipped to building sites.

"There is little doubt that we will top 2 million housing starts in 1971 for a record year," Halverson said. "While we may not quite reach that figure next year, in view of the great surge in housing in 1971, we will approximate it for perhaps the second-highest year in history in housing construction."

Halverson points out that the purchase of a home is inevitably followed by the purchase of home furnishings — carpets, appliances and various household goods — which stimulate consumer spending.

"In recent weeks the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board have taken actions to insure that housing will get its fair share of money at reasonable costs in 1972," Halverson said. "Governmental action has made it easier for people to own homes, which accounts, in part at least, for the trend toward single-family units."

"The keys to success for home builders include internal financing, customer financing, marketing ability, raw material and labor control, finished inventory control, cost control and product diversification," Halverson said. "The successful home builders are using these keys to give the potential homeowner the kind of house he wants and can afford. At the same time, there simply are not enough houses now to meet the demand at the prices many potential homeowners can afford."

The challenge to the home building industry is to meet this demand, Halverson notes, and thus insure unprecedented housing construction in the next 12 months. "With the many favorable factors going for it, the prospects for the industry are bullish for the rest of 1971, and throughout 1972," Halverson concludes.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS

FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING
REAL ESTATE SERVICE

The advantages of the "Multiple" Real Estate sales system

The "multiple" Real Estate sales system has been in operation throughout the country for several years. It is accepted as one of the most effective methods for securing maximum sales coverage in a given geographical area and operates on the simple principle of many individual companies cooperating in a professional, ethical effort to offer a broad scope of customer service.

The MAP Multiple Listing Service, was organized to offer a cooperative sales and service system here in the Northwest Chicago suburbs, serving the communities of Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park and Rosemead, with a total of 84 participating Real Estate offices and over 400 professional Real Estate sales people.

When you list your home with any participating cooperating MAP Multiple Listing Companies, your home automatically gets the attention of the entire MAP membership who ethically and efficiently use all their individual sales efforts to sell the home. You get the personalized supervision from the Real Estate company you list with PLUS the day-to-day sales effort and dedication of the 84 participating MAP offices.

There are many additional advantages when listing with a MAP office such as total market coverage, most advertising and nationwide referral system, which will be reviewed in future issues.

Buying or selling... there are many advantages when you place your home and your confidence in the hands of a local MAP Multiple Listing Service Real Estate Company.

Models Feature French Styling

A November grand opening is planned at the LaFontaine development in Glenview.

French styling is featured in the four model homes displayed. LaChateaux, the sales and display office, is a French ranch model. The price range is $59,900 to $63,900.

The development by I. Kogan Construction Co. is being annexed to the Village of Glenview according to the builder. It includes 37 acres divided into 94 home lots. One third of the area at Pfingsten and Lake is wooded.

All model homes feature: two car garage, two or more baths, wood-paneled family room, four or five bedrooms, carpeted living and dining room. A breakfast room and utility room are also featured in addition to kitchen equipped with oven, range, dishwasher and disposal.

The architect for LaFontaine houses is Peter J. Nitto. LaFontaine models feature a variety of exteriors, or the builder will custom build to the needs of the buyer.

DESIGNED AS FRENCH ranch home, La Chateaux is one of four model houses featured at the LaFontaine development in Glenview. A variety of exteriors is available in the houses by I. Kogan Construction Co. A two-car garage and four or five bedrooms are featured in all homes.

Loan Portfolios On The Increase

The United States Savings and Loan League recently reported that savings growth at member associations ended the third quarter on a strong note as September savings reached a record high.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, total savings deposits grew at an annual rate of 23.3 billion, up more than 14 per cent from the $20.4 billion annual rate for August. The improvement on a month to prior month basis indicates that savings at savings and loan institutions have not been affected adversely by recent changes in the nation's economic policy. Mortgage lending, though showing a seasonal decline, remained at an historic high for the month with closings reaching almost $3.5 billion.

Deposits at associations ran up an actual gain of $2.7 billion, topping by 49 per cent the prior September record of $1.8 billion set 12 months earlier.

Savings growth in September is always beefed up by the crediting of quarterly interest towards the end of the month. The interest credited to accounts last month is estimated to have totaled $1.5 billion. A year earlier interest totaled $1.2 billion. When the interest credited to accounts is deducted, the net growth in deposits a year ago was $575 million. When the interest credited is deducted from this September's gain, the net growth reached a much higher $1.2 billion. Last month's gain, when adjusted downward for interest, also topped the similarly adjusted figure for August.

During the first nine months of the year, savings deposits at savings and loans registered a gain of $22 billion. Thus, in nine months, the gain was almost double the increase for 1970 — the best full year on record. At the present rate of growth, the increase in deposits for the full year will reach approximately $28 billion.

Mortgage loan closings during September totaled $3.5 billion, down from August's $4.1 billion, but more than 59 per cent above the $2.2 billion of September of last year.

A trend appears in the 1971 data when the contribution of savings and loans to the mortgage market is measured in terms of the increase in loans outstanding rather than loan closings. Through the month of September, mortgage loans on the books of associations climbed from $150.6 billion to $168.4 billion, an increase of almost $18 billion. This represents the total support given the mortgage market by associations. Currently, loan portfolios are growing at a rate in excess of $2 billion per month, or double that for any of the best months of the past half decade.

Delinquency Ratios Climb

Mortgage loan delinquency rose fractionally during the third quarter at the nation's savings and loan associations, the United States Savings and Loan League reported recently.

The third quarter delinquency ratios — all less than 1 per cent of all mortgages held by associations — were: July - .75 per cent; August - .79 per cent; and September - .84 per cent.

The United States League monthly report of mortgage delinquencies is based on a survey of more than 900 savings and loan associations, and includes all loans on which payments have not been made within 60 days of the payment date stipulated in the mortgage. Loans include not only conventional loans but also loans made under programs of the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration.

The third quarter 1971 delinquency figures are up slightly from the third quarter of 1970, when delinquencies ran: July - .70 per cent; August - .72 per cent; and September - .75 per cent.

Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the league, said that shifts in the delinquency ratios are normally geared to a seasonal pattern. "For instance," he said, "delinquency ratios are at their peak during the first quarter of each year. They decline in the second quarter, and rise slightly in the third and fourth quarters.

"In the face of continued substantial unemployment throughout the country, the rate of mortgage loan delinquencies has continued at quite a low and favorable pace," he said.

Defense In The '70s

Technology Key To Power Balance

by RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON — In the curious arithmetic of the 1970s, it may mean very little to the security of the United States if the Soviet Union builds the most missiles or assembles the greatest warhead megatonnage — all within certain limits.

What is critical is whether Moscow's scientists achieve technological breakthroughs which could make it possible for the Soviet Union to produce radically new weaponry able to overwhelm American defenses.

Concurrently, what also counts is whether the Soviet Union has the engineering capability and technical base to exploit the scientific advantage before the United States can develop effective countermeasures.

IN THIS REGARD, the U.S. triumph in coming from behind to place a man on the moon may ultimately turn out to be a most expensive triumph indeed.

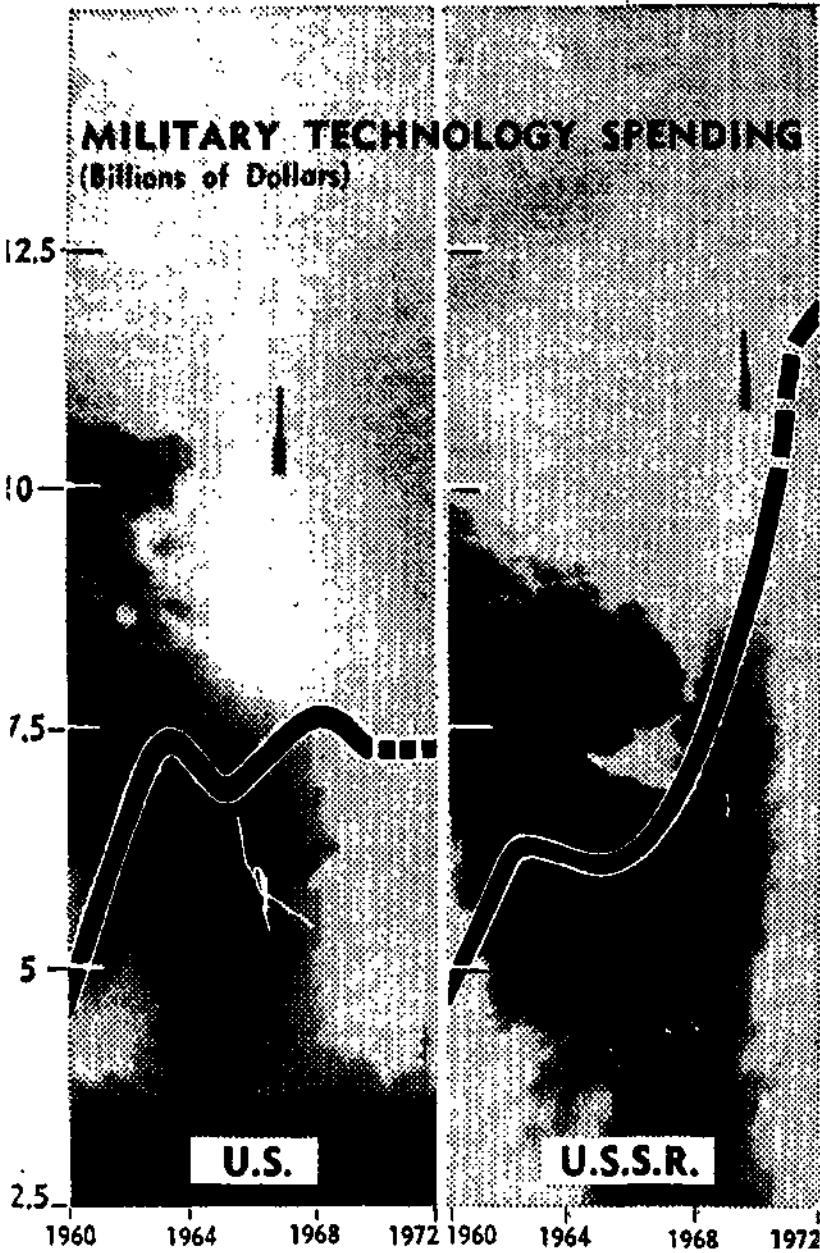

It may have convinced too many decision-makers that the United States is technically so far ahead of the Soviet Union that it can, as in the moon effort, come from behind and win.

It appears that the prevailing trend since the Apollo landings has been to coast. But the Russians, spurred by the No. 2 "we try harder" syndrome, have been moving ahead in a number of areas of space and military technology.

The Russian unmanned moon vehicle is a scientific instrument of superb quality and ahead of what the United States is turning out at this time. This remotely controlled go-cart tells us a lot about their defense-related technical competence. The Russian unmanned long-range probes to other planets show finesse and versatility.

THERE ARE OTHER clear indicators of Soviet military competence. The Russians regularly fire ICBMs down their Pacific test range. We can judge the quality of those weapons. We observe their new submarines and surface ships as they patrol the Mediterranean or Caribbean. We see their tactical weapons in combat in Vietnam and the Middle East.

Today the United States is believed technologically ahead of the Soviet Union by two to three years in most major areas of military research. But Dr. John Foster, chief of Pentagon research and engineering, says Moscow is possibly spending the equivalent of $3 billion a year more on military research and development than the United States is. Defense analysts estimate that scale of effort would make it possible for the Russians to gain about one year on us technologically every 36 to 48 months.

If these trends should continue unchanged, Foster predicts the Soviet Union could achieve technological superiority in military research and development some time between 1976 and 1979.

Even before that, perhaps as early as the 1974 to 1976 time frame, according to Foster's calculations, we are likely to see what the Pentagon technocrats call "sputniklike" surprises, meaning the appearance of Soviet weapons prototypes which clearly could make major U.S. weapons systems technologically obsolete if the Soviet Union decided to build them.

FOSTER'S predictions have not gone unchallenged, however. A committee of two scientists and two economics professors under the auspices of the Federation of American Scientists (themselves not completely free of political bias) have called Foster's statements political.

They contend, in effect, that there is no convincing evidence the Soviet Union is spending more than the United States on military scientific research and that in any event the relative backwardness and inefficiency of Soviet technology makes spending figures meaningless.

Their credibility is perhaps weakened somewhat by the fact that members of the committee have held responsible military-scientific positions in past administrations when weaponry scare tactics were used for political ends.

But if Foster's projections prove to be accurate, U.S. security could be seriously jeopardized by the early 1980s.

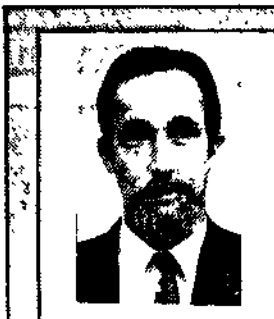

THERE ARE TWO ways the United States could react to such predictions. One would be to boost research and development now in an orderly, determined way to enable this country technically to cope quickly with any Russian breakthroughs.

Or the United States could first determine if the Soviet research and development "trend line" begins to sag. If a sag did develop, of course, we might have no worries.

If the United States chose the second alternative and the Soviet military scientific-technological push continued at a fast pace, we would have either to accept a severe shift in the balance of power or rush through an expensive and inefficient crash program.

In other words, recovery from a loss of U.S. technological leadership would require enormous expenditures over many years.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

Washington (UPI) — When the Stock Market goes up or down, which is frequently, analysts sometimes attribute the rise or decline to "emotional" buying or selling.

For years, I assumed that the emotion they were referring to was greed. But that was before I joined the Capitol Press Investment Club.

My experience with this group, whose members pool their resources $10 a month for purposes of engineering Wall Street coups, has made me realize that the whole range of emotions is involved in playing the market.

Generally speaking trisyllabic and polysyllabic emotions, nostalgia, melancholia, compassion, sheepishness, etc. tend to be bearish. But four-letter emotions, fear, hate, envy, lust usually are bullish.

Distilling this further, a poignant feeling produces an urge to liquidate your holdings, whereas raw emotions arouse a speculative fever.

Here are the minutes of our last meeting: ELMER GANGLE MAKES a motion to buy 100 shares of stock in the National Galluses Corp.

"Why do you think we should have more National Galluses stock in our portfolio?" someone inquires.

"My wife gave birth to an eight-pound boy this morning," Gangle proudly announces.

We gather around to extend congratulations. Gangle flushes with pleasure.

"Let's make that 200 shares," he says.

But Elm Speargum demurs. "Pride goeth before a fall," he reminds us, "and we don't want to get caught with falling galluses. I move we table that motion. As a substitute, I offer a motion to sell our stock in the National Galluses Corp."

Before we can act on the proposal, Betty Amplebeam, the club's only female member, arrives in a pair of hot pants. we vote to buy 500 shares of National Corset.

WE HONOR MASTER CHARGE & BANK AMERICARD

He Was 'Lucky' To Land In Prison

by TOM TIEDE

WARKWORTH, Ontario — A couple of years ago Bruce Nicholson was arrested by provincial police, tried on a charge of robbing a bank, found guilty — and sentenced to spend six years in a Canadian penitentiary.

Canadian Report

It may have been the best thing that ever happened to him.

Nicholson, now 25, has been incarcerated at a time when the Canadian penal system is undergoing wide and snowballing reform. Once the operators of some of the worst dungeons in the world (the recently closed St. Vincent de Paul jail in Montreal had slop buckets instead of cell toilets), federal prison authorities here have for a decade been instituting or planning the kind of change that, compared with nations such as the United States, has been breathless.

And Bruce Nicholson, for one, has benefited nicely.

A high school dropout (Canada has 13 grades rather than 12), Nicholson was by his own words "a wild-assed kid." But he was not a hardened thug. The bank job was his first offense; he pulled it more as a dumb trick than anything else. So, rather than toss the first offender into any pen where there was room (as is done in the United States), Canadian authorities "placed" Nicholson in the jail most compatible with his age, nature and rehabilitative potential.

AS IT HAPPENED, very fortunately, the lad landed in the Warkworth Institution, a most unlikely looking lockup in Ontario farm country. Built five years ago at a cost of $11 million, Warkworth is one of four more or less models of the new Canadian prison policy. It is designed to correct, not punish inhabitants.

Warkworth is Canada's concept of a medium security reformatory. It has no walls (only fences), no guns (in sight anyway) and no overbearing, lock-step routine. There are not even very many bars, and those that do exist are hidden in structural design that suggests a contemporary community college. In fact, Warkworth is more than just somewhat collegiate. The program here is as much educational as correctional, the population is youngish (average age, 20-25), and such is the spirit that it is routine for guards to befriend inmates, call them by first names, chat long hours away and even invite some home to supper.

The place, assuredly, is a prison by any description. Nonetheless, it's at least several million miles removed from Attica, U.S.A. "We treat our inmates like people," says Warkworth Warden Bill Westlake. "We don't lock them up unless they're asleep. We don't ride around on their backs or keep looking over their shoulders all day. We give them as much freedom as possible."

TO BE SURE, the freedom at Warkworth is a little short of remarkable. And the men ("We have all kinds here, from murderers to bad check passers") move about almost casually. During the day the entire population of 350 goes to work, class or vocational shops much the same as civilians do; "we don't mind a little goofing off," says one guard. During the evening, they have virtually the run of the 40-acre confine.

And actually, many men at Warkworth do go (legally) over the fence, or at least through the gate for freedom. This by way of the prison's most permissive innovation, the Temporary Absence Program. It allows men to earn the right to temporary leave, for a visit home, a baseball game, or even a regular job. (In August, 164 men were granted temporary leave; only one failed to return.)

thinks being arrested was the best thing that could have happened to him.

Bruce Nicholson, for instance, has a regular job. In a meat market 10 miles from the prison grounds. He leaves every morning at 9 and doesn't return until early evening. "You see what I mean?" he says. "This is why I think being arrested was the best thing that could have happened to me. Hell, I about died when they caught me. I was so afraid of going to any of the prisons I heard about. But now, man, it's been a real education. I've learned a trade I get to move about. I have dinner in town every night. Now and then I even get to go home weekends. Really, I'm better off than I've ever been."

There are, most assuredly, many people in Canada who resent Bruce Nicholson's contentment and prison success. They bemoan and decry the claimed "coddling" that goes on in such places as Warkworth. It sticks in the craw that Nicholson, an armed robber, is cutting their meat "and making more money in prison than I am out."

Yet to others the lesson of Warkworth is clear. Had Nicholson been confined in another, as yet unimproved, Canadian pen, he might likely have gone the way of past federal prisoners here — 80 per cent of the current 7,300 inmates in Canada are reconvicts. He might likely have gone from a wild kid to a wild adult.

But as it is, Bruce Nicholson will be paroled shortly, a better fellow. He has a job and a future waiting. And all of Canada will assuredly profit because at least one wild kid was "lucky" enough to be sent to prison — the right prison.

'Requiem' Is Selection For Festival

"Requiem," by Gabriel Faure is a featured selection for High School District 211's Annual Choral Festival to be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 13 in the Palatine High School Gymnasium.

After a night and day of rehearsals, the choirs of the four district high schools Fremd, Schaumburg, Conant and Palatine, will perform "Requiem" in addition to presenting three concert numbers.

The District 211 Orchestra will accompany the Festival Choir of more than 200. Student soloists for the evening will be

Don V. Moses

Cecily Atcher, soprano, Schaumburg, and Bill Dyzell, baritone, Palatine. Alternates will be Laurel French, soprano, and Jim Eichberger, baritone, both of Fremd, and Ray Wolfel, tenor, Conant.

Dr. Don V. Moses, director of the University of Indiana Chamber Singers will appear as guest conductor and clinician.

Performing will be the Palatine High School A capella Choir under the direction of David Reiser; Fremd High School Concert Choir, Carlisle Chiddister, director; Conant High School Concert Choir, Donald L. Breshears, director; Schaumburg High School, Concert Choir, John A. Van Hook, director, and District 211 Orchestra. Roy Houck and Stephen Warble, directors.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Adults tickets are $1.50 and students 75 cents. Guest conductor Dr. Moses, has been conductor of the Indiana University singers since 1965. In 1968 he was nominated for "Outstanding Young Men in America 1968."

Students In News

Persons from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Palatine were noted in news of local students released from Indiana University, Bloomington.

Gerhard Funke, 285 Ashley Rd., Hoffman Estates, has been assigned to Brown County High School, Nashville, Ind., as a student teacher. The assignment is to fulfill requirements for an education degree.

Michael Raley, 307 Weathersfield, Schaumburg, and Douglas Matoney, 1914 Durham Dr., Palatine, have been selected for the university's 1971 Marching Hundred Band, which performs during half-time at football games.

Treatment Plant Odors Spur Suit Against MSD

by TOM WELLMAN

A group of Hanover Park residents plan to file a lawsuit against the Metropolitan Sanitary District for conditions at the Hanover Park Sewage Treatment Plant.

The group will file the suit to collect as much as $1 million for personal damages and violations of civil rights caused by the plant's operations.

The suit is being planned because of the odors that the plant is generating, according to Mrs. Ronald Goro, 7922 Huntington Circle North, Hanover Park.

She said odors from the plant have made several children in the neighborhood ill, have placed a dark coating on houses in the area and have made homes in the area "unlivable."

MRS. GORO said a group of residents will meet tomorrow night at St. George and the Dragon restaurant in Hanover Park to plan the suit. She said she hopes as many as 2,000 persons will participate in the legal action.

She added that Hanover Park officials plan to complain about the odors at the Thursday, Nov. 4 MSD meeting. A group of Hanover Park residents will accompany the village officials to the MSD meeting, she reported.

MSD Supt. Ben Sosewitz yesterday reported his office was taking steps to eliminate odors which had been leaking from the plant this week.

He termed complaints from area residents "legitimate," but said the district was doing everything it could to reduce the odors.

Sosewitz said the problem will be eliminated when expansion of the facility is completed next May.

Mrs. Goro said if her group can develop enough pressure "MSD could find a way to get it straightened out."

She said the village "needed" to cooperate with MSD, and thus it was better for the residents to file the suit against MSD. The problem has reoccurred despite promises that the present plant would be able to handle sewage until 1980, she said.

THE MEETING tomorrow night is designed to organize the suit and to compile a list of persons with complaints against the plant, Mrs. Goro said. She reported that attorneys Don Leisker and William Davies will handle the case.

MSD officials, facing similar complaints in past months, have reported the odors are not dangerous, only obnoxious. They have blamed the odor on oxidation ponds that produce an odor when heat slows the oxidation process.

The MSD plans to locate two other sewage treatment plants in the North-west suburbs. The Salt Creek Water Reclamation plant, located on Meacham Road in eastern Schaumburg Township, is scheduled to be completed by 1974.

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission recently approved plans for the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant, to be located near O'Hare Airport in southern Des Plaines. Approval of plans for the project came despite sharp protests from Des Plaines city officials.

Boy's Dream Comes True: O'Hare Tour

by KURT BAER

For many who live near O'Hare Airport, jet planes can be the most annoying airborne nuisance since the mosquito.

But for two Arlington Heights teenagers who fly high on the subject of planes, a recent trip to O'Hare was practically a dream come true.

The visit, which included a ride to the top of the airport's new 19-story control tower, was arranged by British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) for the boys, who have spent months working on a four-foot scale model of the O'Hare complex.

"The tower was really great," says 14-year-old Dave Fasth, 103 N. Gibbons Ave. "The controller showed us how the planes come in on radar, and we could follow all the flight patterns."

DAVE AND A neighbor, Steve Clingerman, 15, of 110 N. Gibbons Ave., built their model from plans and maps supplied by Charles F. Murphy Associates of Chicago, architects for O'Hare.

Although the boys' model is only a few months old, new work at O'Hare already threatens to make it obsolete.

"Everything looked about as our model shows," said Dave commenting on the view from the top of the control tower. "But they've started to build a new taxiway that we don't have."

Dave explained that the airport's taxiways are given comic code names. For example the new route, which will run past a small pond, has already been dubbed "Lake Shore Drive."

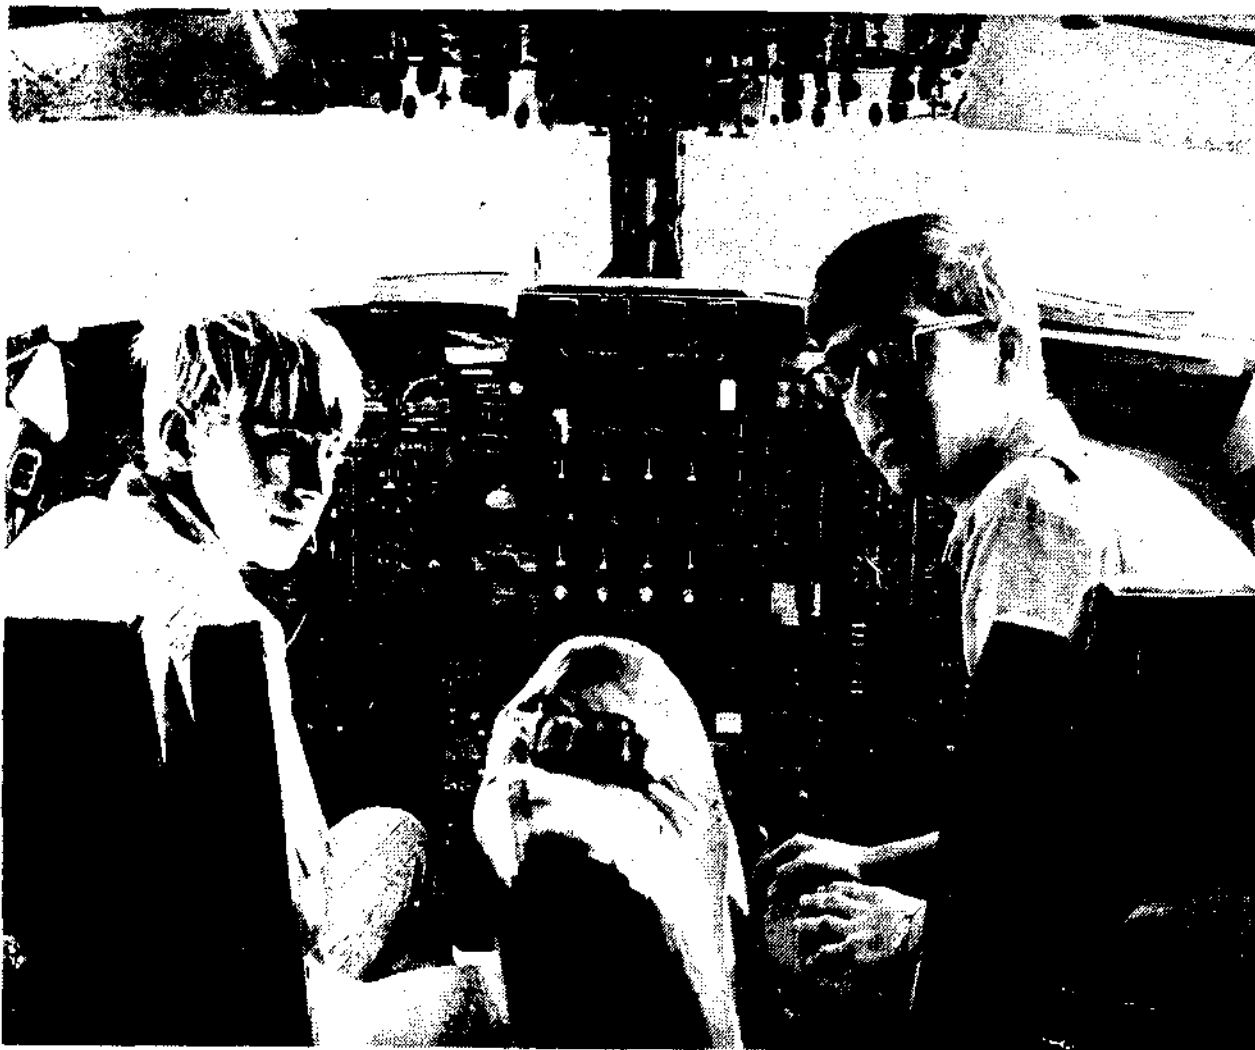

In addition to the control tower, the young aviation enthusiasts were given a captain's tour of the cockpit of one of BOAC's 707 jetliners, and went through an actual flight plan in the airline's operations room.

With their scale model virtually complete, Dave and Steve say they are thinking of constructing a more detailed study of the passenger loading areas at O'Hare.

Because of the size of the giant airport the boys had to use a scale of 600 feet per inch in building their first model.

"That means each terminal can only be represented by a little box," Dave said.

BOTH BOYS are thinking of careers in aviation and they keep track of flight information, weather reports and takeoff and landing instructions on a special radio receiver.

Steve and Dave were encouraged during their recent visit to O'Hare to find that many of the men who control traffic are relatively young. But they also came away with some feeling for the immense responsibility that rests with the control team.

"The men would laugh and tell jokes every once and a while," Dave said. "I guess they have to kid around when they're not working, just to keep their sanity."

CAPT. JAMES WOODILL gives Dave and Steve a rundown on some of a pilot's responsibilities. The tour included a trip up the new 19-story control tower. Both boys are interested in careers in aviation. They already keep track of flight information, weather reports and takeoff and landing information.

REWARDING

Immediate openings in our phone room for ladies who have lots of enthusiasm, a will to learn and a desire to talk with people. You'll be working for an advertising director and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is! This position involves handling established advertising accounts and developing new ones. Previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and the ability to type is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest.

SALARY PLUS INCENTIVES

This is not a commission-type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits including paid vacations and holidays, sick leave, profit sharing, hospitalization, disability insurance and company paid life insurance. You may be just the person we're looking for and we may be just the company you're looking for. One way to find out — come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. Ask for Larry Bell, Classified Advertising Manager, or call:

JACK-O-LANTERN ICE CREAM CAKE

6 packages (12) Hostess cup cakes
3 quarts vanilla ice cream, softened
1 cup whipping cream
Yellow food color
Red food color
1/4 cup confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Candies for decoration

Cut a 10-inch circle from cardboard. Cover with aluminum foil. Halve cup cakes, cutting crosswise; set aside tops. Arrange bottoms of 9 cup cakes cut side down, in a ring on cardboard circle, placing cup cakes about 1/2-inch in from edge. Place three remaining cup cake bottoms in center. Using ice cream spade or large spatula, mound ice cream on top, around edge and into crevices of cup cakes. Then mound remaining ice cream on top. Smooth surface of ice cream; return to freezer until well frozen, four hours or overnight. Whip cream to soft peak stage, add food colors to tint bright orange. Gradually beat in sugar and vanilla. Spread whipped cream over ice cream. Press tops of cup cakes into whipped cream around base of cake. Use candies to make Jack-O-Lantern face. Return to freezer until ready to serve. When cream is well frozen, cake may be wrapped. 20 servings.

Note: Ice cream may also be shaped by packing into a metal bowl, 9 to 10 inches in diameter, then covering ice cream with cup cake bottoms. Freeze four hours, or overnight. Unmold by dipping outside of bowl into warm water for a few seconds. Frost as above.

Witchful Thinking

MEOW BURGERS

1 1/4 pounds ground beef
3/4 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
20 slices enriched bread
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened

In a large skillet cook beef until browned, stirring to break up chunks. Drain off excess fat. Add sour cream, cheese, chili sauce, onion, salt and pepper. Cut out face from 10 slices bread, butter one side; set aside. Spread remaining 10 slices of bread with butter. Place buttered side down on baking sheet. Spread about 1/2 cup beef mixture. Top with cut out bread, buttered side up. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake 5 minutes; turn and bake an additional 7 minutes or until lightly browned. 10 servings.

To freeze: Cut out faces, fill sandwiches but do not butter. Wrap. To serve: Butter outside of sandwiches, place on baking sheet. Bake 10 minutes; turn and bake an additional 5 minutes or until lightly browned.

TOASTED FUNNY FACES

2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese, at room temperature
1/4 cup chunk style peanut butter
2/3 cup raisins
3/4 cup dairy sour cream
1/4 cup sweet pickle relish
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
20 slices enriched bread
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened

In small mixing bowl combine cheese, peanut butter, raisins, sour cream, pickle relish and mustard. Cut out eyes and mouth from 10 slices bread, butter one side; set aside. Spread remaining 10 slices of bread with butter. Place buttered side down on baking sheet. Spread on about 1/2 cup cheese mixture. Top with cut out bread, buttered side up. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake 7 minutes or until browned. 10 servings.

To freeze: Cut out faces, fill sandwiches but do not butter. Wrap. To serve: Butter outside of sandwiches, place on baking sheet. Bake 10 minutes; turn and bake an additional 10 minutes or until browned.

When wee witches and goblins haunt the house with talk of a Halloween party, suggest a sandwich "rap" and enlist young party planners to help prepare fanciful sandwiches and a Jack-O-Lantern Cake — party fare that can be made ahead and stored in the freezer until the spookiest night of the year.

Helpers of all ages enjoy cutting faces and cat heads from slices of bread while Mom prepares protein-rich, freezer-proof fillings. Funny Faces are made with a nutritious cheese-peanut butter mixture while the Meow Burger's cat face reveals a ground beef stroganoff filling. Olives, pimientos, and other edible favorites can be used as fill-in features on the faces.

Twenty minutes before the eating hour, Funny Faces and Meow Burgers are taken from the freezer, unwrapped, buttered and slipped into the oven. They come waiting forth toasty, crunchy and full of the energy young bodies need.

For little nibblers who prefer sandwiches untoasted, prepare Punkin the day of the party. Punkin sandwiches are simply made by slipping rounds of golden cheese between circles of buttered enriched bread. Smiling Punkin faces cut from the sandwich top bring big smiles from young party-goers.

But the highlight of the party is certain to be Jack-O-Lantern Ice Cream Cake "baked" in the freezer. The American Dairy Association recommends mounting softened ice cream over a cup cake base and frosting with whipped cream tinted a bewitching pumpkin color.

Cup cake tops are used to rim the base of the Jack-O-Lantern and a face is made with Halloween candies. The colorful cake combines two party favorites — cake and ice cream — all in one. Served with glasses of cold milk, it's bound to please every little hobgoblin's sweet tooth.

Chicken Olympus

Hobgoblin Happenings

It may take a little searching to find just the right hobgoblin to make your Halloween party complete, but there's no need to look beyond the canned cling peaches on your pantry shelf to help insure a memorable Halloween feast.

Sunny, summery-golden canned clings provide flair and flavorsome eating satisfaction for meals around-the-clock and round-the-year. At a gala Halloween get-together, fill centers of drained canned cling peach halves with a palate-pleasing mixture of chopped dates and figs; heat and serve as a garnish for a ham or turkey entree. That's just one of innumerable ways to put canned clings to work for a dinner that guests won't soon forget.

CHICKEN OLYMPUS

1 can (29 oz.) cling peach halves
4 large, boned chicken breasts
Seasoned flour

1/4 cup oil
4 large stalks broccoli
1 can (6 oz.) evaporated milk
2 cups shredded process
American cheese
2 tablespoons honey

Drain peaches well. Wipe chicken breasts, dredge in seasoned flour; brown in hot oil until golden. Place in shallow casserole, cover loosely with aluminum foil and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 to 45 minutes, until tender. Meanwhile, cook broccoli in boiling salted water until tender. Combine undiluted milk and shredded cheese; heat slowly, stirring constantly until cheese is melted and sauce is hot. Arrange chicken, drained broccoli and peach halves on a heat-proof platter. Pour cheese sauce over chicken and broccoli. Drizzle honey on peaches. Place under the broiler until cheese sauce is lightly browned. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

UPI — Now that the new generation has discovered nostalgia in fashions and makeup, should we tell them about homemade soup?

No canned or packaged product yet invented can match the flavor and aroma of broth that has simmered gently for hours over low heat. The tantalizing scent it sends through a house is irresistible even to people who claim they don't like soup.

Chicken soup and roast chicken used to be regular Sunday fare in thousands of American homes. The soup was made from old but meaty birds that often went into the pot whole, along with chicken feet, skin and nails removed, a couple of carrots, some celery tops and an onion or two.

Spicy Apple Cake

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup molasses
1 1/2 cups coarsely grated pared apples
2 eggs

Sift together flour, sugar, salt, baking soda, baking powder, nutmeg and cinnamon. Add shortening, molasses and grated apples. Mix just enough to dampen the ingredients, then beat 2 minutes with electric mixer at medium speed. Add eggs and beat 2 minutes longer at medium speed. Turn into a greased 9x9x2-inch square pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until done. Serve warm with sweetened whipped cream sprinkled with nutmeg. Garnish with an apple slice if desired.

Yield: 9 to 12 servings.

The Return Of Homemade Soup

While it cooked, there was time to decide on the garnish. Would it be homemade noodles or dumplings? Or matzo balls, made with a meringue-like mixture of beaten egg whites and yolks, plus an unleavened bread product that looks like coarse white corn meal.

By rights, the chicken should have lost most of its flavor to the soup. But at our house, it never seemed that way. The bird itself was browned quickly in a hot oven and served as the main course.

Cookbooks are crammed with recipes for all kinds of soups. Some cookbooks have recipes for nothing but soup. Yet this is the one course in a meal that is easiest to improvise. Guidelines are simple.

Use 2 cups of water to each pound of meat, bone and fat.

Get more flavor from the vegetables you add by cooking coarsely cut ones briefly in a small amount of butter or margarine before you add them to the pot.

Meat and bones also benefit from pre-cooking. Beef and veal, with or without bones, should be browned in a single layer in a 450-to-500 degree oven before they're added to the pot.

Pork is seldom used except in some oriental recipes, in which it is cooked separately and appears as a garnish. Lamb is traditional for a Scottish barley soup but rarely used in others because of its strong flavor.

You'll get more flavor and retain more vitamins from vegetables if you add them to the soup only during the last half hour of cooking.

If the vegetables will be discarded after cooking, there's no need to peel the onions. Just wash them and add. The skins will help color the broth. Some cooks prefer to add vegetables at the beginning, cook them until they fall apart, then replace them with fresh, raw vegetables 30 minutes before the soup is done. This provides extra vitamins as well as flavor.

Like stew, soup mellows if it's cooled quickly, refrigerated overnight, then reheated for serving. Set the pot in a sink full of cold water and stir the soup occasionally to hasten cooling.

Contrary to popular opinion, hearty soups needn't be fattening. Most of the calories are in the fat, which rises to the surface and congeals when the soup is refrigerated. This solidified fat can be removed easily in large chunks before the broth is reheated.

A light hand is advisable with seasoning, which intensifies as the liquid cooks down. You can always add more seasoning at serving time.

All vegetables are good in soup, but some are so strong that they're better alone than in combination: broccoli and cauliflower, for instance. A few green pea pods add flavor, but too many will add too strong a taste.

If you like thick soup but don't want to use flour, figure on 1 teaspoon of either barley, rice, or oatmeal to each cup of water that went into the pot originally. Add the cereal an hour before the soup is done.

Or puree the vegetables that were cooked in the soup. Or, use egg yolks or whole eggs. Beat them first, beat in a few spoonfuls of the hot but not boiling soup, add this mixture to the soup over low heat and stir constantly until it thickens. Soup thickened with eggs does not reheat well. The eggs curdle if the mixture boils.

Leftover soup that is refrigerated instead of frozen should be brought to a boil every third day to prevent souring.

Save the water in which vegetables are cooked to substitute for plain water in soupmaking. You'll add extra vitamins and minerals along with flavor. Keep accumulating vegetable water until the container is filled within 1/2 inch of the top. Always cover the container tightly before returning it to the freezer. Pint or quart-size containers are best because they defrost quicker than large ones.

With cooler weather, soup's a natural for any meal, including breakfast.

Mrs. William Edward Cross

The 'Magic' Of Oven Stew

by LOIS SEILER
There's no trick to treating your family to a special dinner on Halloween. It falls on a Sunday this year, and all it takes is a good recipe to help you perform a little kitchen wizardry.
The "magic" to the stew recipe featured today is its method of preparation. There is no browning of the meat, yet a savory gravy develops during the cooking period, giving the stew a delicious flavor.
This Oven Stew recipe has been shared with readers by Mrs. William Edward Cross of Des Plaines. A busy woman who combines homemaking with a career, she is partial to recipes that are simple to prepare, but she insists on flavor goodness too.

Leona Cross uses lean beef stew meat and combines it with onions, carrots, celery, tomato soup and seasonings. Tapioca is used as the thickening agent, and the stew is baked in a slow oven for four hours.
Because she doesn't care for the flavor of potatoes in her stew, Leona prepares them separately — either baked, mashed or boiled. Or she serves rice or noodles as an accompaniment along with a green vegetable and an icy cold crisp salad.
As an executive secretary for Universal Oil Co., time is at a premium for Leona and she finds this stew ideal to make on a busy Saturday while she is catching up with household chores. "Yet it is good enough to serve to company, too," she said.

Another of her favorites is a Chuck Wagon Pepper Steak.
"You can build your reputation as an outdoor chef with this recipe," Leona said, "as it's really luscious eating."
During inclement weather she broils it indoors with equally satisfying results.
She uses an arm bone chuck roast and after tenderizing and marinating it, she pounds peppercorns into each side of the meat before grilling it. Sliced on the diagonal, Leona recommends serving the roast with baked potatoes and a tossed salad.

Both the steak and the stew are real man-pleasers as her husband, Ed, will readily testify, and he enjoys them equally as well when served as leftovers.
A salad that this good cook likes to serve with both dinners consists of a variety of ingredients such as lettuce, green pepper, celery, radishes, cucumber, tomatoes, parsley, green onions, chives, grated carrots or whatever else you might have on hand, tossed with a sweet-sour dressing. And for dessert she suggests a Zingy Lemon Cake.
This is made from a packaged mix with Jell-O, eggs, water and oil added. After baking, the cake is pierced with a fork and a mixture of lemon juice and sugar is poured over all, which seeps down into the cake. Moist in texture with a tangy lemon flavor, this is a simple yet delightful dessert.
Leona calls cooking her favorite hobby, but she also enjoys dabbling with house plants and making Christmas tree ornaments. She is a member of the Order of Eastern Star Des Plaines Chapter 765, the American Legion Auxiliary and the First United Methodist Church.

FOUR HOUR OVEN BEEF STEW
2 pounds lean beef stew meat
1 medium-size bunch carrots, cut in 2-inch pieces
1 cup diced celery
2 large onions, diced
2 tablespoons tapioca
1 teaspoon sugar or more to taste
4 peppercorns or ground pepper
Dash of Worcestershire sauce
1 can tomato soup
1/2 can water
Place all ingredients into a large roasting pan or Dutch oven. (For variation, a small can of tomato sauce may be added.) Cover tightly with foil and place in a 250 degree oven for four hours. Don't look until after the fourth hour. Your meal is completely finished with the exception of potatoes or rice. Serves 8.

CHUCK WAGON PEPPER STEAK
1 round bone arm chuck roast or boneless round roast, cut about two inches thick (about 3 pounds)
2 teaspoons unseasoned meat tenderizer
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 teaspoons thyme
1 teaspoon marjoram
1 bay leaf, crushed
1 cup wine vinegar
1/2 cup olive oil or salad oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Coarsely crushed peppercorns or bottled cracked pepper
Sprinkle meat evenly on both sides with tenderizer. (Use no salt.) Pierce meat deeply all over with a fork, place in a shallow baking pan.
Mix instant onion, thyme, marjoram, bay leaf, vinegar, oil and lemon juice in a small bowl. (Omit oil if meat is to be broiled indoors.) Pour over and around meat and let stand at room temperature one to two hours, turning meat every half hour to marinate well.
When ready to grill, remove meat from marinade and cover both sides generously with crushed peppercorns. A wooden mallet is a handy tool for pounding them in.
Grill to a rich brown on rack set about 6 inches above hot coals; turn and grill until meat is done as you like it. Time will depend on heat of coals and distance of meat from fire bed, but it should average at least 15 minutes on each side for rare.
To serve, place on carving board and cut meat diagonally into 1/2-inch thick slices. Makes 6 generous servings.

SALAD DRESSING
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon Lawry's Seasoned Salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Mix ingredients well and store in jar in refrigerator.
Prepare desired amount of salad greens (lettuce, green pepper, celery, radishes, cucumber, tomatoes, parsley, green onions, chives, grated carrots), and chill thoroughly before serving.
Toss lightly with above dressing, first sprinkling greens lightly with oregano. Serve at once. If desired, a tablespoon of salad oil may be added to salad.
ZINGY LEMON CAKE
1 package yellow cake mix
1 small package Lemon Jell-O
4 eggs
3/4 cup water
1/2 cup oil
Mix together the cake mix and Jell-O. Add remaining ingredients and beat well. Pour into a greased, 9 by 13-inch pan. Bake according to package directions. Remove from oven; let stand 20 minutes. Use fork to pierce holes.
Spoon over the top a mixture of 1/2 cup lemon juice and 2 cups confectioners' sugar.

Pumpkin Pecan Cheese Tartlets

November and December are fast approaching — the months of the most gala meals and parties of the year! To put you in the mood (why not try them for Halloween, too), Hunt-Wesson has come up with a super special pumpkin and cheese dessert topped with swirls of aerosol whipped cream which is spectacularly simple to make, yet highly versatile.

The idea is built around a package of no-bake cheese cake mix. The crust has been dolled up with finely chopped pecans and the filling with canned pumpkin and a few traditional pie spices — cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg.

- PUMPKIN PECAN CHEESE TARTLETS
- 1 (11-ounce) package no-bake cheese cake mix
- 1/4 cup finely chopped pecans
- 1/3 cup melted butter
- 3 tablespoons white sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup canned pumpkin
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/8 teaspoon ginger
- 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 (7-ounce) can aerosol whipped cream

Empty packet of graham cracker crumbs into small bowl; add pecans, butter and white sugar. Mix well with fork. Press equal portions into bottom and up sides of 6 (4-inch) fluted metal tart pans; set aside. Combine milk, pumpkin, brown sugar and spices in small deep mixing bowl. Add packet of cheese cake filling; beat at low speed with rotary beater until blended, then at medium speed 3 minutes. Pour into crumb lined tart shells; freeze until firm. Remove from tart pans while still frozen; hold at refrigerator temperature at least one hour before serving. At serving time, pipe generous swirl of whipped cream on each tartlet, garnish with pecan half if desired. Makes 6 (4-inch) tarts.

Note: Individual 4-inch fluted metal tart pans are available now as a premium offer from Reddi-Wip. For 8 tart pans, readers may send their name and address along with the red lock tab from the Reddi-Wip cap plus $1.50 to Reddi-Wip, P.O. Box 825, Fullerton, Calif. 92638. Offer expires Jan. 31, 1972.

FDA Says Common Materials Safe For Cooking Utensils

The old rumor that cooking in certain metals is injurious to health continues to circulate.

If a salesman tells you to discard your cooking utensils in favor of the type he's selling because yours are unsafe, question his advice, says Jacqueline Anderson, University of Illinois home economics instructor.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) maintains that the common cooking-utensil materials such as aluminum, glass, iron, steel, stainless steel, and pyroceram are safe.

Consumers often ask the FDA about the safety of cooking in aluminum utensils. Evidence shows that cooking in aluminum utensils is harmless. It's a fact that aluminum utensils gradually become covered with a grayish-looking substance. And salesmen frequently point out that this substance is harmful when eaten with food cooked in the aluminumware.

Mrs. Anderson explains that the grayish coating is actually a harmless oxide or "rust" that is caused by minerals in food or water. It can easily be removed in a solution of 2 tablespoons cream of tartar to one quart of water, heated on the range.

You can also remove the discoloration by cooking acid foods such as tomatoes, rhubarb, or applesauce, in the aluminum pan. And the cooked food will be safe to eat.

Because aluminum is the third most abundant element in the earth's crust, it occurs naturally in many foods. Also, aluminum compounds have a number of uses as direct food ingredients that scientists recognize as safe. For example, alum is used to keep pickles firm. Scientific studies show that the amount of aluminum ingested as a result of preparing foods in aluminum cookware is insignificant.

Other frequent inquiries concern the safety of cooking in utensils coated with the fluorocarbon resin trade-marked "Teflon." According to FDA scientists, pans coated with Teflon are safe for conventional kitchen use.

Tests show that the fluorocarbon resin gives off gases when heated to high temperatures. However, in the home, except for high-temperature searing on the surface of the range or oven-broiling, the fluorocarbon resins will not decompose to any significant extent in normal cooking. In short, don't broil or pan broil in fluorocarbon resin-coated utensils.

Investigations were also conducted on the possibility of food contamination resulting from continued use of resin-coated pans.

Researchers fried hamburgers in an uncoated aluminum pan, in a newly coated resin pan, in an aged pan that had been heated at 250 degrees Centigrade for 150 hours, and in a pan that had received two and a half years of domestic use. The hamburgers were then analyzed for fluoride, because its presence would provide an index to Teflon residue. (Aluminum contains traces of fluoride as impurities.)

The analyses showed substantially the same amount of fluoride in the hamburgers cooked in the new resin-coated pan and in the plain aluminum pan. Hamburgers cooked in the heat-aged and the old pan showed slight fluoride increases, but the amounts were still well within safe limits.

Menu Wizardry For A Happy Halloween

Here's a meal in the Halloween mood that's perfect for a full-scale All Hallow's Eve party for teens or youngsters or just as an especially hearty family meal to keep everyone well-fed between trick-or-treat stories. It boasts a Witch's Pot Pie, Goblin Salad, Cheese Biscuits and a Mysterious Cake. This special menu for Halloween is based on smart make-ahead recipes that let the hostess celebrate, too.

There's no trick to these tempting Halloween treats: they're all easy-to-do and can be prepared before that busy evening. The main dish is a delicious, filling chicken casserole named Witch's Pot Pie in honor of the occasion. It combines tender cooked chicken and diced Cheddar cheese with such unusual ingredients as cashew nuts and bean sprouts. Celery, green pepper and pimiento contribute bright autumn color, the special Halloween treat bonus is spicy summer sausage strips. It's all put together with an unusual sauce made with tart apple cider. Decorate the casserole with a witch cut from buttermilk biscuit dough flavored with shredded Cheddar cheese. Savory Cheese Biscuits, baked from the same dough, make a great go-along.

Two-layered Goblin Salad has a base layer of lemon gelatin combined with creamy pineapple yogurt for extra flavor and nutrition. The crowning layer is refreshing lime gelatin studded with mandarin oranges, crushed pineapple and green grapes. The surprise ingredient is ginger ale added for extra holiday sparkle and extra good gobbliu'.

For dessert serve Mysterious Cake, a simple butter cake marbled in Halloween colors. The basic batter, with sour cream added for extra moistness, is tinted orange and flavored with grated orange peel. Then some of the batter is tinted brown with cocoa and cinnamon and swirled with the remaining batter for a marbled effect. Bake your mystery cake in a handsome bundt pan for this special evening and top with easy Orange Drizzle Frosting. If you are not a cake baker and prefer using a mix, you can still feature this cake. Use an orange cake mix and add sour cream to enhance its texture and keeping qualities.

Let the wise old owl remind you, Halloween's a good time to plan a party or festive family meal using these easy, do-ahead recipes.

WITCH'S POT PIE

Biscuits:

3 cups buttermilk biscuit mix

1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup milk
Melted butter

Casserole:

4 cups diced cooked chicken
1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts, drained
1 1/2 cups (6 oz.) diced Cheddar cheese
1 1/4 cups (6 1/4-oz. can) cashew nuts
1 cup diced green pepper
1 cup celery cut diagonally in 1-inch pieces
1 jar (4 oz.) diced pimiento
1/2 pound summer sausage cut into julienne strips
5 tablespoons butter
1/3 cup all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
1 1/2 cups apple cider

To prepare Biscuits: In a medium bowl toss together biscuit mix and cheese. Add milk, stirring with a fork until dough clings together. Reserve about 1/2 cup mixture. On lightly floured surface knead remaining dough lightly. Pat or roll into rectangle, about 1/2-inch thick; cut into squares. Transfer to baking sheet; brush with butter. Bake in a preheated 425 degree oven 15-18 minutes. Keep warm. Roll remaining dough 1/4-inch thick. Cut out witch using paper pattern.

To prepare Pot Pie: In 3-quart shallow casserole mix together chicken, bean sprouts, cheese, nuts, green pepper, celery, pimiento and summer sausage. In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan melt butter. Blend in flour and salt. Cook over low heat until mixture is smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Gradually add cider. Boil and stir 1 minute. Pour over chicken mixture. Place witch biscuit on top; bake in preheated 425 degree oven, 20 minutes. Makes 10-12 servings.

GOBLIN SALAD

Lime Mandarin Layer

1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges
1 can (8 1/2 oz.) crushed pineapple
1 can (8 1/2 oz.) seedless green grapes
2 bottles (7-oz. each) ginger ale
2 packages (3-oz. each) lime flavor gelatin

1 cup boiling water

Lemon-Yogurt Layer

2 packages (3-oz. each) lemon flavor gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup cold water
2 cartons (8-oz. each) pineapple yogurt

To prepare Lime Layer: Drain fruit, reserving juices; add ginger ale and water to make 3 cups. In a bowl pour boiling water over lime gelatin; stir until dissolved. Add fruit juices, chill until tially set. Fold in fruit. Pour into 2 1/2-quart shallow pan or dish. Chill just until set.

To prepare Lemon Layer: In a bowl pour boiling water over lemon gelatin; stir until dissolved. Add cold water. Cool slightly and blend in yogurt. Pour over lime layer. Chill until firm. Turn out on lettuce lined platter. Makes 12 servings.

MYSTERIOUS CAKE

Cake:

1 cup (2 sticks) butter
3/4 teaspoon yellow food color
1/2 teaspoon red food color
1 1/2 cups sugar
4 egg yolks
2 tablespoons grated orange peel
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup dairy sour cream
4 egg whites
1/2 cup sugar
3 to 4 drops yellow food color
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Orange Drizzle:

1 1/4 cups confectioners sugar
3 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon butter, softened
1 teaspoon corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 to 4 drops yellow food color
2 to 3 drops red food color

To prepare Cake: In a large mixing bowl, cream butter; add food colors. Gradually add 1 1/2 cups sugar beating until light and fluffy. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time; add orange peel. Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream. In a small mixing bowl beat egg whites to soft peaks; gradually beat in 1/2 cup sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites into batter. Mix together cocoa and cinnamon; add 2 cups batter; mix well. Turn 1/3 portion orange batter into 12-cup buttered bundt pan; pour over 1/2 the chocolate batter; repeat, ending with orange batter. Cut through with knife for marbled effect. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven 1 to 1 1/4 hours. Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Turn onto rack and cool completely.

To prepare Orange Drizzle: In a small mixing bowl beat together sugar, milk, butter, corn syrup and vanilla. Add food color to tint orange. Drizzle over cake.

QUICKIE MYSTERIOUS CAKE

1 package (1 lb. 3 oz.) orange cake mix
1 cup dairy sour cream
4 egg yolks
6 drops red food color
6 drops yellow food color
4 egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon cinnamon

In a large mixing bowl beat cake mix, sour cream and egg yolks 4 minutes on medium speed of mixer. Add food color. Beat egg whites to soft peaks; gradually beat in 2 tablespoons sugar until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites into batter. Mix together cocoa and cinnamon, stir in 2 cups batter. Turn 1/3 of orange batter into 12-cup buttered bundt pan; pour over 1/2 of the chocolate batter; repeat, ending with orange batter. Cut through with knife for marbled effect. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven, 40-45 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Turn onto rack and cool completely. Frost with Orange Drizzle.

Consumer Tips

ADD A SURPRISE to your next meat loaf. Pack the meat around whole peeled carrots or around rectangles of sharp processed cheese, or around a row of hard-cooked eggs. You might also like to alternate layers of seasoned ground meat with layers of sliced onions, sliced fresh tomatoes and cooked bacon.

OKRA IS A SEED pod harvested in the immature stage well before the pods or seeds have begun to harden. The pods of fresh okra should be tender, bright green, free from blemishes and less than 4 1/2 inches long. The tips should bend with slight pressure.

FOR LOW COST and variety in meals, use eggs, dry beans, dry peas and peanut butter in place of meat some of the time. These foods provide protein and other nutrients that meat supplies.

Halloween Menu

The Pumpkin Comes To Dinner

It's time for cider and doughnuts, witches, goblins and, of course, jack-o'-lanterns. Bright orange pumpkins are a welcome symbol of harvest, Halloween and fun. Both children and adults enjoy trying their artistic hand at carving their own jack-o'-lantern.

But many people forget that they are also a delicious vegetable. This fall, try serving fresh pumpkins.

First, you should know how to choose the pumpkin. Here are some tips for buying pumpkins from the United States Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service. Although there are no USDA grade standards specifically for pumpkins, the same general buying criteria for winter squash apply to them.

They should be well matured, not broken or cracked; free from soft spots and excessive scarring; and they should be clean.

Pumpkins should have a rich, orange color.

Most varieties of pumpkins do not keep as well as hard-shelled or winter squash. They may be kept for 2-3 months, but should be stored in a cool, dry place (50-55 degrees). All winter squash should be well matured, carefully handled and free from injury or decay when put in storage.

Pumpkins provide the makings of spicy pumpkin pie, bread, muffins, puddings and custards. Small pumpkins may be stuffed with meat, vegetables or seafood. A delicious soup can be made from pumpkin mixed with pureed carrots, sliced onions and leeks, chopped celery and parsley. It's also good mashed and seasoned with butter and cinnamon or baked and glazed with honey.

PUMPKIN CAN be prepped (and) stored same as other winter squashes, i.e., banana, Hubbard, acorn or Danish. To boil pumpkin, quarter it and remove the seeds and stringy portions. Cut into smaller pieces and remove the rind. Cook, covered, in a small amount lightly salted boiling water, 25-30 minutes or until tender. Since pumpkins are a watery vegetable, a large amount of cooking water is undesirable.

When cooked, drain and mash. To use in recipes calling for canned pumpkin, place mashed pumpkin in a strainer and let drain about 30 minutes to remove excess liquid (or puree).

To bake pumpkin, simply wash and cut into serving size portions. Remove seeds and strings. Place in a pan, shell side up, and bake in a 325 degree oven for 1 hour or more until fork tender. During the last 15 minutes, turn flesh side up and brush with butter or a glaze, if desired. Or, scoop the pulp from the shell and mash.

To serve as a vegetable, allow about 1/2 pound of fresh pumpkin per person.

PUMPKIN WITH SOUR CREAM

4 pounds pumpkin, peeled and diced (about 5 cups)
1/2 cup water
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup brown sugar or honey
1/4 cup butter
1 cup sour cream
Cook pumpkin in boiling salted water over low heat until tender. Drain pumpkin and mash; stir in sugar, butter and sour cream. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

PRUNE PUMPKIN CASSEROLE

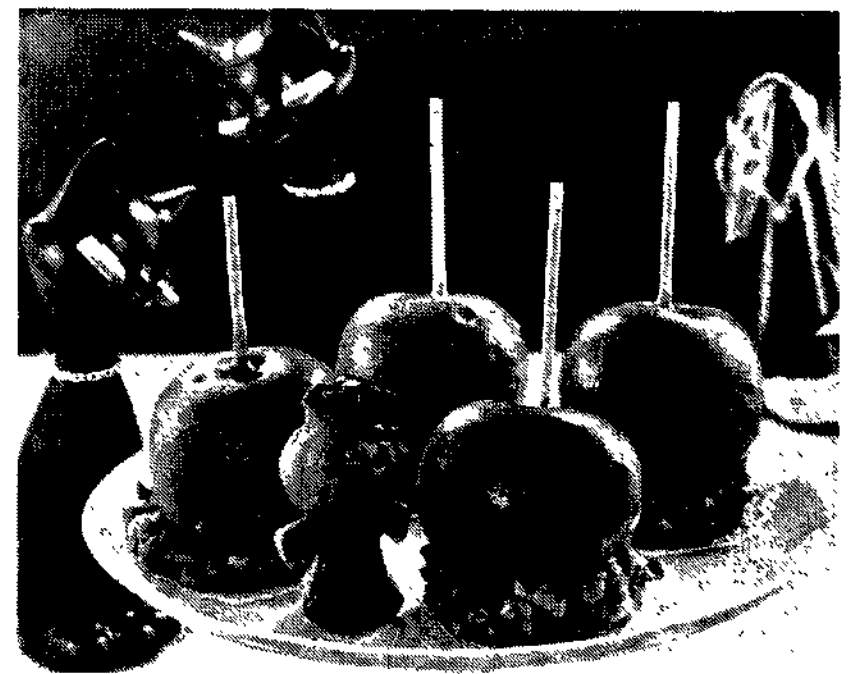

2 cups cooked, mashed or diced pumpkin
3/4 cup brown sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup milk
1 cup plumped chopped prunes
1/3 cup broken walnuts
1/4 cup butter

Prune and walnut garnish

Combine pumpkin with remaining ingredients except butter and garnish. Pour into a baking dish; dot with butter. Bake in 375 degree oven for 45 minutes. Garnish with pitted prunes and walnuts. Makes 6 servings.

PUMPKIN CUSTARD

2 eggs
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1 cup pureed pumpkin
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
1 tablespoon orange juice
Beat eggs together with sugar, salt, nutmeg and ginger. Stir in pumpkin, cream, orange rind and juice. Pour into 6 buttered custard cups. Set in a pan of hot water in a 325 degree oven. Bake for 40 minutes or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Remove cups from pan. Serve warm or cold with ginger-flavored whipped cream. Serves 6.

Creamy Caramel Apples

There's no trick to making these easy Creamy Caramel Apples. They will be not only a favorite treat with the youngsters at Halloween time but also with the adults. This recipe calls for the caramel apples to be dipped in California walnuts which gives an added crunchiness that everybody will be sure to love.

CREAMY CARAMEL APPLES

6 medium, clean, dry Delicious apples
1 cup granulated sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup light corn syrup
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2/3 cup (small can) undiluted evaporated milk

1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup chopped California walnuts

Stick wooden skewer into blossom end of each apple. Combine sugar, salt, corn syrup, butter and evaporated milk in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until syrup forms a firm ball in cold water or 245 degrees on a candy thermometer. Add vanilla; stir. Dip apple into caramel mixture; turn until completely coated. Immediately roll bottom half of coated apple in walnuts. Place on waxed paper to cool. Makes six apples.

Note: If caramel mixture becomes too cool, place over low heat, stirring until desired consistency is reached.

All-In-One Skillet Meal For Those Busy Fall Days

On those hectic days when you barely have time to take off your coat before dinner must be started, an all-in-one skillet meal can save you lots of time and trouble.

And with fresh yams back in season, happily, you can again include them in your dishes to add extra color, flavor and nutrition to your menus. Plump and delicious, the fresh Louisiana yams in the markets now are shipped directly from the fields to you.

The yam farmers are celebrating their plentiful harvest at the annual Louisiana Yambilee this weekend. And we can join the festivities — and do ourselves a favor — by trying some new yam ideas. For instance, this hearty, nutritious and easy-to-prepare one-skillet meal is just right for a brisk and busy fall day.

Or, the Marmalade Yams make a delightful accompaniment for baked ham, roast pork or turkey. Indeed, versatile yams provide a variety of menu ideas as a side dish, main dish or dessert.

LOUISIANA

YAM AND HAM SKILLET

¾ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 teaspoon soy sauce
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 pound cooked ham steak
4 medium Louisiana yams, cooked, peeled and halved or 2 cans (16 ounces each)
Louisiana yams, drained
1 can (5 ounces) whole water chestnuts, drained
2 medium bananas, green-tipped, quartered Combine juice, butter, soy sauce and ginger in large skillet; heat to boiling.
Place ham steak, yams and water chestnuts in skillet and cook over medium heat 5 minutes. Turn ham and yams; add bananas. Cook another 5 minutes.
Makes 4 servings.

MARMALADE YAMS

¾ cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup orange marmalade
4 medium Louisiana yams, cooked and peeled or 2 cans (16 ounces each)
Louisiana yams, drained
Melt butter. Add marmalade and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until blended. Add yams and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

Louisiana Yam and Ham Skillet

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Many seafoods tend to be bland in taste and chefs employ various devices such as hot sauces, lemon juice and wine to give them extra flavor. Oftentimes, too, you can blend certain varieties of seafood in the same dish to step up taste quality.

That's the case in this New England Seafood casserole which combines scallops, a 10-ounce package of frozen peeled and deveined raw shrimp, and either an 8-ounce package of frozen or a can (7½ ounce) of crab meat.

Allow scallops and shrimp to thaw completely. Bring 2 cups water mixed with 2 tablespoons vinegar to a boil. Drop in the scallops, remove from the heat and allow to stand 3 minutes. Remove scallops and plunge into cold water, then dry on paper toweling. This procedure assures you of tender scallops.

Wash shrimp and dry. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a skillet and add the scallops, shrimp, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 2 ounces dry sherry, 2 ounces bottled clam juice, 1 teaspoon salt, several dashes of freshly ground pepper, and a tablespoon of fresh lemon juice.

Stir in ¼ teaspoon paprika and 1 teaspoon dry mustard. Cook for 5 minutes over medium heat. Butter a shallow baking dish and remove to it the scallops and shrimp (a slotted wooden spoon does this well). Add the crab meat, (thaw if frozen) and mix the seafoods. Keep medium heat under the skillet juices and thicken with 1½ teaspoons cornstarch dissolved in 2 tablespoons water. Now remove from heat. Beat 2 egg yolks with 2 tablespoons half and half and 4 tablespoons mayonnaise. Fold into the warm sauce.

Pour the sauce over seafoods and bake for 10 minutes in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden brown.

EXCELLENT to serve with a seafood casserole is avocado-fruit salad with lime dressing. Prepare dressing in advance by blending well ¼ cup salad oil, 2 tablespoons fresh lime juice, 6 drops Tabasco sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon celery salt, and 2 tablespoons sugar.

Serve each person one half of an avocado (peeled and seed removed) with sections of orange and grapefruit in the cavity. These may be fresh or canned. Place avocado half on endive or lettuce leaves, add fruit and moisten with the lime dressing.

Teachers Appear Favorable To Latest Proposal

They will vote on it Monday but School District 54 teachers' initial reaction to a new salary proposal from board members was favorable late Wednesday when about 250 teachers met to hear about the new offer.

The meeting was called on short notice after the school board and the Schaumburg Education Association teams reached an agreement late Tuesday.

Wednesday at least half the SEA members were handed the new contract package that showed a $50 increase to the last offer on beginning salaries plus reinstatement of head of household and military pay.

A representative of the teachers association, talking while teachers were learning about the new contract offered, said those teachers present were satisfied.

"BUT WE STILL have 200 more teachers to hear from who belong to the association, have not attended tonight's meeting and don't know what the new proposal contains," he said. "The Monday vote will decide the issue." Yesterday's session was strictly to find out what was happening.

Board President Donnie Rudd, said the board is optimistic teachers will ratify the contract proposal. He said the board had moved considerably since the last contract was turned down in September.

The SEA representative said the new proposal shows a beginning salary of $7,900 a year, an increase of $50 over the last offer.

RUDD SAID the increase comes to more than $30,000 over what was in the original package.

Rudd agreed that the head of the household and military pay reinstatement were major points in holding up contract approval.

The first contract would have eliminated this extra pay system which gives a head of a household more money for performing the same job as an unmarried teacher and those with military service money credit for each year they served in the armed forces.

$1 Million Fire Rips Area Plant

by TOM JACHIMIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and re-

Woodfield Park, as visualized by an artist. Golf Road, the north boundary, is at the bottom.

Woodfield Park Layout Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons' planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations, financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm, and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield area shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall site, in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site, in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza, to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center, now under construction. A Jewel-Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated. From Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

velopment is a proposed multi-family residential complex, to include 2,500 units of apartments, townhouses or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

Moving back left, fronting Meacham Road, a sports complex with a possible sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams, but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighters-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firiyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

The Market

Stocks fell across a broad front in moderate trading. Market averages finished in reverse gear for the 11th straight session and analysts said, "The worst part is there is no sign of a selling climax." The Dow Jones average had a loss of 8.98 at 836.38. Declines outnumbered advances 1,109 to 318 on the New York Exchange. Prices declined in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

TELLING A STORY to three-year-olds takes some finger-waving energy on the part of Schaumburg Township Public Library storyteller Mrs. Jo Monson. The 20-minute sessions for tots are held Mondays.

GOING TO the library can be fun if someone reads a story especially for you. Three-year-old Jack Goldberg listens attentively during a recent Schaumburg Township Public Library visit.

Glass, Paper Drive For Recycling Set

Schaumburg Jaycee-ettes are sponsoring a glass and paper recycling drive Saturday through Thursday. Bins for depositing old newspaper and glass will be stationed near the construction site at Weathersfield Common Shopping Center, Schaumburg and Spring-insuth roads. No magazines can be accepted, and glass bottles should have metal rings removed. Money earned from the drive will be used by the Jaycee-ettes for community activities the group sponsors. The drive is part of monthly drives being organized by the village Clean Environment Committee.

Vending Co. Burglarized

An estimated $5,000 in dimes, nickels and quarters was stolen from Cockrell Coffee Service, 2207 N. Hammond Dr., Schaumburg, after burglars by-passed doors with burglar alarms and cut a hole in the roof. Kenneth Grueness, company representative, notified police at 5:37 a.m. Monday that the building has been broken into. Police found an 18 by 30 inch hole cut in the roof of the building, and later discovered a crow bar, sledge hammer, axe head, screw driver and flashlight in or near the premises. The tools apparently were used to cut through the roof. The money was taken from a money-counting room in the building of the food vending machine company. On investigating, police found the burglars had climbed onto the roof from a bakery truck next to the building and cut the roof hole over a rear receiving area in the building. They then went into a woman's restroom, and up into a false ceiling.

From there, they entered a men's restroom, and broke through a wall into the money counting area. Police noted the burglars by-passed every door in the building that was set with a burglar alarm. In the money counting and records room, all cabinets had been broken into said police. Grueness told them extra amounts of money had been kept at the office building because of the Veteran's Day holiday.

Charter Broadens Home Rule: Siegel

"Prior to adoption of the 1970 Illinois Constitution, municipalities were creatures of the legislature," said Schaumburg Atty. Jack M. Siegel this week.

Siegel, who served on a panel of attorneys involved in interpreting "home rule" provisions of the revised state charter, capsulized its concepts for village officials at Tuesday's village board meeting.

Section 6, Article 7 of the new document is viewed by Siegel as a "revolution in constitutional law" that gives broader powers to local government.

Under the new "home rule" provisions, counties having their chief executive officers elected and having a population of more than 25,000 are considered home rule units.

Those having less than the required number of residents may elect home rule through referendum, Siegel explained.

HE NOTED also that in Illinois, Cook County is the only qualifying county, but speculated that others may be considered the referendum route.

All municipalities having a 25,000 population automatically become home rule units under the constitution and smaller areas may also take on home rule through a referendum, but under certain circumstances, may lose their powers.

"A home rule unit has the power to license anything that moves, tax anything that moves, and incur debt with no limit except as limited by the constitution," Siegel said.

He said a home rule unit has no power to incur debt repayable through property tax for more than 40 years and provides no criminal code.

"Home rule only has the power that the general assembly gives it, and cannot license for revenue or levy a municipal tax," he continued, adding these areas "can adopt, alter and regulate their own type of government."

A HOME RULE unit can change its specific type of government and can also limit or increase the number of trustees or other village officials to be elected. Home rule revisions have eliminated a ceiling on the tax rate that may be levied by a municipality and also done away with the 5 per cent total assessed valuation debt limit stipulated in the old constitution.

"What has been done can be construed as a reversal in the flow of power," Siegel said.

Siegel also feels "there has been no greater contribution than home rule." Schaumburg currently has a population of nearly 25,000 and plans a special census later this year to insure qualification for home rule.

"I think of this not as a power but the ability to solve problems without having to go to the legislature to ask if you may," said Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

Suspect Arson In Apartment Fire

Schaumburg police are investigating a reported arson at the Normandy Building of International Village apartments, 1318 Algonquin Rd. The building was evacuated during the fire.

The same building was the object of three other suspected arsons last week, but in Tuesday morning's incident, damage was assessed at $500, more than in the other three cases.

Police Sgt. James Dillon and Patrolman William Ostermann tried to extinguish the fire with a water extinguisher, but were not successful. The fire department then arrived and put out the fire.

The fire was in a second floor laundry room, the same room where the previous cases occurred. It was set in trash and rags. Police advised Dick Roux, resident manager of the building, to install a lock on the laundry room door, and open the room for tenant use only during specified hours.

Kids Trick-Or-Treat For UNICEF Sunday

Children from Our Saviour's United Methodist Church and Church of the Cross-United Presbyterian will trick-or-treat for UNICEF (United Nation's Children's Fund) Sunday in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

For 25 years UNICEF has provided help for millions of needy children in developing countries. The organization's 25th anniversary is being observed with the motto "A future for every child."

A 25-cent contribution to UNICEF can buy enough medicine to cure five children of trachoma or protect 25 children against tuberculosis. The same donation can be used to provide seed for 3,000 tomato plants or enough dried milk to provide 125 glasses of milk.

3 Christies Will Perform At Hale

The Three Christies, acrobatic comedians from Europe, will be among the acts appearing tomorrow at Nathan Hale School, West Wise Road, Schaumburg. The entertainers are one of the groups to perform when the Hale School PTA brings the Borger Brothers Circus to the gymnasium.

There will be evening performances at 6 and 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $1 and will admit either a child or adult.

Prelude To Major Fire

'It Was Like A Big Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE
At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busy blending industrial enamel in a large tank. Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose. It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man, standing 20 feet away at the time, described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off . . . pow . . . there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like, only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger."

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

Office Occupations President Elected

Gail Dorsey, James B. Conant High School senior from Hoffman Estates, has been elected president of the area 22 Office Occupations Programs.

As president, she will direct activities of the "00" students from Prospect, Lake Park, Fenton, Arlington Heights, Fremd, Schaumburg and Conant high schools.

Jane Lindow of Hoffman Estates was chosen alternate.

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety-split out the front door. "Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they was in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed. One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second and third-degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS . . . the building is full of every flammable chemical there is . . . there might be more explosions . . . we haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

The Salvation Army was at the fire dispensing coffee and rolls.

"I can't believe it . . . I just can't believe it," said one woman, as she watched the fire.

Work at surrounding plants came to a standstill as one by one curious onlookers, nearby workers and others formed crowds to see the big fire. One couple even came carrying a baby just a few weeks old and swaddled in blankets to protect him from the smoke.

IN A FEW HOURS, the fire spent itself and was under control. Firemen stayed on the scene to spray the smoldering building with water, just to be sure.

None of the nearby buildings caught fire, but at least one sustained some smoke damage.

And by 1 p.m., the paint factory was just ruins, smoking testimony of what had happened.

Tool Box, Plywood Thefts Reported

The separate thefts of a tool box and its contents valued at $1,200 and of 150 sheets of plywood valued at $670 are under investigation by Schaumburg Village police.

The tool chest was taken between Friday and Monday, said Kenneth E. Kratz, a pipe fitter at the Merriott Restaurant under construction at Woodfield. The tool box weighed about 475 pounds, he said, telling police he had no idea how it could have been removed from the loading dock area where it had been stored.

The plywood theft was reported by Robert Lange, a construction worker for Levitt and Sons construction company. Lange said the 150 sheets were taken from townhouse building 18 on Lancaster Court. The theft occurred after 4 p.m. Friday, and was discovered Monday morning.

ALSO REPORTED was the burglary of Roselle Dodge, Golf Road, Schaumburg, discovered Monday morning. Jeff Parsons, auto dealer, told police entry was gained by cutting a hole in a fence.

Taken were two tires and wheels from an auto near the storage area of the building. The thieves then entered a garage and office area, said Parsons. A window in the office area was smashed, then the culprits went to the second floor, where they removed several tires. The tires were found on the first floor, and it was not known Wednesday morning whether other items were taken.

Kenneth Murphy, 99 Stonegate, Buffalo Grove, reported Monday night a tire had been stolen from his station wagon near J. C. Penney's, Woodfield. He valued the tire at $58.

Roy Johnston of 1310 N. Valley Lake Dr. told police Tuesday night a $100 tire had been taken from the trunk of his car while it was near his apartment building.

Mrs. Lenora G. Hammond, 119 Hartford Ln., Schaumburg, reported the theft of her purse and the $40 it contained from her child's stroller while she was shopping Monday afternoon in Sears Roebuck and Co., Woodfield.

$1 Million Fire Rips Area Plant

leased from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

Year Later: Jayne Murder Trial Still Hasn't Begun

by MARGE FERROLI
A full year has passed since Inverness horseman George Jayne was shot and murdered last Oct. 28, but the trial has yet to begin.
Four men including Jayne's brother, Silas, have been held in Cook County Jail without bond since their arrest May 22 on murder charges waiting for the litigation.

to get out of the complication of pre-trial hearings. But the actual trial probably will not begin until the early part of next year.
Motions and counter motions have been filed by both the assistant state's attorneys and defense attorneys in criminal court, delaying the progress of the hearings. The immense volume of police reports, crime lab reports and grand jury testimony has taken much time to prepare for all the lawyers involved, who need the information to help them in preparing their cases.

THESE LEGAL proceedings have virtually eliminated the Palatine police, the original investigators in the murder, from the case, although testimony of local police will be a necessary part of the actual trial.

Jayne was killed by a single shot of a rifle as he played cards with his family in the basement of his palatial home the evening of Oct. 28. After the shooting, a large-scale investigation was started by the Palatine police in conjunction with the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and state's attorney's police.

This investigation involved the questioning of countless individuals who may have had some contacts with some of the key figures involved in the case. It also brought about further study of previous murders involving the Jaynes, such as the 1965 bombing of George's car which killed horse trainer Cherie Rude and the 1969 shooting of Frank Michelle who was found dead outside Silas' Elgin home.

and three others
ADAMS, WHO HAD been charged with attempting to influence the testimony of another grand jury witness, was granted immunity for his information and is now being held in protective custody.
His testimony led to the two-count indictments against Silas, Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, a bodyguard and friend of Silas'; Edwin Nefeld of Chicago Heights, an ex-policeman from Markham; and Julius Barnes of Chicago, a laborer.

All pleaded not guilty to their charges.
A fifth suspect, Kenneth Hansen, was also indicted shortly after the others on charges of conspiracy and solicitation to commit murder. However, his attorney has requested the charges be dropped.

The next hearing on the death of George Jayne will be held in criminal court Nov. 4. This will amount to another continuation in a string of continuations that might eventually lead to the trial and the end of a history of death.

Continue Del Lago Plan Hearing

A preannexation hearing on the 43-acre Del Lago Villas sexxtrominium project along Higgins Road was continued this week to the Nov. 9 village board meeting in Schaumburg.

Being planned by Consumers Development and Construction, Ltd., the complex will have 29.5 acres of cluster development within 48 buildings of six units each.

Also included in the proposal are three 10-story rental buildings which will contain 240 apartments.

The property is located on Higgins Road just west of Meacham Road.

The condominiums will have 56 one-bedroom units, 192 two-bedroom units, and 40 two-bedroom plus bed units and 631 parking spaces.

The 240 rental units would contain 72 efficiency units, 72 one-bedroom units and 96 two-bedroom apartments, with 144 parking spaces also to be provided.

A 65-acre commercial site is also being considered but principals claim they do not have "active plans" for its development.

A NUMBER of hearings held last summer by the zoning board of appeals resulted in recommendation of the proposal for planned unit development zoning.

Only Russell Parker, zoning board chairman, voted against granting the zoning. Parker feels the development is too dense in areas, and also objects to the petitioners failure to plan for commercial development.

The preannexation agreement reached trustees too late for consideration at the Oct. 19 village board meeting.

Confused legal terminology and other discrepancies in the proposed annexation agreement created a more than two-hour discussion of the project during Tuesday's village board meeting.

Attorney David Malfar, representing petitioners, was assigned to work out the legalities with Jack M. Siegel, village attorney. He must present the revised document to trustees one week prior to the next village board meeting.

PRINCIPALS in the development include Bernard M. Fineberg, president of Jefferson State Bank, Chicago, and owner of the Golf-Higgins Shopping Center in Schaumburg; and Samuel Lemsky, a developer.

Del Lago Villas was designed by Donald Ross Blivas and Associates, a Chicago architectural firm, responsible also for designing "Versailles On The Lake" now being constructed by Scholz Corp. at Meacham and Golf Roads in Schaumburg.

Name Ballfield For Johnny

The baseball diamond at the southwest corner of Falk Park will be named the Johnny Lumm Memorial Field for the five-year-old boy killed recently while crossing Springguth Road.

The park is west of Nathan High School, 1300 Wise Road, Schaumburg.

The park commissioners, told that Johnny Lumm was a baseball enthusiast and looking forward to the day when he could play little league ball, decided to have a memorial for the youth, Paul Derda, park director said.

A redwood plaque with the boy's name engraved will be installed at the field, he added.

The boy was killed when struck by a car Sept. 25, on Springguth Road near Syracuse Lane, about three blocks from his home. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lumm, 1420 W. Colby Ln., Schaumburg.

He was a student at Hale School. A group of neighbors are requesting a safety survey of Springguth Road in hopes of avoiding future tragedy.

Auto Pollution Testing Offered

Is your automobile contributing to excessive air pollution? If you are concerned drive to J.C. Penney auto center at Woodfield in Schaumburg for a free anti-pollution test at J.C. Penney's scientific testing center.

Free test lanes have been set up in the automotive diagnostic center through Saturday. The auto center is offering a free series of tests to car owners to determine how much their automobile contributes to air pollution.

Good maintenance practices and air pollution control go hand in hand, said Tom Harrington, merchandise manager for J.C. Penney.

The free tests check cars for raw fuel, crankcase and exhaust emission. In many cases the tests also indicate the parts of the tested car that should be adjusted or repaired to reduce emissions and pollutants often accompany low gas mileage in an inefficiently operating auto.

The auto center is open noon to 8 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday when the test offer ends.

Got Urge To Paint? Come To Fox School

Would-be Rembrandts and Picassos or those who just enjoy having fun with paints are invited to Anne Fox Elementary School at 1035 Parkview Dr., Hanover Park, Nov. 3.

PTA officials said the evening could be a challenge to expression or just a chance to show off a personal touch in art work. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Reservations are needed for "Art Happening No. 3," the evening's theme. Those interested in attending are asked to send their name, address and phone number to the school, along with a 75-cent fee to cover the cost of supplies for the evening.

In Cash Or Services . . .

Board OKs $8,000 For Youth Unit

Wheeling's Village Board agreed to guarantee a donation of cash or services totaling $8,000 next year for the youth services bureau project.

The action Tuesday followed by one day a Buffalo Grove Village Board decision to donate a maximum of $8,000 to the project. The donations by the two villages will cover the entire cost of a center to house the proposed bureau.

The Wheeling village board left open the possibility that the donation might be in the form of a facility for the bureau to use as its headquarters rather than in cash.

Three local groups — the Wheeling Youth Commission, the Torch mental health clinic and HELP Inc. — are seeking a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission to start a youth center for Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

The groups needed confirmation for $43,000 local funding in services and in cash before the bureau could make its final presentation to the ILEC on Friday.

THE BUILDING would include counseling facilities to help solve youth problems and it would serve as a "drop-in" center for all local youths.

Steve Smallwood, a Wheeling high school student who is working with the adult organizations to establish the center, explained that "75 per cent of the facility would be just some place for kids to go to listen to music, watch TV and rap with their friends."

Such a center would help not only by rehabilitating delinquents but also would prevent "good kids from being led to vandalism or delinquency because they have nothing to do," the proposal suggests.

Wheeling trustees Monday repeatedly asked for assurance that the center would be for "good kids" such as those who participate in the Wheeling High School band or the First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps, not just for "juvenile delinquents."

AT A COMMITTEE meeting earlier in the evening Trustee Michael Valenza pointed out that Wheeling has a total of $15,000 earmarked for the project, including a $5,000 donation and a $2,000 budget item for mental health, as opposed to a total Buffalo Grove commitment for $9,500.

Wheeling officials also were skeptical about whether Buffalo Grove's commitment to donate the money was a firm one. They pointed to Buffalo Grove's past financial difficulties in questioning the HELP representatives.

Wheeling acting Village Mgr. George Passolt, administrative assistant Roger Stricker and Valenza pointed out that with Wheeling's rapid expansion this year the village will not have money as readily available next year as it has had in the past.

The said expanding village police and fire protection to meet the needs of a larger community and work on streets and sewers must be given priority in village spending.

VALENZA INDICATED that because of the developments now under way, the village might be able to get donations of labor and materials for a center. "We trustees have a way with builders," he indicated.

Ruth Wieder of HELP Inc., said that the groups already have a commitment from Gus Stavros to act as general contractor for a building.

Valenza also suggested that the village might be willing to lease a piece of land adjacent to the Wheeling municipal building for $1 per year as a site for the youth services bureau center.

Board members said that a proposal be made that the village fire station could not be turned over for a youth center once a new fire station is built. "At this point the fire department is not available for a youth center. It's not vacant and it won't be for a while," Trustee Edward Berger said.

Valenza said he would do everything he could to see that Wheeling's cash donation would be kept to a minimum while still getting a facility for the youth center.

Hope Road Work Can Begin In Spring

Wheeling officials hope that work can begin on the realignment of Wheeling Road at Dundee Road next spring, village trustees said yesterday.

The work will begin with installation of new stoplights, four left-turn lanes and two right-turn lanes at the intersection, Trustee Edward Berger explained. After the intersection work is completed, the village will begin work on the realignment.

A timetable for the work was set at a meeting yesterday morning with state highway department officials, village employees, village trustees and Village Engineer Thomas Moody.

Moody was directed to prepare final plans for the work by February so that construction can begin in the spring.

Most of the cost for the intersection work will be paid by the village from state motor fuel tax rebates.

The state division of highways also is expected to pay for a portion of the work.

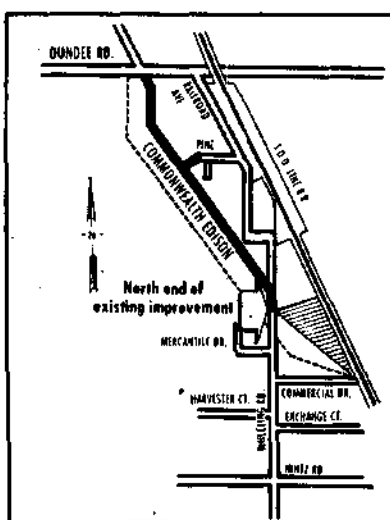

AT THE MEETING yesterday, trustees John Koeppen, Ronald Bruhn and Edward Berger decided to bypass filing for federal aid for the new intersection work because it would delay the work.

Berger explained that the village had to get the road work done now before Wheeling's building boom becomes a population boom.

Board members also noted that the village still must secure additional rights-of-way for the road before construction can begin.

Plans for the realignment will result in Wheeling Road being extended to the northwest to meet McHenry Road at Dundee Road. The village will call this new portion of the roadway "South McHenry Road."

Wheeling Road then will officially begin where the curved realignment meets the straight section of the existing Wheeling Road.

THE REALIGNMENT of Wheeling Road, shown as the black street paralleling Commonwealth Edison Co. easement on the map, will be underway next summer.

FIREMEN USED foam in an attempt to quell the blaze which also caused $20,000 damage to a vacant building to the north.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

$1 Million Blaze Destroys Elk Grove Paint Factory

by TOM JACHIMIEC
An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun,"

said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

Prelude To Major Fire

'It Was Like A Big Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE
At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man, standing 20 feet away at the time, described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off . . . pow . . . there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like, only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger."

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety-split out the front door.

"Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they was in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed.

One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second- and third-degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS . . . the building is full of every flammable chemical there is . . . there might be more explosions . . . we haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

The Salvation Army was at the fire dispensing coffee and rolls.

"I can't believe it . . . I just can't believe it," said one woman, as she watched the fire.

Work at surrounding plants came to a standstill as one by one curious onlookers, nearby workers and others formed crowds to see the big fire. One couple even came carrying a baby just a few weeks old and swaddled in blankets to protect him from the smoke.

IN A FEW HOURS, the fire spent itself and was under control. Firemen stayed on the scene to spray the smoldering building with water, just to be sure.

Mutual Aid Plan Proved Success

Even before he reached the scene of yesterday's fire at the Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village, Allen Hulett, the fire chief there, notified other fire departments that extra help would be needed.

Hulett's call set into motion a pre-arranged plan under which other area fire departments knew immediately what piece of equipment would be needed. Too, they knew immediately whether to send their equipment to the scene of the blaze or to another station for backup service.

Among other things Hulett's call did the following: It brought a ladder truck to the fire from Mount Prospect. It resulted in the Des Plaines Fire Department sending an ambulance to the fire. An ambulance from the Hoffman Estates department was moved to an Elk Grove Village station for backup. A fire truck and ambulance from Schaumburg were sent to the fire.

THE MUTUAL AID plan used yesterday was first put into operation last January. Almost 20 Northwest suburban area departments participate in it.

The plan works like this: Each municipality is divided into several sections and each section has been assigned a specific box alarm number. At each department box alarm numbers are kept in a card file along with information on the location of a fire for each box alarm. Also listed is what equipment each town should send in the event of a fire in the specific box alarm location.

The purpose of the plan is to make it easier and quicker for a fire chief to get any additional fire fighting equipment he needs.

The plan has been used in connection with other fires this year. Only a few weeks ago, area departments held a practice session under the plan at Arlington Park Race Track.

Village Board Approves Storage Silos

The Wheeling Village Board approved building of eight storage silos on the Rock Road Construction Co. property at 231 S. McHenry Rd. Tuesday along with a variety of other actions.

The 70-foot-tall silos will be used for enclosed storage of sand and gravel, which are now kept in open stockpiles.

Plans for the work also include landscaping the exterior of the plant property for beautification.

The board Tuesday also approved an ordinance allowing a garage to be built on a utility easement at 373 Thelma Ct.

The board sent zoning board recommendations for a special-use permit on property at the end of Shepard Ave. for a Ritzenthaler bus storage facility to Village Atty. Paul Hamer. Once Hamer prepares the ordinance the board can vote on the special use permit. Trustee Michael Valenza said Tuesday about the site "I honestly think that the Ritzenthaler people have finally found a home."

THE BOARD ALSO annexed a 33-foot-wide strip of Cornell Avenue to the village after Valenza pointed out that it had inadvertently been left out of earlier legal descriptions.

Board members learned Monday that the Illinois Commerce Commission has approved delaying the installation of the Soo Line R.R. Crossing gates at Dundee Road until Nov. 16.

A letter from School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill was read aloud at the meeting. Gill congratulated former village trustee Roger Stricker in his appointment as administrative assistant to the Wheeling village manager. "Such a position is very demanding in a village such as ours," Gill told Stricker in the letter.

In other reports Tuesday acting Village Mgr. George Passolt praised Metropolitan Sanitary District crews and village public works department employees for work in cleaning out the dams along Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

"It is amazing how much had built up," Passolt said of the debris piled in the creek basin.

VALENZA reported at the meeting that Wheeling's multiple-family building boom is continuing, with building permits valued at $3½ million issued by the village in September.

Trustee Ronald Bruhn said that persons who criticize local police for not patrolling enough should note that Wheeling police Squad cars were driven 20,673 miles last month in the village.

In other action Tuesday, the board tabled action on accepting a plat of dedication for an extension of Shepard Avenue until it had a guarantee that a paved street will be installed before it is turned over to the village.

Excavation For High School Expected To Start Soon

A $118,910 excavating job is expected to begin soon at the Dist. 214 Buffalo Grove High School site on Dundee Road. The Dist. 214 school board Monday awarded a contract to the Ted Sirek Excavating Co., Inc. for the six-month job. The Sirek company was the lowest of five bidders for the job.

The company will excavate the 40-acre site, install sewers and grade the land. The company estimates it will have the site work completed by the beginning of May. The $10.5 million school, the eighth in the district, is scheduled to open September, 1973.

Final plans for the site work, designed by the architect firm of Orput-Orput and Associates Inc., were approved by the school board earlier this month. The architect now must secure bids for the foundation and steel work contracts.

CONSTRUCTION PLANS call for placing the entrance of the school on Arlington Heights Road with parking lots on the east side of the lot, a drainage basin in the northeast corner and athletic fields north of the school.

The architect and Buffalo Grove village officials are now discussing ways to drain storm water out of the five-acre retention basin and away from the school. A privately owned 60-acre lot is located between the school site and the "White Pine Strip," a ditch draining into the Buffalo Creek.

The architect also is conferring with officials of the Buffalo Grove Park District about construction of an indoor pool which will be built onto the outside wall of the high school gym. The school board recently agreed to contribute $80,000 to the total cost of the pool, which is estimated at $464,000.

Correction

A story in yesterday's Herald incorrectly identified the spokesman for the First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps who spoke at last Thursday's Wheeling Park District Board meeting.

The spokesman who defended corps members and said work was progressing on an addition to the park building was Bob Hoehn.

Basketball Teams Needed For League

Teams are needed to compete in the Wheeling Park District Men's Basketball League. Bruce Coleman, district recreation director announced.

The league plays from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday night at Holmes and London Junior High Schools.

The cost for a team to join the league is $125, Coleman said. The games are played according to regular high school rules. Practice sessions for the league have already started, but league play will not begin until Nov. 4.

Men interested in forming a team may contact Coleman at the park district offices by calling 537-2222.

Woodfield Park Layout Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons' planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations, financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm, and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield area shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall site, in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site, in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza, to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center, now under construction. A Jewel Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated from Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

velopment is a proposed multi-family residential complex, to include 2,500 units of apartments, townhouses or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

Moving back left, fronting Meacham Road, a sports complex with a possible sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams, but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

Essay Contest Slated

Sixth graders are invited to enter an Americanism essay and poster contest sponsored by the Phillip Carpenter Armvets Post 66 Auxiliary.

Posters and Essays on the theme of "What is an American?" will be judged in the contest. Local first place winners will be entered in the Armvets Auxiliary Division, state and national competitions.

Cash awards will be given to first and second place winners.

Copies of the rules for the essay and poster contest will be distributed to local schools.

Doris Savage, 326 S. Wheeling Ave., Wheeling is chairman of the contest.

Essay rules are that the essay must be between 200 and 250 words. All words are counted in the total. Any essay longer than 250 words will be disqualified.

ESSAYS MUST be written in ink by the student. The contestants name, address, phone, and school and age must be included on a separate sheet of paper.

Each essay will be judged on its literary construction, originality, patriotic inspiration and neatness.

Posters for the contest may not be larger than 24 by 30 inches with 20 by 20 inches as the recommended size.

The posters must be drawings with no foreign matter affixed to the poster, no chalk drawings and no stencils allowed. An explanation no longer than 25 words may be included on the back of the poster.

Name, address, phone, school and age are to be included on a separate sheet of paper.

Posters will be judged on artistic ability, originality, patriotic inspiration and neatness.

'Career Day' Slated

Thursday At London

A "Career Day" program will be held Thursday at Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling to give students insight into various professions.

Approximately 35 people representing occupations including forestry, modeling, banking, medicine, law, journalism and television production will speak to students and answer questions.

The program will start at 9:15 a.m. and end at 10:15 a.m. Each student will hear presentations on two adult occupations.

The program is being held in connection with American Education Week this week. The theme of American Education Week in Dist. 21 is "The Wonderful World of Work."

Librarian Hired

Kenneth Swanson has been hired as adult services librarian at the Wheeling Public Library by the library board of trustees.

Swanson began his work this week and will be in charge of all library services to adults.

The new librarian previously was a reference librarian at Scott-Foresman Co., Glenview, where he worked for the past six years.

Swanson received a bachelor's degree in education and speech from Northern Illinois University in 1960 and a master's degree in library science from Rosary College in River Forest in 1969.

A native of DeKalb, Swanson now lives in Chicago.

Long Grove Must Sign Pact

Seek Joint Fire Aid Accord Again

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department will try for the third time to enter into an agreement with the Long Grove Fire Department for joint fire protection for homes in Lake County Buffalo Grove.

The Buffalo Grove department has been attempting to get Long Grove to sign a mutual aid agreement since last January. Long Grove has not signed it, although the agreement was recommended by the Illinois Rating and Inspection Bureau.

Under the present arrangement, all of the homes north of Checker Road are under the jurisdiction of the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District. The Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc. serves the rest of the village.

In March, Buffalo Grove renewed its efforts to enter into a mutual aid agreement. Winter sent a letter to the Long Grove department asking it to sign the agreement. He told the Herald that Long Grove's refusal to sign the agreement was "penalizing the whole village."

WINTER SAID IF THE agreement were signed, fire insurance premiums would probably be lowered by about $30 per home.

However, since Long Grove has not signed the original agreement, Winter is revising it and now plans to send a different version to Long Grove fire officials.

Winter emphasized however that if the revised agreement is signed no reduction in insurance premiums would be realized, because the wording has been altered.

The wording of the original agreement was recommended by the rating bureau when it reviewed fire protection in the village. The bureau sets the fire insurance rates.

The original agreement called for the Buffalo Grove department to respond with one engine and at least five men on every call handled by the Long Grove department.

Winter, who spoke at Monday's village board meeting in connection with the formation of a municipal fire department, told the trustees that he does not know why Long Grove won't sign the pact.

WINTER SAID the Long Grove department may have "felt slighted that we had to respond to every call (with them)."

Winter said the new agreement he is working on will allow his department to respond to help Long Grove if necessary.

Winter explained that his department had been backing up Long Grove but stopped because there is no signed agreement. Winter said fire department insurance does not apply when men and equipment fight a fire outside of their district while there is no formal mutual aid agreement.

"Without an agreement, we're just not covered. I have no insurance," he said.

Winter also pointed out that the Buffalo Grove Fire Department has signed mutual aid agreements with 40 area fire departments.

Winter expects to finish work on the revised agreement soon and forward it to Long Grove.

Board To Donate $8,000 For Youth Panel

Wheeling's Village Board agreed to guarantee a donation of cash or services totaling $8,000 next year for the youth services bureau project.

The action Tuesday followed by one day a Buffalo Grove Village Board decision to donate a maximum of $8,000 to the project. The donations by the two villages will cover the entire cost of a center to house the proposed bureau.

The Wheeling village board left open the possibility that the donation might be in the form of a facility for the bureau to use as its headquarters rather than in cash.

Three local groups — the Wheeling Youth Commission, the Torch mental health clinic and HELP Inc. — are seeking a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission to start a youth center for Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Prospect Heights.

The groups needed confirmation for $43,000 local funding in services and in cash before the bureau could make its final presentation to the ILEC on Friday.

THE BUILDING would include counseling facilities to help solve youth problems and it would serve as a "drop-in" center for all local youths.

Steve Smallwood, a Wheeling high school student who is working with the adult organizations to establish the center, explained that "75 per cent of the facility would be just some place for kids to go to listen to music, watch TV and rap with their friends."

Such a center would help not only by rehabilitating delinquents but also would prevent "good kids from being led to vandalism or delinquency because they have nothing to do," the proposal suggests.

Wheeling trustees Monday repeatedly asked for assurance that the center would be for "good kids" such as those who participate in the Wheeling High School band or the First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps, not just for "juvenile delinquents."

AT A COMMITTEE meeting earlier in the evening Trustee Michael Valenza pointed out that Wheeling has a total of $15,000 earmarked for the project, including a $5,000 donation and a $2,000 budget item for mental health, as opposed to a total Buffalo Grove commitment for $9,500.

Wheeling officials also were skeptical about whether Buffalo Grove's commitment to donate the money was a firm one. They pointed to Buffalo Grove's past financial difficulties in questioning the HELP representatives.

Wheeling acting Village Mgr. George Passoli, administrative assistant Roger Stricker and Valenza pointed out that with Wheeling's rapid expansion this year the village will not have money as readily available next year as it has had in the past.

The said expanding village police and fire protection to meet the needs of a larger community and work on streets and sewers must be given priority in village spending.

VALENZA INDICATED that because of the developments now under way, the village might be able to get donations of labor and materials for a center. "We trustees have a way with builders," he indicated.

Ruth Wieder of HELP Inc., said that the groups already have a commitment from Gus Stavros to act as general contractor for a building.

Valenza also suggested that the village might be willing to lease a piece of land adjacent to the Wheeling municipal building for $1 per year as a site for the youth services bureau center.

Board members said that a proposal be made that the village fire station could not be turned over for a youth center once a new fire station is built. "At this point the fire department is not available for a youth center. It's not vacant and it won't be for a while," Trustee Edward Berger said.

Valenza said he would do everything he could to see that Wheeling's cash donation would be kept to a minimum while still getting a facility for the youth center.

FIREMEN USED foam in an attempt to quell the blaze which also caused $20,000 damage to a vacant building to the north.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

$1 Million Blaze Destroys Elk Grove Paint Factory

by TOM JACHIMIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun,"

said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

Prelude To Major Fire

'It Was Like A Big Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank. Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose. It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man, standing 20 feet away at the time, described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off . . . pow . . . there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like. Only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger."

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety-split out the front door.

"Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they were in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed. One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second- and third-degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment.

It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS . . . the building is full of every flammable chemical there is . . . there might be more explosions . . . we haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

The Salvation Army was at the fire dispensing coffee and rolls.

"I can't believe it . . . I just can't believe it," said one woman, as she watched the fire.

Work at surrounding plants came to a standstill as one by one curious onlookers, nearby workers and others formed crowds to see the big fire. One couple even came carrying a baby just a few weeks old and swaddled in blankets to protect him from the smoke.

IN A FEW HOURS, the fire spent itself and was under control. Firemen stayed on the scene to spray the smoldering building with water, just to be sure.

Mutual Aid Plan Proved Success

Even before he reached the scene of yesterday's fire at the Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village, Allen Hulett, the fire chief there, notified other fire departments that extra help would be needed.

Hulett's call set into motion a pre-arranged plan under which other area fire departments knew immediately what piece of equipment would be needed. Too, they knew immediately whether to send their equipment to the scene of the blaze or to another station for backup service.

Among other things Hulett's call did the following: It brought a ladder truck to the fire from Mount Prospect. It resulted in the Des Plaines Fire Department sending an ambulance to the fire. An ambulance from the Hoffman Estates department was moved to an Elk Grove Village station for backup. A fire truck and ambulance from Schaumburg were sent to the fire.

THE MUTUAL AID plan used yesterday was first put into operation last January. Almost 20 Northwest suburban area departments participate in it.

The plan works like this: Each municipality is divided into several sections and each section has been assigned a specific box alarm number. At each department box alarm numbers are kept in a card file along with information on the location of a fire for each box alarm. Also listed is what equipment each town should send in the event of a fire in the specific box alarm location.

The purpose of the plan is to make it easier and quicker for a fire chief to get any additional fire fighting equipment he needs.

The plan has been used in connection with other fires this year. Only a few weeks ago, area departments held a practice session under the plan at Arlington Park Race Track.

THE BOARD ALSO annexed a 33-foot-wide strip of Cornell Avenue to the village after Valenza pointed out that it had inadvertently been left out of earlier legal descriptions.

Board members learned Monday that the Illinois Commerce Commission has approved delaying the installation of the Soo Line R.R. Crossing gates at Dundee Road until Nov. 16.

A letter from School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill was read aloud at the meeting. Gill congratulated former village trustee Roger Stricker in his appointment as administrative assistant to the Wheeling village manager. "Such a position is very demanding in a village such as ours," Gill told Stricker in the letter.

In other reports Tuesday acting Village Mgr. George Passolt praised Metropolitan Sanitary District crews and village public works department employees for work in cleaning out the dams along Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

"It is amazing how much had built up," Passolt said of the debris piled in the creek basin.

VALENZA reported at the meeting that Wheeling's multiple-family building boom is continuing, with building permits valued at $3½ million issued by the village in September.

Trustee Ronald Bruhn said that persons who criticize local police for not patrolling enough should note that Wheeling police Squad cars were driven 20,673 miles last month in the village.

In other action Tuesday, the board tabled action on accepting a plat of dedication for an extension of Shepard Avenue until it had a guarantee that a paved street will be installed before it is turned over to the village.

Village Board Approves Storage Silos

The Wheeling Village Board approved building of eight storage silos on the Rock Road Construction Co. property at 231 S. McHenry Rd. Tuesday along with a variety of other actions.

The 70-foot-tall silos will be used for enclosed storage of sand and gravel, which are now kept in open stockpiles.

Plans for the work also include landscaping the exterior of the plant property for beautification.

The board Tuesday also approved an ordinance allowing a garage to be built on a utility easement at 373 Thelma Ct.

The board sent zoning board recommendations for a special-use permit on property at the end of Shepard Ave. for a Ritzenthaler bus storage facility to Village Atty. Paul Hamer. Once Hamer prepares the ordinance the board can vote on the special use permit. Trustee Michael Valenza said Tuesday about the site "I honestly think that the Ritzenthaler people have finally found a home."

Excavation For High School Expected To Start Soon

A $118,910 excavating job is expected to begin soon at the Dist. 214 Buffalo Grove High School site on Dundee Road.

The Dist. 214 school board Monday awarded a contract to the Ted Sirek Excavating Co., Inc., for the six-month job. The Sirek company was the lowest of five bidders for the job.

The company will excavate the 40-acre site, install sewers and grade the land. The company estimates it will have the site work completed by the beginning of May. The $10.5 million school, the eighth in the district, is scheduled to open September, 1973.

Final plans for the site work, designed by the architect firm of Orput-Orput and Associates Inc., were approved by the school board earlier this month. The architect now must secure bids for the foundation and steel work contracts.

CONSTRUCTION PLANS call for placing the entrance of the school on Arlington Heights Road with parking lots on the east side of the lot, a drainage basin in the northeast corner and athletic fields north of the school.

The architect and Buffalo Grove village officials are now discussing ways to drain storm water out of the five-acre retention basin and away from the school. A privately owned 60-acre lot is located between the school site and the "White Pine Strip," a ditch draining into the Buffalo Creek.

The architect also is conferring with officials of the Buffalo Grove Park District about construction of an indoor pool which will be built onto the outside wall of the high school gym. The school board recently agreed to contribute $80,000 to the total cost of the pool, which is estimated at $464,000.

Correction

A story in yesterday's Herald incorrectly identified the spokesman for the First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps who spoke at last Thursday's Wheeling Park District Board meeting.

The spokesman who defended corps members and said work was progressing on an addition to the park building was Bob Hoehn.

Basketball Teams Needed For League

Teams are needed to compete in the Wheeling Park District Men's Basketball league. Bruce Coleman, district recreation director announced.

The league plays from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday night at Holmes and London Junior High Schools.

The cost for a team to join the league is $125, Coleman said. The games are played according to regular high school rules. Practice sessions for the league have already started, but league play will not begin until Nov. 4.

Men interested in forming a team may contact Coleman at the park district offices by calling 537-2222.

$1 Million Fire Destroys Paint Plant; 3 Injured

by TOM JACHNIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400, 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulet and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulet said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

A Herald Editorial

Vote 'Yes' On Saturday

Two proposals calling for the construction of three new schools during a four-year period will face voters Saturday in the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 referendum.

The first proposal will request authorization to transfer $1 million previously approved for an elementary school into the Palatine Hills Junior High School building fund.

The second proposal asks authority to issue $3.6 million for the construction of two elementary schools, one in the west and one in the north.

We endorse both proposals but with some reservations.

Both proposals reflect an effort by the board to keep abreast of anticipated enrollment growth. Such planning is imperative in a district growing as rapidly as Dist. 15.

Planning for the future is necessary, however. There are recent examples showing the board has erred in some of its calculations. In 1967 and 1969, voters authorized the issuance of bonds for an elementary school in the southwest section of the district on the Dawn-gate site. Now the board is telling voters the school is not needed.

The board also told voters in 1969 that Palatine Hills could be constructed for $2 million and opened in 1972. The board now is coming to the voters and asking for an additional $1 million so it can award a $2.9 million general construction contract. The opening date also has been moved up a year to 1973.

The junior high needs in the district are critical. Defeat of this first proposal would benefit no one since the bonds already have been sold and their debt retirement reflected in the current tax rate. Therefore a "yes" vote is urged.

Approval of the second proposal is not as critical. The issuance of bonds for two elementary schools represents an attempt by the board to plan for anticipated growth during the next four years.

Questions surrounding the second proposal are: Will there be a need for a school in the north by 1975 and can a site be acquired and school built for the budgeted $1.9 million, or will the board be coming back to the voters for more money?

Despite the problems inherent in long-range planning, the goal of providing schools before there is a crisis situation is meritorious. Long-range approval of bonding power gives the board flexibility in being able to respond to situations as they arise.

Planned level debt is another factor in favor of proposal two. By giving the board approval to sell the bonds now the board will be able to time the sale of the bonds so there will not be an increase in the tax rate. This is significant in an age where everything seems to lead to higher taxes.

Therefore, a "yes" vote is urged for proposal two and voters also are urged to adopt a watchdog system to keep a closer tab on board actions and insure the intent of the referendum is carried out.

Carved-Pumpkin Contest Slated

A pumpkin-carving contest for Palatine youngsters has been changed to a carved-pumpkin contest.

Palatine Park District officials have asked that youngsters up to 12 years of age bring pumpkins already carved to Community Park at 6:30 p.m. Saturday for the judging.

Prizes will be awarded for the most original, most gruesome and funniest entry in each of five age groups.

Other events include a costume parade and contest at 4 p.m.; games, 5 p.m.; refreshments, 6 p.m.; and a rock band, "The Shock," from 8 to 11 p.m. for local high school and college students.

The events are sponsored by the Palatine Park District and Palatine Jaycees.

Moodie Proclaims Halloween Sunday

The Palatine Village Board made one of its most popular decisions of the year at its meeting Tuesday. It was met with a cheer of appreciation from the audience.

Mayor Jack Moodie officially proclaimed Oct. 31 as Halloween within the Village of Palatine.

That in itself may not be too significant, since Oct. 31 is the official day for celebrating Halloween throughout the country. But to many residents, Moodie's statement may eliminate such confusion surrounding the whole event.

Because Halloween falls on a Sunday this year, many residents have speculated that children will do their trick-or-treating throughout the weekend and not limit their activities to just one day.

Village hall has taken many phone calls from residents seeking some direction from the village or the police on when the children will be allowed to trick-or-treat.

Village Mgr. Berton Braun, in an effort to straighten out the confusion, suggested the board make a recommendation that Palatine children do their trick-or-treating in the later afternoon and early evening of Saturday. He emphasized however, that no regulation could be enforced by the village.

RESIDENTS IN THE audience objected to Braun's choice of a day for trick-or-treating. Mrs. Ann Scollay said a better day would be Sunday, the actual Halloween day.

"It's a responsibility of the village board to coordinate activities within the village," Mrs. Scollay said. She asked the board to "give some guidance" on when children should trick-or-treat.

"If parents have to look to this board for guidance, I feel sorry for them," Moodie told the board.

Braun also objected to setting a regulation on hours because "a regulation that can't be enforced is worse than not having any regulation at all."

After considering the possibilities, Moodie said, "Let it be known the Village of Palatine proclaims Oct. 31 as Halloween."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighters, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

Year Later: No Jayne Trial Yet

by MARGE FERROLI

A full year has passed since Inverness horseman George Jayne was shot and murdered last Oct. 28, but the trial has yet to begin.

Four men including Jayne's brother, Silas, have been held in Cook County Jail without bond since their arrest May 22 on murder charges waiting for the litigation to get out of the complication of pre-trial hearings. But the actual trial probably will not begin until the early part of next year.

Motions and counter motions have been filed by both the assistant state's attorneys and defense attorneys in criminal court delaying the progress of the hearings. The immense volume of police reports, crime lab reports and grand jury testimony has taken much time to prepare for all the lawyers involved, who need the information to help them in preparing their cases.

THESE LEGAL proceedings have virtually eliminated the Palatine police, the original investigators in the murder, from the case, although testimony of local police will be a necessary part of the actual trial.

Jayne was killed by a single shot of a rifle as he played cards with his family in the basement of his palatial home the evening of Oct. 28. After the shooting, a large-scale investigation was started by the Palatine police in conjunction with the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and state's attorney's police.

This investigation involved the questioning of countless individuals who may have had some contacts with some of the key figures involved in the case. It also brought about further study of previous murders involving the Jaynes, such as the 1965 bombing of George's car which killed horse trainer Cherie Rude and the 1969 shooting of Frank Michelle who was found dead outside Silas' Elgin home.

Although charged with conspiracy to commit murder in the death of Miss Rude, Silas was acquitted for lack of evidence. No charges were made against him in the Michelle death, attributing the case to self-defense.

After months of investigating with no solid evidence to take to a grand jury, Melvin Adams, now the state's star witness in the case, offered testimony which led to the indictments of Silas and three others.

ADAMS, WHO HAD been charged with attempting to influence the testimony of another grand jury witness, was granted immunity for his information and is now being held in protective custody.

His testimony led to the two-count indictments against Silas, Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, a bodyguard and friend of Silas', Edwin Nefield of Chicago Heights an ex-policeman from Markham, and Julius Barnes of Chicago, a laborer.

All pleaded not guilty to their charges. A fifth suspect, Kenneth Hansen, was also indicted shortly after the others on charges of conspiracy and solicitation to commit murder. However, his attorney has requested the charges be dropped.

The next hearing on the death of George Jayne will be held in criminal court Nov. 4. This will amount to another continuation in a string of continuations that might eventually lead to the trial and the end of a history of death.

SHOPPERS AT ROLLING MEADOWS Shopping Mall will have the unique opportunity of seeing education in action for the remainder of this week.

As part of American Education Week, Mrs. Jerry Placek is conducting her Cardinal Drive School kindergarten classes at the shopping center. Her philosophy is 'if the people won't visit the schools she'll take the schools to the people'.

Auto Crash Kills One, Hurts Pair

An Arlington Heights man was killed and two teenagers seriously injured in a two-car collision yesterday afternoon in southeast Palatine.

Pronounced dead on arrival at 2:40 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital was John R. Larsen, 49, of 1530 N. Vail St.

Listed in serious condition were Gary K. Foreman, 18, of 22 Mulberry Ct., Glenview, the driver of the second car, and David Snower, 18, of 219 Appletree Ln., Wilmette, a passenger in the car.

Foreman underwent surgery for a fracture to his left leg and was to be confined in the hospital's intensive care unit last night.

SNOWER WAS ADMITTED to the hospital with multiple facial injuries and a possible concussion and fractured skull, according to a hospital spokesman.

The accident occurred at 12:19 p.m. on Palatine Road, just west of Rte. 53.

Police said the Foreman vehicle was eastbound on Palatine Road when the driver apparently lost control of the car. The car crossed the median strip and struck the westbound Larsen car head-on.

Palatine Police Sgt. Eugene Bobinski said he believed that a dog found dead near the two cars belonged to Mr. Larsen and had been in the car with him.

Another policeman speculated that the dog may have been crossing Palatine Road, causing Foreman to swerve to avoid hitting it when he lost control of the car.

Traffic was blocked in the westbound lanes for nearly an hour after the accident.

Visitation for John R. Larsen will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday night at Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy. Funeral services are at 11 a.m. Friday.

'Show And Tell' For Schools

It was "show and tell time" in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 yesterday morning.

In conjunction with American Education Week, civic and governmental leaders in the area were invited to a special program that included the visitation of three schools in the district. This has become an annual event in the district.

"We feel we have a story to tell," said Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction. "This is an age of criticism but like any generality there are tops and bottoms. And we would like to think we are at the top."

Groups of five were assigned to a representative of Dist. 15 who took them to three different schools. A half hour was spent touring the buildings, seeing different classes in action and having programs in the district explained.

The tours ended at the E. S. Castor Administration Building where a luncheon was held.

A total of 64 persons went on the tours including representatives of two high school districts, seven parochial schools, six governmental agencies, two libraries, a police department, a park district, four homeowners' associations, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, 15 PTAs, the League of Women Voters, Rolling Meadows and Palatine, a bank and Paddock Publications.

U.N. And Red China Flags To Be Burned

The flags of Communist China and the United Nations will be burned as part of a Reformation Sunday service at the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights Sunday.

According to an announcement from the church, the service will also include the reading of a proclamation denouncing Richard Nixon, prayers, singing of hymns, special music and the preaching of the Holy Bible.

The announcement attacks the Chinese Communists, President Nixon's China policy and his support of the United Nations and suggests that Chiang Kai-shek's "well trained army be encouraged to invade mainland China."

The 90-minute service will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the church, 303 E. McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Woodfield Park Layout Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations, financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield Mall site shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall area in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza, to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center, now under construction. A Jewel Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated. From Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

velopment is a proposed multi-family residential complex, to include 2,500 units of apartments, townhouses or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

Moving back left, fronting Meacham Road, a sports complex with a possible sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

'It Was A Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man standing 30 feet away at the time described it as a shotgun blast only much larger.

You see a shotgun go off—pow! there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like—only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger.

I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay.

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced hickety split out the front door.

Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they was in the front office, he bragged later.

Several seconds later explosions followed. One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second and third degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank—the man closest to the chemicals when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 11 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

'GET BACK FOLKS' the building is full of every flammable chemical there is, there might be more explosions, we haven't got it under control yet, warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

$1 Million Fire Destroys Paint Plant; 3 Injured

by TOM JACHIMIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Police Will Get Three-Wheel Cycle

The Rolling Meadows city council has approved the purchase of a three-wheel motorcycle for the police department.

The council voted to buy a used motorcycle from the Waukegan Police Department.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan presented the proposal and said plans are to use the motorcycle during the night to patrol the parks and possibly during the day to patrol shopping center parking lots, and areas not easily accessible by car.

This will be the only motorcycle in the police department fleet.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:35 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

City Council Keeps Zale Project Alive

The Rolling Meadows City Council kept alive developer Al Zale's chance to build residential units on land he owns near Plum Grove School.

The council voted unanimously to reconsider Zale's plans, which were rejected two weeks ago, but only after ascertaining that the vote to reconsider did not commit trustees to approving the project.

Zale's project was "killed" at the Oct. 12 council meeting. But City Atty. Don Rose said a motion to reconsider a negative vote can be brought to the council at the immediately subsequent meeting, which is what happened Tuesday.

Two weeks ago the council, led by Mayor Roland Meyer and Ald. Thomas

A Herald Editorial

Vote 'Yes' On Saturday

Two proposals calling for the construction of three new schools during a four-year period will face voters Saturday in the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 referendum.

The first proposal will request authorization to transfer $1 million previously approved for an elementary school into the Palatine Hills Junior High School building fund.

The second proposal asks authority to issue $3.6 million for the construction of two elementary schools, one in the west and one in the north.

We endorse both proposals but with some reservations.

Both proposals reflect an effort by the board to keep abreast of anticipated enrollment growth. Such planning is imperative in a district growing as rapidly as Dist. 15.

Planning for the future is necessary, however. There are recent examples showing the board has erred in some of its calculations. In 1967 and 1969, voters authorized the issuance of bonds for an elementary school in the southwest section of the district on the Dawn-gate site. Now the board is telling voters the school is not needed.

The board also told voters in 1969 that Palatine Hills could be constructed for $2 million and opened in 1972. The board now is coming to the voters and asking for an additional $1 million so it can award a $2.9 million general construction contract. The opening date also has been moved up a year to 1973.

The junior high needs in the district are critical. Defeat of this first proposal would benefit no one since the bonds already have been sold and their debt retirement reflected in the current tax rate. Therefore a "yes" vote is urged.

Approval of the second proposal is not as critical. The issuance of bonds for two elementary schools represents an attempt by the board to plan for anticipated growth during the next four years.

Questions surrounding the second proposal are: Will there be a need for a school in the north by 1975 and can a site be acquired and school built for the budgeted $1.9 million, or will the board be coming back to the voters for more money?

Despite the problems inherent in long-range planning, the goal of providing schools before there is a crisis situation is meritorious. Long-range approval of bonding power gives the board flexibility in being able to respond to situations as they arise.

Planned level debt is another factor in favor of proposal two. By giving the board approval to sell the bonds now the board will be able to time the sale of the bonds so there will not be an increase in the tax rate. This is significant in an age where everything seems to lead to higher taxes.

Therefore, a "yes" vote is urged for proposal two and voters also are urged to adopt a watchdog system to keep a closer tab on board actions and insure the intent of the referendum is carried out.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

Year Later: No Jayne Trial Yet

by MARGE FERROLI

A full year has passed since Inverness horseman George Jayne was shot and murdered last Oct. 28, but the trial has yet to begin.

Four men, including Jayne's brother, Silas, have been held in Cook County Jail without bond since their arrest May 22 on murder charges waiting for the litigation to get out of the complication of pre-trial hearings. But the actual trial probably will not begin until the early part of next year.

Motions and counter motions have been filed by both the assistant state's attorneys and defense attorneys in criminal court, delaying the progress of the hearings. The immense volume of police reports, crime lab reports and grand jury testimony has taken much time to prepare for all the lawyers involved, who need the information to help them in preparing their cases.

THESE LEGAL proceedings have virtually eliminated the Palatine police, the original investigators in the murder, from the case, although testimony of local police will be a necessary part of the actual trial.

Jayne was killed by a single shot of a rifle as he played cards with his family in the basement of his palatial home the evening of Oct. 28. After the shooting, a large-scale investigation was started by the Palatine police in conjunction with the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and state's attorney's police.

This investigation involved the questioning of countless individuals who may have had some contacts with some of the key figures involved in the case. It also brought about further study of previous murders involving the Jaynes, such as the 1965 bombing of George's car which killed horse trainer Cherie Rude and the 1969 shooting of Frank Michelle who was found dead outside Silas' Elgin home.

Although charged with conspiracy to commit murder in the death of Miss Rude, Silas was acquitted for lack of evidence. No charges were made against him in the Michelle death, attributing the case to self-defense.

After months of investigating with no solid evidence to take to a grand jury, Melvin Adams, now the state's star witness in the case, offered testimony which led to the indictments of Silas and three others.

ADAMS, WHO HAD been charged with attempting to influence the testimony of another grand jury witness, was granted immunity for his information and is now being held in protective custody.

His testimony led to the two-count indictments against Silas, Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, a bodyguard and friend of Silas; Edwin Nefeld of Chicago Heights, an ex-policeman from Markham; and Julius Barnes of Chicago, a laborer.

All pleaded not guilty to their charges. A fifth suspect, Kenneth Hansen, was also indicted shortly after the others on charges of conspiracy and solicitation to commit murder. However, his attorney has requested the charges be dropped.

The next hearing on the death of George Jayne will be held in criminal court Nov. 4. This will amount to another continuation in a string of continuations that might eventually lead to the trial and the end of a history of death.

SHOPPERS AT ROLLING MEADOWS Shopping Mall will have the unique opportunity of seeing education in action for the remainder of this week.

As part of American Education Week, Mrs. Jerry Placek is conducting her Cardinal Drive School kindergarten classes at the shopping center. Her philosophy is "if the people won't visit the schools she'll take the schools to the people."

Auto Crash Kills One, Hurts Pair

An Arlington Heights man was killed and two teenagers seriously injured in a two-car collision yesterday afternoon in southeast Palatine.

Pronounced dead on arrival at 2:40 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital was John R. Larsen, 49, of 1550 N. Vail St.

Listed in serious condition were Gary K. Foreman, 18, of 22 Mulberry Ct., Glenview, the driver of the second car, and David Snower, 18, of 239 Appletree Ln., Wilmette, a passenger in the car.

Foreman underwent surgery for a fracture to his left leg and was to be confined in the hospital's intensive care unit last night.

SNOWER WAS ADMITTED to the hospital with multiple facial injuries and a possible concussion and fractured skull, according to a hospital spokesman.

The accident occurred at 12:19 p.m. on Palatine Road, just west of Rte. 53.

Police said the Foreman vehicle was eastbound on Palatine Road when the driver apparently lost control of the car. The car crossed the median strip and struck the westbound Larsen car head-on.

Palatine Police Sgt. Eugene Bobinski said he believed that a dog found dead near the two cars belonged to Mr. Larsen and had been in the car with him.

Another policeman speculated that the dog may have been crossing Palatine Road, causing Foreman to swerve to avoid hitting it when he lost control of the car.

Traffic was blocked in the westbound lanes for nearly an hour after the accident.

Visitation for John R. Larsen will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday night at Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy. Funeral services are at 11 a.m. Friday.

'Show And Tell' For Schools

It was "show and tell time" in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 yesterday morning.

In conjunction with American Education Week, civic and governmental leaders in the area were invited to a special program that included the visitation of three schools in the district. This has become an annual event in the district.

"We feel we have a story to tell," said Marion Ormiatek, assistant superintendent for instruction. "This is an age of criticism but like any generality there are tops and bottoms. And we would like to think we are at the top."

Groups of five were assigned to a representative of Dist. 15 who took them to three different schools. A half hour was spent touring the buildings, seeing different classes in action and having programs in the district explained.

The tours ended at the E. S. Castor Administration Building where a luncheon was held.

A total of 64 persons went on the tours including representatives of two high school districts, seven parochial schools, six governmental agencies, two libraries, a police department, a park district, four homeowners associations, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, 15 PTAs, the League of Women Voters, Rolling Meadows and Palatine, a bank and Paddock Publications.

U.N. And Red China Flags To Be Burned

The flags of Communist China and the United Nations will be burned as part of a Reformation Sunday service at the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights Sunday.

According to an announcement from the church, the service will also include "the reading of a proclamation denouncing Richard Nixon, prayers, singing of hymns, special music and the preaching of the Holy Bible."

The announcement attacks the Chinese Communists, President Nixon's China policy and his support of the United Nations and suggests that Chiang Kai-shek's "well trained army be encouraged to invade mainland China."

The 90-minute service will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the church, 303 E. McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

$1 Million Fire Destroys Paint Plant; 3 Injured

by TOM JACHIMIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

FIREMEN USED foam in an attempt to quell the blaze which also caused $20,000 damage to a vacant building to the north.

Schools Plan Bond Sale Of $394,000

Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 plans to sell about $394,000 in bonds sometime in December. The bonds are the last of those authorized in a $1.2 million bond issue referendum last October.

Earlier, the school district had planned to sell only about $243,000 in bonds. It was barred from selling any more because of a ceiling on the amount of bonds a district may have outstanding. That limit was raised, however.

The funds from the sale will be used, in part, to pay for the renovation and construction work going on at the district's three-school campus. Supt. Edward Grodzky said yesterday that work has progressed to the point that administrators have moved into their new offices in the renovated Sullivan School facility. He predicted that "95 per cent" of the MacArthur Junior High School work would be complete by the school board's deadline of Dec. 31.

Other funds from the sale will be used for the installation of air conditioning equipment at Dwight Eisenhower School, Camp MacDonald and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

Air conditioning is necessary for the school because it was built without windows. School officials say this type of school is "better educationally" and it is much cheaper to build than one with windows.

The required air conditioning was not installed initially because construction costs for the school were more than had been expected. As a result air conditioning and several other items were cut from the plans until funds became available. Those funds did become available with the passage of last October's referendum. However, school officials placed other projects ahead of the air conditioning installation. They say the air conditioning will be installed by next spring, however.

More Than 8,000 Join Village Today

At 5 p.m. today the annexation of between 8,000 and 9,000 new Mount Prospect residents will be accomplished, barring a last minute call for a referendum from Mount Prospect residents.

Such a so-called "back-door" referendum is unlikely, according to Mayor Robert D. Teichert. "As far as I know there are no petitions being circulated. Such petitions would have to be filed with the clerk's office and we know of none," Teichert said yesterday.

The annexation was unanimously approved by the village board Sept. 28. Some 1 1/2 square miles of parts of Prospect Heights and unincorporated Mount Prospect were included. The annexed area stretches as far east as River Road, as far north as Willow Road and as far west as Crabtree Lane.

Teichert said, "To me, everything is done."

HE SAID THAT the administration has been doing "basic work" in trying to smooth over the transition for the new residents. He said Mount Prospect police and ambulance service have already been operating in the area.

Both Forest River Fire Protection District and Mount Prospect Fire Department officials have been meeting to take inventory and identify assets, he said. He added the village was aiming for a mid- or late-November date to go into court to ask for the merger of the fire protection departments for the new area.

"Another problem is that when we take over the thing, we have to be able to staff it," he said. A Jan. 1 date is hoped for here. Teichert believes the new firemen applications will have been processed by that time.

By Nov. 15, new residents should have new street names and numbers, Teichert said. "One thing that would be unique would be Indian names for the streets," he said. "We already have some such named in the village and it seems to fit in well with the community."

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley and his staff are preparing a booklet for new residents that will be hand-delivered and will include the new street name and number for each of the some 2,400 homes in the area.

Teichert said the names will be submitted to the board at next Tuesday's village board meeting. The post office is handling the street numbering change, he said.

He said there has been no firm date for the switching of garbage service, as three firms now service the area.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firiyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

Stocks fell across a broad front in moderate trading. Market averages finished in reverse gear for the 11th straight session and analysts said, "The worst part is there is no sign of a selling climax." The Dow Jones average had a loss of 8.38 at $36.38. Declines outnumbered advances 1,109 to 318 on the New York Exchange. Prices declined in moderate trading on the American Exchange.

Land Deal Awaits Appraisal

Mount Prospect Park District officials are awaiting results of a formal land appraisal before making any further decisions on purchase of 19 acres from School Dist 57.

Appraisals of two sites, being made by John H. Fisher, an independent real estate appraiser, should be received by park officials sometime this week. The report was due last Friday, according to Paul Caldwell, assistant park director.

The two sites offered for sale in July, are 11 acres of land used as Sunrise Park formerly called East Park, and approximately eight acres at the Gregory School site. Both are in Mount Prospect.

Park officials have indicated a desire to buy the land and have been meeting with school officials to discuss possible terms. Village officials have also indicated a desire to buy a portion of Sunrise Park, at Golf and Mount Prospect roads, as a site for possible water storage.

"We're still talking about it. But we still have questions we want to make to the other parties involved," said Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert. He would not say what those questions were. "We're waiting to get back together with the park and school officials."

The land sale has not been officially brought up before the village board, which would make the final decision on any purchase. "I don't want to pre-comment," Teichert said. "But we are still interested in exploring the possibility of keeping the lands public."

Leo Floros, Dist 57 school board member, said school officials are still waiting for a formal response from the two parties. "We've kind of set as a deadline Dec. 1 for an official decision on their part," he said.

School board members want to sell the land to pay for an approximately $150,000 expansion program at Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview Ave. The expansion would begin as soon as an agreement of sale is signed.

Prelude To Major Fire

'It Was A Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busy blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man standing 20 feet away at the time described it as a shotgun blast only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off. pow there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like. Only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger."

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder, some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety split out the front door.

"Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they were in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed.

One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second and third degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS," the building is full of every flammable chemical there is. There might be more explosions. We haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

The Salvation Army was at the fire dispensing coffee and rolls.

"I can't believe it. I just can't believe it," said one woman, as she watched the fire.

Work at surrounding plants came to a standstill as one by one curious onlookers, nearby workers and others formed crowds to see the big fire. One couple even came carrying a baby just a few weeks old and swaddled in blankets to protect him from the smoke.

IN A FEW HOURS, the fire spent itself and was under control. Firemen stayed on the scene to spray the smoldering building with water, just to be sure.

None of the nearby buildings caught fire, but at least one sustained some smoke damage.

And by 1 p.m., the paint factory was just ruins, smoking testimony of what had happened.

They Geared For Disaster

by WINDALYN RICE

The pillar of black smoke was barely visible on the horizon when the staff of Alexian Brothers Medical Center began preparing for the disaster that never came.

The hospital's disaster plan went into action as soon as word came of the 10 a.m. explosion at Specialty Paint Company. The physical therapy room at the hospital was prepared to receive overflow patients; doctors were called from the floors and placed on alert and everyone waited.

We can handle the patients on a priority basis and take the most badly injured first," public relations director Robin Leach said. "We're lucky because this early in the morning the doctors are still on their rounds and there are plenty of them in the hospital."

Miss Leach had just arrived back at the hospital from Chicago. Driving on the tollway she had seen the column of smoke and knew it would be a day for action.

"I was coming down the tollway and I was astonished at the reaction of the other drivers to the smoke," she said. "No-one paid any attention."

Phones rang constantly in the public relations office as reporters from all the newspapers, radio and television stations called for information. "I'm sorry but we don't know anything yet. No one has come in. We think the flames may be so intense emergency vehicles can't get in," Miss Leach's assistant, Roxanne Foster, told them.

The chief surgeon in the emergency room was in contact with the firemen on the scene. "He said they told him the whole building was a ball of flames and there was no hope anyone inside would get out," Miss Leach said. She signed softly and her voice trailed off. "I don't know if they'd bring the DOA's here."

Word filtered in slowly and doctors and nurses took care of the small boy who had fallen down the stairs, the elderly man who wanted to see a doctor and the other, routine emergencies that make up the hospital's day.

Finally word came from the Elk Grove Village Police Department that there had been only three injuries and all other employees were accounted for.

The tension eased although the emergency room remained ready for firemen overcome by smoke or otherwise injured.

Miss Leach recalled the last time the disaster plan had gone into effect was when a group of children were overcome by chlorine gas at Kopp Pool in Mount Prospect.

"We have been very lucky," she said. "That was the last time we had anything approaching a disaster."

speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

All precautions had been taken at the building, he said, adding that the structure was explosion-proof. Everything was grounded, he said.

You live in fear of this all the time, he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said

Woodfield Park Layout Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons' planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations, financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm, and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield area shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall site, in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site, in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza, to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center, now under construction. A Jewel-Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated. From Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

velopment is a proposed multi-family residential complex, to include 2,500 units of apartments, townhouses or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

Moving back left, fronting Meacham Road, a sports complex with a possible sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams, but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

Woodfield Park, as visualized by an artist. Golf Road, the north boundary, is at the bottom.

One Year Later: Still No Jayne Murder Trial

by MARGE FERROLI

A full year has passed since Inverness horseman George Jayne was shot and murdered last Oct. 28, but the trial has yet to begin.

Four men, including Jayne's brother, Silas, have been held in Cook County Jail without bond since their arrest May 22 on murder charges waiting for the litigation to get out of the complication of pre-trial hearings. But the actual trial probably will not begin until the early part of next year.

Motions and counter motions have been filed by both the assistant state's attorneys and defense attorneys in criminal court, delaying the progress of the hearings. The immense volume of police reports, crime lab reports and grand jury testimony has taken much time to prepare for all the lawyers involved, who need the information to help them in preparing their cases.

THESE LEGAL proceedings have virtually eliminated the Palatine police, the original investigators in the murder, from the case, although testimony of local police will be a necessary part of the actual trial.

Jayne was killed by a single shot of a rifle as he played cards with his family in the basement of his palatial home the evening of Oct. 28. After the shooting, a large-scale investigation was started by the Palatine police in conjunction with the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and state's attorney's police.

This investigation involved the questioning of countless individuals who may have had some contacts with some of the key figures involved in the case. It also brought about further study of previous murders involving the Jaynes, such as the 1965 bombing of George's car which killed horse trainer Cherie Rude and the 1969 shooting of Frank Michelle who was found dead outside Silas' Elgin home.

Although charged with conspiracy to commit murder in the death of Miss Rude, Silas was acquitted for lack of evidence. No charges were made against him in the Michelle death, attributing the case to self-defense.

After months of investigating with no solid evidence to take to a grand jury, Melvin Adams, now the state's star witness in the case, offered testimony which led to the indictments of Silas and three others.

ADAMS, WHO HAD been charged with attempting to influence the testimony of another grand jury witness, was granted immunity for his information and is now being held in protective custody.

His testimony led to the two-count indictments against Silas, Joseph LaPlaca of Elgin, a bodyguard and friend of Silas; Edwin Nefeld of Chicago Heights, an ex-policeman from Markham; and Julius Barnes of Chicago, a laborer.

All pleaded not guilty to their charges. A fifth suspect, Kenneth Hansen, was also indicted shortly after the others on charges of conspiracy and solicitation to commit murder. However, his attorney has requested the charges be dropped.

The next hearing on the death of George Jayne will be held in criminal court Nov. 4. This will amount to another continuation in a string of continuations that might eventually lead to the trial and the end of a history of death.

$1 Million Fire Destroys Paint Plant; 3 Injured

by TOM JACHIMIEC
An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.
Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.
More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.
One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.
Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.
"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.
Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.
Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.
"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.
The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.
Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.
FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.
"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, (Continued on page 3)

Reciprocal Borrowing Is Approved

Reciprocal borrowing is here for Mount Prospect Library users.
Librarian Mary Jo Hutchings said she had been informed that Mount Prospect's application had been approved by the North Suburban Library System (NSLS) board this week.

Doubt that Mount Prospect would be allowed to join the reciprocal borrowing program was dispelled last week when a NSLS committee recommended their application be approved. The committee had to review the application because the Mount Prospect Library charges $15 for non-resident fees. System-wide a minimum fee of $20 had been established.

Mrs. Hutchings said persons holding Mount Prospect library cards must have them validated for reciprocal borrowing at the library, 14 E. Busse Ave., first.

MOST LIBRARIES in the Northwest suburbs, a total of 27 now, belong to the program, which allows patrons who hold cards at any of the libraries to borrow books from any other member library. These libraries include Evanston, Waukegan, Libertyville, Prospect Heights, Mundelein, Skokie and Northbrook.

The Mount Prospect Library Board has entered the program, intending to review patron usage of reciprocal borrowing in a few months.

New Teen Center Rules Tighter

Teens will no longer be able to sit and smoke cigarettes in front of Lions Park Recreation Center provided rules set up recently by a teen committee are enforced.
The 16-member committee Tuesday night approved rules governing smoking, loitering and general nuisance for teens using the park district teen center. The teen facility is in the basement of Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St.

Violators of the rules will be restricted in their use of the teen center, Steve Neff, part-time center director, said yesterday. He said teens would work with the on-duty teen center supervisor to enforce the rules.

No loitering will be allowed in the front or side entrances of the building, according to the rules. Instead, teens will be allowed to smoke outside at the rear entrance of the building. The general nuisance rule covers teens using drugs and alcohol, according to Neff. He said such teens would also be asked to leave the center.

THE RULES committee was formed after park officials told teens the center would be closed if teens didn't change their "attitude" with regard to the center. Paul Caldwell told teens to set up rules governing loitering, littering and vandalism.

"The kids decided there really is no way to enforce a no-vandalism rule," Neff said. "They do not feel good about turning names in. But they do feel it is unnecessary and are aware that vandalism will jeopardize the teen center."

Neff said the committee also decided to post a "discipline list" of names of teens who have been expelled from the center. He said the number of days a teen would be barred from the center would depend on "the seriousness of the infraction."

Much of the enforcement of the rules will be informal. "Teens recognized they must do something about it," Neff said. "And feel they can do it by disciplining themselves. I hope they will have the power to tell a kid to stop breaking the rules. They're not there to be policemen, but they are there to enforce behavior rules."

Park officials are currently looking into alternative uses for the basement center in case teens don't make changes necessary to keep it open. One activity, floor hockey, has already been scheduled for the center for teens and younger residents.

"That's a fact that we're going to have to work with," Neff said. He said he didn't know how teens would respond to the programming.

U.N. And Red China Flags To Be Burned

The flags of Communist China and the United Nations will be burned as part of a Reformation Sunday service at the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights Sunday.

According to an announcement from the church, the service will also include "the reading of a proclamation denouncing Richard Nixon, prayers, singing of hymns, special music and the preaching of the Holy Bible."

The announcement attacks the Chinese Communists, President Nixon's China policy and his support of the United Nations and suggests that Chiang Kai-shek's "well trained army be encouraged to invade mainland China."

The 90-minute service will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the church, 303 E. McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

More Than 8,000 Join Village Today

At 5 p.m. today the annexation of between 8,000 and 9,000 new Mount Prospect residents will be accomplished, barring a last minute call for a referendum from Mount Prospect residents.

Such a so-called "back-door" referendum is unlikely, according to Mayor Robert D. Teichert. "As far as I know there are no petitions being circulated. Such petitions would have to be filed with the clerk's office and we know of none," Teichert said yesterday.

The annexation was unanimously approved by the village board Sept. 28. Some 1 1/2 square miles of parts of Prospect Heights and unincorporated Mount Prospect were included. The annexed area stretches as far east as River Road, as far north as Willow Road and as far west as Crabtree Lane.

Teichert said, "To me, everything is done."

HE SAID THAT the administration has been doing "basic work" in trying to smooth over the transition for the new residents. He said Mount Prospect police and ambulance service have already been operating in the area.

Both Forest River Fire Protection District and Mount Prospect Fire Department officials have been meeting to take inventory and identify assets, he said. He added the village was aiming for a mid- or late-November date to go into court to ask for the merger of the fire protection departments for the new area.

"Another problem is that when we take over the thing, we have to be able to staff it," he said. A Jan. 1 date is hoped for here. Teichert believes the new firemen applications will have been processed by that time.

By Nov. 15, new residents should have new street names and numbers, Teichert said. "One thing that would be unique would be Indian names for the streets," he said. "We already have some such named in the village and it seems to fit in well with the community."

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley and his staff are preparing a booklet for new residents that will be hand-delivered and will include the new street name and number for each of the some 2,400 homes in the area.

Teichert said the names will be submitted to the board at next Tuesday's village board meeting. The post office is handling the street numbering change, he said.

He said there has been no firm date for the switching of garbage service, as three firms now service the area.

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Firyubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

Land Deal Awaits Appraisal

Mount Prospect Park District officials are awaiting results of a formal land appraisal before making any further decisions on purchase of 19 acres from School Dist. 57.

Appraisals of two sites, being made by John H. Fisher, an independent real estate appraiser, should be received by park officials sometime this week. The report was due last Friday, according to Paul Caldwell, assistant park director.

The two sites, offered for sale in July, are 11 acres of land used as Sunrise Park, formerly called East Park, and approximately eight acres at the Gregory School site. Both are in Mount Prospect.

Park officials have indicated a desire to buy the land and have been meeting with school officials to discuss possible terms. Village officials have also indicated a desire to buy a portion of Sunrise Park, at Golf and Mount Prospect roads, as a site for possible water storage.

"We're still talking about it. But we still have questions we want to make to the other parties involved," said Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert. He would not say what those questions were. "We're waiting to get back together with the park and school officials."

The land sale has not been officially brought up before the village board, which would make the final decision on any purchase. "I don't want to pre-comment," Teichert said. "But we are still interested in exploring the possibility of keeping the lands public."

Leo Floros, Dist. 57 school board member, said school officials are still waiting for a formal response from the two parties. "We've kind of set as a deadline Dec. 1 for an official decision on their part," he said.

School board members want to sell the land to pay for an approximately $150,000 expansion program at Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview Ave. The expansion would begin as soon as an agreement of sale is signed.

Prelude To Major Fire

'It Was A Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man, standing 20 feet away at the time, described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off... pow... there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like, only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger."

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety-split out the front door.

"Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they were in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed.

One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second- and third-degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS... the building is full of every flammable chemical there is... there might be more explosions... we haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

The Salvation Army was at the fire dispensing coffee and rolls.

"I can't believe it... I just can't believe it," said one woman, as she watched the fire.

Work at surrounding plants came to a standstill as one by one curious onlookers, nearby workers and others formed crowds to see the big fire. One couple even came carrying a baby just a few weeks old and swaddled in blankets to protect him from the smoke.

IN A FEW HOURS, the fire spent itself and was under control. Firemen stayed on the scene to spray the smoldering building with water, just to be sure.

None of the nearby buildings caught fire, but at least one sustained some smoke damage.

And by 1 p.m., the paint factory was just ruins, smoking testimony of what had happened.

They Geared For Disaster

by WANDALYN RICE

The pillar of black smoke was barely visible on the horizon when the staff of Alexian Brothers Medical Center began preparing for the disaster that never came.

The hospital's disaster plan went into action as soon as word came of the 10 a.m. explosion at Specialty Paint Company. The physical therapy room at the hospital was prepared to receive overflow patients, doctors were called from the floors and placed on alert and everyone waited.

"We can handle the patients on a priority basis and take the most badly injured first," public relations director Robin Leach said. "We're lucky because this early in the morning the doctors are still on their rounds and there are plenty of them in the hospital."

Miss Leach had just arrived back at the hospital from Chicago. Driving on the tollway she had seen the column of smoke and knew it would be a day for action.

"I was coming down the tollway and I was astonished at the reaction of the other drivers to the smoke," she said. "No one paid any attention."

Phones rang constantly in the public relations office as reporters from all the newspapers, radio and television stations called for information. "I'm sorry but we don't know anything yet. No one has come in. We think the flames may be so intense emergency vehicles can't get in," Miss Leach's assistant, Roxanne Foster, told them.

The chief surgeon in the emergency room was in contact with the firemen on the scene. "He said they told him the whole building was a ball of flames and there was no hope anyone inside would get out," Miss Leach said. She signed softly and her voice trailed off. "I don't know if they'd bring the DOA's here..."

Word filtered in slowly and doctors and nurses took care of the small boy who had fallen down the stairs, the elderly man who wanted to see a doctor and the other, routine emergencies that make up the hospital's day.

Finally word came from the Elk Grove Village Police Department that there had been only three injuries and all other employees were accounted for.

The tension eased, although the emergency room remained ready for firemen overcome by smoke or otherwise injured.

Miss Leach recalled the last time the disaster plan had gone into effect was when a group of children were overcome by chlorine gas at Kopp Pool in Mount Prospect.

"We have been very lucky," she said. "That was the last time we had anything approaching a disaster."

100 Firemen Battle Blaze; 3 Injured

$1 Million Fire Rips Plant

by TOM JACHIMEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that caused the roof to collapse.

The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamels, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said "flames were shooting out 150 feet."

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

FIREMEN USED foam in an attempt to quell the blaze which also caused $20,000 damage to a vacant building to the north.

Moderate-Income Housing Rules Set

After agreeing Arlington Heights needs some lower income housing, members of the low- and moderate-income housing study committee Tuesday set the preliminary requirements for such housing at between 200 and 250 units.

Backed with statistical data from a residential survey, committee members determined the immediate need for low-income housing is about 50 units and the need for moderate-income housing is between 150 and 200 units.

The residential survey was conducted this summer and included a sampling of results from more than 900 residents in the village. The survey was aimed primarily at obtaining information for preparation of a new master plan for future development, but also included some questions on income level and number of family members.

Joe Kesler, village planner, took the survey results and projected the number of people in the entire village who qualify under the income limitations established for Cook County. Kesler used the results from the 900 surveys and projected figures based on the total of more than 18,600 total single-family and multi-family units in the village.

THE INCOME ranges for low-income housing are $4,500 to $7,500 and for moderate-income housing are $8,075 to $10,125. The allowed income levels are established depending on family size. The high point in both ranges is based on a household including 10 persons while the low point is based on a household including one person.

The survey results indicated that about 104 families presently living in Arlington Heights would qualify for low income housing. This figure does not include households with persons who are 62 years old or older who would qualify for low income housing for the elderly or households where the mortgage is paid in full.

The total is 287 including households of all ages which have incomes within the range to qualify for low income housing.

In the moderate-income housing range, the projected number of households which qualify was set at a total of 413, deducting households with family members over the age of 62 and households where the mortgage was paid. The projected number of elderly who would qualify for moderate income housing increases the total by 6 while the projected number of households who would qualify but have a paid mortgage would add an additional 46 to the 413 total.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS requested the survey results during their last meeting Sept. 30 and said they felt they must have the results before determining if Arlington Heights needed low or moderate-income housing. The committee was formed early this year by the Arlington Heights Village Board and includes members of that board and the plan commission.

The committee's duties were listed as studying the need for low- and moderate-income housing and then, if the need was established, proposing the best way to fill that need. The committee will prepare a report for presentation and adoption by the village board but has set no deadline for that report.

Auto Crash Kills One, Hurts Pair

An Arlington Heights man was killed and two teenagers seriously injured in a two-car collision yesterday afternoon in southeast Palatine.

Pronounced dead on arrival at 2:40 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital was John R. Larsen, 49, of 1550 N. Vail St.

Listed in serious condition were Gary K. Foreman, 18, of 22 Mulberry Ct., Glenview, the driver of the second car, and David Snower, 18, of 239 Appletree Ln., Wilmette, a passenger in the car.

Foreman underwent surgery for a fracture to his left leg and was to be confined in the hospital's intensive care unit last night.

SNOWER WAS ADMITTED to the hospital with multiple facial injuries and a possible concussion and fractured skull, according to a hospital spokesman.

The accident occurred at 12:19 p.m. on Palatine Road, just west of Rte. 53.

Police said the Foreman vehicle was eastbound on Palatine Road when the driver apparently lost control of the car.

The car crossed the median strip and struck the westbound Larsen car head-on.

Palatine Police Sgt. Eugene Bobinski said he believed that a dog found dead near the two cars belonged to Mr. Larsen and had been in the car with him.

Another policeman speculated that the dog may have been crossing Palatine Road, causing Foreman to swerve to avoid hitting it when he lost control of the car.

Traffic was blocked in the westbound lanes for nearly an hour after the accident.

Visitation for John R. Larsen will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday night at Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy. Funeral services are at 11 a.m. Friday.

Reformation Day Service Set

A worship service bringing together a United Methodist congregation and nine Roman Catholic nuns will highlight a Reformation Day observance Sunday at the Church of the Incarnation in Arlington Heights.

Sister Kathleen Melia and eight other members of the order of the Franciscan Sisters of Chicago will sing and lead a dialogue sermon at 10:45 a.m. at the church, 330 W. Golf Rd.

The sisters teach at Madonna High School in Chicago. Sunday will be the first time they will lead a worship service in a United Methodist church, Sister Kathleen said.

U.N. And Red China Flags To Be Burned

The flags of Communist China and the United Nations will be burned as part of a Reformation Sunday service at the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights Sunday.

According to an announcement from the church, the service will also include "the reading of a proclamation denouncing Richard Nixon, prayers, singing of hymns, special music and the preaching of the Holy Bible."

The announcement attacks the Chinese Communists, President Nixon's China policy and his support of the United Nations and suggests that Chiang Kai-shek's "well trained army be encouraged to invade mainland China."

The 90-minute service will begin at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the church, 303 E. McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Chancel Choir To Be On TV Sunday

The Chancel choir of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights will be the guest choir Sunday on a Chicago television show.

The program, the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, will be broadcast from 6 to 7 p.m. on Channel 11.

The choir will sing three anthems, "Honor and Glory" by J. S. Bach, "The New 23d Psalm" by Carmichael and "Behold Now, Praise the Lord" by Tiltcomb.

Gordon A. Palmer is choir director and Florence Calahan is accompanist.

VFW To Mark Its Golden Anniversary

The public is invited to help the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 981 celebrate its 50th anniversary Sunday afternoon at 811 N. Yale.

After the Chicago Bears football game, which will be televised at the hall, the main attraction of the evening will be organ music by Tom Henrichsen of Palatine and Bob Raatz of Mount Prospect. A buffet dinner will be served from 5 to 8 p.m.

Besides the public celebration Sunday, the 750 members of the VFW and the 200 members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and their guests plan a banquet Saturday night. After a buffet dinner, guests will dance and be entertained by the Bud Nielsen Orchestra.

Bruce J. Hansen, post commander, says it has been a good 50 years. Over eight programs have been implemented during the years, and offer a continuing program of service to the community.

The VFW sponsors the Memorial Day Parade each year, which often includes the VFW 33-man rifle squad. The VFW sponsored Coronets girls drill team, a marching group, finished first in the state and second in the nation this year.

HIGH SCHOOL activities for the local VFW members include donating outdoor display flags and sponsoring the Voice of Democracy writing contest. Awards for the contest include scholarships and government bonds.

"We try to help promote junior activities as much as we can by offering our hall free of charge to junior sporting events and high school events," Hansen said. "We also take part in local little league sports."

In an effort to help other veterans, members of the local post bring gifts, games and clothing to the Downey Veterans Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill., three times a year.

"We do all we can to live up to our motto, 'Honor the dead by helping the living,'" Irvin L. McDougall, past commander, said.

GLO-DEEP STEAM METHOD

MOST EFFECTIVE ON-LOCATION CARPET CLEANING PROCESS EVER DEVELOPED

Soil Extracted NOT SCRUBBED INTO FABRIC...

You will be amazed at the amount of soil and residue extracted from your carpets. Soil and grime — smog and fumes can greatly damage fabrics, sometimes beyond the rescue of cleaning. However, carpets will last longer and look better when thoroughly clean with the Deep Extraction Process.

A controlled jet of steam penetrates deep into fabric — soil and residue are suspended and in the same operation, instantly extracted. Deep Steam Extraction is probably the most thorough process ever developed for cleaning carpets, yet it is gentle to the fabric.

Woodfield Park Layout Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield area shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall site in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center now under construction. A Jewel Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated. From Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

velopment is a proposed multi-family residential complex to include 2,500 units of apartments, townhouses or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

Moving back left, fronting Meacham Road, a sports complex with a possible sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams, but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

Woodfield Park, as visualized by an artist. Golf Road, the north boundary, is at the bottom.

'It Was A Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted, and the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man standing 20 feet away at the time described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

'You see a shotgun go off, pow there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like, only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger.'

I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay.

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced quickly split out the front door.

Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they were in the front office,' he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed.

One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second and third degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwestern Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon O. Hale Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst York Road the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

'GET BACK FOLKS, the building is full of every flammable chemical there is, there might be more explosions, we haven't got it under control yet,' warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulet, to those who strayed too close.

Work On New City Hall Could Start In May: Szabo

Construction of a $1.6 million Des Plaines city hall-office building may begin in May, according to Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st), who heads the city council committee studying plans for the proposed eight-story building in downtown Des Plaines.

Szabo yesterday said ground could be broken for the building next spring and construction could be completed by early 1973, if the council approves plans for the building this January and revenue bonds are sold.

The city council heard plans in early September for combined public and private condominium ownership of a city hall building. Under the proposal, the city would own three or four floors, and the rest of the eight story building would be owned by a private developer who would lease out office space.

Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation for the park district, yesterday said he will discuss possible purchase of office space in the new building with the city committee during the next few weeks.

THE PRESENT headquarters at 748 Pearson St. is scheduled to be torn down to make way for downtown redevelopment. This headquarters has office space for nine staff members who administer programs and activities at 32 city parks, Kunkel said.

The public-private building plan was developed by Holmes and Fox, a Des Plaines architectural firm, and Smith-Pippen, an Arlington Heights real estate company, which would handle renting of the noncity office space.

Owners would pay real estate taxes on the privately owned portion of the building, with the floors owned by the city remaining off the tax rolls.

The city council had balked at a previous Holmes and Fox plan that would have provided for an entirely city owned office high-rise, because some city officials felt that this would hamper private office-building construction in the downtown area.

City officials have been studying construction of a new city hall for the past four years to combine scattered city offices and to increase administrative efficiency.

City offices are now in the municipal building, 1412 Miner, and in rented offices at 1426 Miner, 1454 Miner, and 1585 Ellinwood St.

THE PROPOSED structure would be located on city property at 1420-1424 Miner, site of the present main fire station and a parking lot fronting on Miner. A new fire station to replace the present downtown fire station is now being constructed on Des Plaines River Road.

A parking bond sale, planned for January, would include $160,000 in bond funds to create a two-tier lot for 146 cars on city-owned land at the site of the proposed new city hall.

Szabo said that the city's share of the less than $2 million for the new building, would be about 42 per cent. Revenue bonds sold to banks to finance the city share of the building costs would be repaid over a 20 year period, at a fixed interest rate, and a special tax on residents would not be necessary, Szabo said.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel is now negotiating with area banks about purchase of the bonds "at a favorable interest rate to stimulate downtown redevelopment," Szabo said.

Other plans for downtown office construction, being prepared by the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn., include two multi-story office buildings on both ends of a proposed $20 million shopping mall, facing Ellinwood Street, between Lee and Pearson streets.

A 12-story transportation center-office building has also been proposed for private development over the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks, between Lee and Pearson, according to redevelopment officials.

He said his committee has met several times in the last few months to discuss the building, and it will present recommendations for council action in early 1972.

$1 Million Fire Rips Area Plant

by TOM JACHIMIEC

An explosion and fire whipped by 27-mile-an-hour winds yesterday morning destroyed a 13,000-square-foot building near Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road in Elk Grove Village.

Damage to the one-story structure, Specialty Coatings Co., 2500 Delta Ln., was estimated at "at least $1 million" by Seymour Neems, president of the firm, which blends industrial enamels.

More than 100 firemen from at least 12 suburbs and a Chicago Fire Department helicopter responded to the call in the O'Hare Devon Industrial Park near O'Hare Airport.

One man was seriously injured and two more were treated for injuries and released from the O'Hare Medical Clinic in Elk Grove Township.

Jacob Lee, of Chicago, a worker, was in serious condition with second- and third-degree burns on his back, face, and hands at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The exact cause of the explosion was not determined, though Neems said it may have been caused by static electricity.

"IT BLEW like the end of a shotgun," said William Dorsey, 29, of Chicago, one of the two workers who was slightly injured when he was thrown by the force of the explosion.

Dorsey was one of five workers who were near a 3,000-gallon holding tank used to blend enamels when the explosion occurred. He suffered a bruised shoulder.

Cleo Williams, 27, of Chicago, the other man injured, suffered a bump on the head and a bruised leg when he was thrown in the blast.

"It was just a ball of fire," said William Hoffman, another worker in the area.

Twelve persons were in the plant when the explosion occurred. It blew out the building's north wall and triggered a series of other smaller explosions that

(Please turn to section 2, page 4)

FIREMEN USED foam in an attempt to quell the blaze which also caused $20,000 damage to a vacant building to the north.

A YOUTHFUL shutterbug caught all the action Tuesday from atop the goalpost at the cross country qualifier at Maine West High School in Des Plaines. For results, see Sports.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally asked Congress for a year's extension of President Nixon's "admittedly broad and sweeping power" over the economy and predicted that post-freeze controls probably would end by December, 1972. "I know of no one who believes that the goals of Phase II could be reached by April 30, 1972, the expiration date of the current authority," Connally told the House Banking Committee.

President Nixon was "shocked and dismayed" by the "undisguised glee" of United Nations delegates after the vote on the ouster of Taiwan, the White House said. A spokesman suggested the U.S. might be forced to reduce its support for the U.N. and for foreign aid.

White House advisor Henry A. Kissinger said President Nixon will journey to Peking early next year and provide "an opportunity to make a new beginning" in relations with mainland China. Kissinger said the date for the trip would be made before Dec. 1.

The State

Governor Ogilvie announced he plans sweeping changes in the executive branch of the state government, among other things paring from more than 100 to 10 the number of agencies reporting directly to the governor. "This would create a true cabinet form of government, and one able to meet the severe tasks of today," Ogilvie said.

An Illinois Bell Telephone executive said his company "cannot continue" to provide the quality and quantity of service the public demands without a $182

million rate increase. George W. Winks, general solicitor, called the company a "victim of inflation" at the first of a series of Illinois Commerce Commission hearings into a requested 15 per cent rate hike.

The Illinois House bogged down and ground to a halt as it tried to consider the first ethics bill to reach the floor this session. Throwing up his hands as amendments and proposed amendments proliferated, the chief sponsor of the House Ethics Commission bill, Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, asked the measure be put over until today.

The World

Israel has told the United States it will take no further part in negotiations to reopen the Suez Canal until it is assured of getting more F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, diplomatic sources said.

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai Fliryubin ended four days of talks with Indian officials in New Delhi and said the Soviet Union was deeply concerned about the tense situation between India and Pakistan.

The War

American air and artillery strikes reached into Laos and Cambodia as military sources reported that U.S. troops in the war zone had dropped below the 200,000 mark for the first time since 1966. U.S. artillerymen fired against targets in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone and Cambodia while B52s and tactical aircraft hit targets in Cambodia and Laos.

A 'First Step' To Aid Heroin Addicts

by VICKI HAMENDE
First of Two Articles
Forest Hospital's Dr. Robert Simon doesn't claim to know a cure for heroin addiction, but he's sure the first step to finding a cure is for an addict to get involved in his own treatment.

At Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, 30 heroin addicts, aged 18 to 40, are "getting involved" through a methadone maintenance program sponsored by the Illinois Department of Mental Health's Drug Abuse Program.

The only one of its kind in the Northwest Suburbs, the program is designed to stop patients from using heroin by giving them regulated doses of methadone, a synthetic narcotic, instead. It also tries to provide them with individual counseling and family and group therapy to help them overcome the problems that led them to heroin.

Methadone was developed by the Germans as a substitute for opium during World War II and was first used for treating heroin addicts in 1944 by two New York doctors. According to their tests on 2,500 methadone maintenance patients, the drug is safe. In small doses, it diminishes a user's craving for heroin and in large doses it blocks the effects of heroin in a drug user.

According to Dr. Simon, director of medical services at Forest and head of the four-month-old methadone maintenance program, methadone is used for treating heroin addicts because it is inexpensive, can be taken orally, eliminates withdrawal symptoms and can be prescribed by a doctor just like any other medicine.

"Any methadone or other drug program should have as its ultimate objective creating a drug-free person," Dr. Simon said. "Methadone without any other form of treatment has limited success in accomplishing this.

"Methadone is only one aspect of the program. If not ideal it is at least necessary to use methadone to gain access to these people," he said.

"When people think about a methadone maintenance idea they usually think in terms of the drugs. What's the advantage of substituting one dependent drug for another? They are making the same mistake many people do about the problem of drug abuse in general. They are concerning themselves with the drug rather than with the people who use it," Dr. Simon said.

"Some heroin addicts cannot be motivated to be treated no matter what you do for them. Some can be completely withdrawn from heroin right away and treated. But there is another segment of the population that has to remain dependent while being treated. What do you do with these people? They're not ready to get off heroin completely but they're ready to try," he said.

"Our general philosophy here is that the use of drugs is symptomatic of an uncomfortable individual, one who has problems which preceded his use of drugs. If we can help resolve his discomfort or his problems, often times the drug will take care of itself," Dr. Simon said.

"The treatment is not methadone. Even though methadone is better for them than heroin for many reasons, it is still only the means for getting people involved in their own treatment," he said.

THE 30 PARTICIPANTS in the Forest program came from other programs, the Illinois Department of Mental Health or on their own, Dr. Simon said.

State approval was required for each of them to begin the methadone treatment. They had to be at least 18 years old, a heroin user for a minimum of one year and have been unsuccessful in their own attempt to withdraw from it. In addition, they had to undergo a complete physical examination and laboratory evaluation.

Once a day the 30 addicts come to Forest to receive their dose of methadone, which is crushed, dissolved in warm water and then mixed with orange juice. Once a day they are also required to leave urine samples at the hospital so that Forest officials can make sure they are staying off heroin.

The addicts must attend two group therapy sessions a week, where they meet with other addicts and hospital officials to talk about problems, jobs, adjustments.

They must also attend two family therapy sessions a month, where they meet with their families and other addicts and members of their families to talk about common problems.

The methadone maintenance clinic, located in a white "schoolhouse" building on the Forest grounds, also is open to the addicts any time they want to come talk to Dr. Simon, his chief counselor Mary Renn, a registered nurse as well as three drug therapists who are former heroin addicts.

"The therapy and conversation is directed to why and how they feel, what they do, why they do it, how people react to them. None of it is directed toward drugs. If we talk about drugs, nothing happens," Dr. Simon said.

THE HOSPITAL is operating the program at a loss, he said. Although the state pays $15 a week per patient and provides the methadone, Dr. Simon said that it is not enough to cover the costs of the use of facilities and staff for treating the 30 addicts.

It's still too early to evaluate the success of the Forest program in getting addicts off heroin, he said. Since July, many of the addicts have been receiving gradually decreasing methadone doses. Others have drifted back to heroin but continued in the program with support from the hospital and their peers. Two of them have spent time in jail, he said.

"What we do depends on the needs of the person. They are always welcome to ask for a smaller or large dose. We encourage them to. This could go on for years. Methadone has been proven safe for short-term treatment. For long-term treatment, although it is still considered experimental, it has proven safe for as long as seven or eight years since it was first used in 1944," Dr. Simon said.

"Whatever the nature of their problems, whatever their potential for getting into a destructive habit—my philosophy is that I will not tolerate this behavior because of what it does to them. I will not tolerate heroin and what it does to them," Dr. Simon said.

"The over-all attitude we try to relay to them is that there has to be a better way of doing things than using drugs. They have to deal strictly with behavior. Drugs aren't helping them, that they must realize," he said.

"We expect them to be free of any drug misuse and illegal activity. We expect them to gainfully use their time," said Dr. Simon.

"We expect them to adhere to the basic rules and regulations," he added, referring to a motto used in the treatment program that says, "No urine, no dope (methadone). No group, no dope."

"And we encourage the families to have similar expectations. It's important that the families are involved in treatment, that the addicts can realize how they are affecting others," he said.

"Every week they fill out a questionnaire that goes into long detail about what they did the week before. If we notice that they are not living up to our expectations, we have found group pressure as the best means for getting them to conform. When they are 'cheating' on the program, the others can make it unpleasant for them," Dr. Simon said.

DR. SIMON SPOKE about a two-week period this summer when urine samples revealed that many of the participants in the program were using heroin once in awhile. When he made a disciplinary move to approach these addicts, other addicts protested.

"So I let them set up their own regulations for dealing with this kind of thing. But they were unrealistic. They gave some people permission to go out and get high for old times sake. Their rules were ineffective so I stepped back in and said this is the way it's going to be," Dr. Simon said.

"Whenever there is a figure of authority it is natural for those on the program to join together in opposition to that figure. It's not right to tell on your friends. It's their world sometimes, them against us," he said.

"Our ultimate objective is to have them assume responsibility for each other — for not only what they do here but what they do at other times. We're aiming for a people to people relationship. The drug is not the problem. The problem came before the drug. What is the problem? What is the situation now?" Dr. Simon said.

"Methadone is our means of getting people involved in their own treatment, getting them to answer these questions. The drug is merely a means of breaking a pattern of behavior, of breaking the cycle where they forever bounce back from getting high and getting sick from withdrawal . . . getting them to look beyond tomorrow.

"We try to help stabilize them through methadone at first and then through counseling. Methadone keeps them coming back," Dr. Simon said.

Tomorrow: The Forest Hospital Methadone Maintenance Program through the eyes of a 21-year-old Des Plaines heroin addict.

Jonas J. Samson

Private funeral services for Jonas J. Samson, 72, of 935 W. Grant, Des Plaines, will be held today in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry Streets, Des Plaines. The Rev. Mark G. Bergman of Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, will officiate.

Mr. Samson, a long-time resident of Des Plaines, died Tuesday in his home. He was born Nov. 20, 1898, in North Dakota.

Surviving are his widow, Vera G.; two daughters, Mrs. Betty M. (Jack) McMorrow of Weston, Conn., and Mrs. Joan (Robert) Englis of Berea, Ohio; four grandchildren; and three sisters, Mrs. Freda Sigurdson, Mrs. Betty Sammons and Aurora Samson, all of Winnipeg, Ontario, Canada.

Eleanor

Boeckenhauer

Mrs. Eleanor C. Boeckenhauer, 58, nee Lucke, of 1434 Perry St., Des Plaines, a resident for 32 years, died Tuesday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was born Oct. 18, 1913, in Chicago.

Visitation is today from 3 to 10 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry Streets, Des Plaines. The body will lie in state tomorrow in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Lee and Thacker streets, Des Plaines, from noon until time of funeral services at 1 p.m.

The Rev. Allen H. Fedder will officiate. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are her husband, Wilbert; one son, Robert Boeckenhauer of Des Plaines; a daughter, Mrs. Dolores (William) Lanham of Lake Villa; six grandchildren, and her father, Herman Lucke of Des Plaines.

Contributions may be made to Immanuel Lutheran Church, Des Plaines.

Every field has its professional terms or "buzz words" and the people within the field derive great enjoyment from using them. Buzz words are a necessary evil. They're valuable when two professionals are discussing technical areas of their field; they can be a problem when they fall into the vocabulary of "common man."

Good old "common man" has a habit of using one buzz word and meaning another. He may even have a good idea what the buzz word means and then applies it when talking about something similar to it.

Beginning to wonder what I'm talking about? Let me spell it out: s-e-n-s-i-t-i-v-i-t-y t-r-a-i-n-i-n-g.

I would bet that not one out of every 50 people who use the words sensitivity training really knows what it is or has ever taken part in it. There seems to be some kind of anti-sensitivity training movement going on in this country which is based on the attackers' belief that it is destroying our morals.

I WON'T EVEN begin to debate the benefits or detriments of either sensitivity training or morals. But I do have some pretty strong opinions on the ignorance being shown by some of the attackers.

Everything psychological is being branded as sensitivity training. Recently Forest Hospital has been accused of putting on sensitivity programs for Maine South High School Adult Education (a series of four) and in their public programs at the hospital. Someone should have done a bit of checking before charging.

Ask Dr. Robert Willford, director of the Forest Postgraduate Center, who creates the majority of the programs. I did Tuesday night "This (the public lecture series) is not sensitivity and neither is that (the Maine South series). I'll be glad to explain the difference — just have them call me," he said with a combination of exasperation and encounter.

SO JUST WHAT are they doing? It

Airport Noise Complaint

Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen is scheduled to rule today on defense motions to dismiss a suit by five suburbs seeking to block further expansion of O'Hare Airport.

The five suburbs filed suit last year against the City of Chicago and 23 airlines using O'Hare, contending that further airport growth without new methods of reducing aircraft noise will create an intolerable nuisance.

The suburbs, Park Ridge, Bensenville, Schiller Park, Elmhurst and Glenview, have asked Judge Cohen to issue an injunction against further runway construction and the opening of a new southwest-northwest runway now being built.

The announcement of the expected ruling was made yesterday by an aide to Judge Cohen.

The suit, originally filed in DuPage County and later transferred to the Cook County Circuit Court, has been delayed by lengthy briefs submitted by both sides.

falls under the general categories of encounter and self-awareness. Now that you've heard the buzz words, forget them.

I've been at the majority of the lecture/participation sessions at Forest since they began a year and a half ago. They are not frightening. They are not subversive. They are not designed to turn out decadents or Communists.

They are fun. They are learning experiences. They are valuable to the people attending them.

In a nutshell, you spend about three hours, once a week finding out about yourself and what makes you tick, about others and what makes them tick, about what others think of you and what you think of others. You learn the ability to say what you feel and ask about what others feel. You learn to trust and be honest. You learn.

PROBABLY THE best recommendation I can give for the Forest programs is that people keep coming back. Tuesday night I saw people there from last year, people who had traveled all the way from the far south side of Chicago, old people, young people, local people — just lots of people. Most of them were there last week and most of them will return next week.

I get furious when someone puts down something he knows nothing about. To those attackers, I say come out, experience what is happening — then we'll talk.

Vanguard Junior Corps Announced

The Des Plaines Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps has announced that it has formed a junior drum and bugle corps for youngsters nine to 13-years-old from the Northwest suburban area.

The new group, to be called the Vanguard Cadets, will train and instruct younger boys and girls in marching, maneuvering and playing drums and bugles.

The cadets will meet at 10 a.m. every Saturday morning at Vanguard Hall, 50 W. Oakton St., Des Plaines. For additional information, persons interested are asked to call 827-4383 or 824-5448.

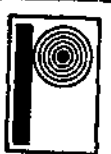

Church Youths Sponsors Work Day

The junior and senior high youth groups of Des Plaines' First Congregational Church will sponsor a "Work Day" Saturday for any interested Des Plaines residents.

For a $1 per hour fee, any of the 50 youths will offer their services to do odd jobs such as raking leaves, cleaning yards, washing windows, painting or waxing cars. The money earned will be used for church youth group activities.

Reservations for jobs and times may be made by calling Greg Morgan, youth director, at 299-5561.

New Woodfield Complex Layout Is Revealed

General proposals for J. Emil Anderson & Sons' planned $300 million commercial development south and west of Woodfield Mall were officially announced yesterday at an open house in the firm's newly built Des Plaines office building.

Few details of the development could be told because negotiations, financing and studies still are pending, said A. Harold Anderson, president of the firm, and his associates. However, artists' representations of the proposal were on display and some facts on possible inclusions for the 400-acre project were presented.

An artist's conception of the Woodfield area shows the 191-acre Woodfield Mall site, in the northeast corner of the 600-acre site, in the lower left. Directly east of the existing shopping center is the proposed Woodfield Plaza, to contain three 8-story office buildings and a drive-in branch of Woodfield Bank.

Continuing right across Meacham Road is the Woodfield Commons shopping center, now under construction. A Jewel-Turn Style store in the commons is to open within two or three weeks. Other stores in the center are being negotiated. From Woodfield Commons to Plum Grove Road at the far right, extensive retail development is proposed. To be included are at least two furniture stores, although there might be as many as four.

DIRECTLY ABOVE the retail store development is a proposed multi-family residential complex, to include 2,500 units of apartment, townhouse or condominiums. While the specific mix of the units has not been determined, Anderson said they would be at least 85 per cent rental. The units are to be arranged around a 20-acre lake.

sports stadium is proposed. It is to contain an ice hockey rink, a swimming pool, saunas and may have such facilities as handball courts and health clubs. The stadium could host professional athletic teams, but is not expected to be of major proportions, such as might be required for Chicago football or hockey teams.

Directly southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Woodfield Roads, in the center of the picture, a fashion sales complex of high quality stores is proposed. Negotiations now are proceeding with at least two major retail firms for development of the fashion complex, but no further word on specific stores could be given. As many as 100 other stores might be included.

UNION CAMP CORP., whose Midwest regional headquarters is located in Des Plaines, has reported record sales for the third quarter and the first nine months of 1971 but a decline in net earnings for both periods.

For the third quarter, Union Camp's sales rose 18 per cent and totaled $135,756,000 compared to $114,722,000 in the 1970 period. Net income was $6,000,000, or 50 cents per share versus $7,403,000 or 50 cents per share a year ago. About 8 cents of the 10 cents reduction was due to higher taxes — primarily lower investment tax credit, the company said.

Results for the nine months showed sales of $390,941,000 compared to $349,529,000 in the same period last year. Net income was $19,712,000 or $1.31 per share compared with $23,683,000 or $1.58 per share a year earlier.

Union Camp president Alexander Calder Jr. said in a statement that the reduction in the company's investment tax credit accounted for nearly three quarters of the 27 cents-per share drop in net earnings for the nine-month period. Pre-tax earnings, which in the first quarter were seven per cent below the year before, improved to within five per cent of last year in the second and third quarters, he pointed out.

Commenting on the effects of the wage-price freeze on third quarter earnings, Calder said "Just prior to the freeze, the company had negotiated several new contracts at its mills in Savannah, Ga., and Franklin, Va., calling for a 10 per cent increase in the wages of the majority of employees at these locations."

"These settlements, combined with increases in fuel and freight costs, aggravated the cost-price pinch and further narrowed profit margins. Though our industry sorely needs price relief to offset the rising costs of the past few years, we support President Nixon's efforts to control inflation," he said.

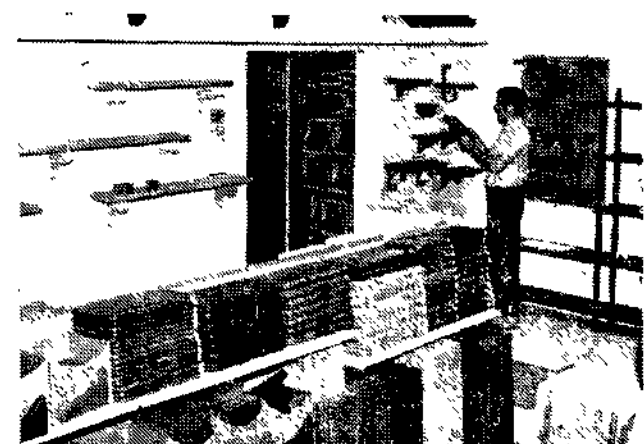

Calder also said that the company's September sales of corrugated boxes were eight per cent above September, 1970.

"The demand for corrugated boxes is a key barometer of economic turnaround," he explained. "It reflects renewed consumer buying which would appear to indicate that the President's program is beginning to take effect. Union Camp should benefit accordingly because linerboard and corrugated boxes are major income producers in the company's diversified operations."

CLAYTON SONDAG, president and owner of Sondag Datsun, Inc. has announced that grand opening ceremonies are currently being scheduled to open the new Datsun dealership.

Located at 740 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge, Sondag Datsun occupies a former domestic-car dealership. Features of the $100,000 remodeled facility include an eight-car showroom, service department with 14 stalls and six lifts, and a complete stock of Datsun parts and accessories in the 2,000-square-foot parts area. The dealership has room for 40 new Datsuns to be displayed outdoors along with a special 50-car used car area — all on Sondag Datsun's two-acre location.

Under the supervision of general sales manager John Voss and service parts manager John Riengruber, Sondag Datsun employs 16 persons with six in sales and eight in the service shop.

Arca Teams Sparkle In District Cross Country; East Claims Title

The first test is over. Now comes a bigger hurdle — the sectional.

The Crystal Lake cross country sectional will be the next stop for seven Herald area schools that qualified in two district runoffs Tuesday.

Palatine and Fremd led qualifiers at the Fremd district at the Union 76 Oil grounds in Schaumburg, staging a close finish before Palatine finally won by four points. Schaumburg, from the same district, also earned a ticket to Crystal Lake by finishing fifth. Others were Crystal Lake, third and McHenry, fourth — both well behind Palatine and Fremd.

Top individual qualifier on the flat three mile course on the windy day was Gary Mandel of Antioch with a 15:25.8 winning time. Following were Brian Barnett of Palatine with 15:27 and Mark Nugent of Fremd with 15:43. Arnold Jackson of Schaumburg, only a sophomore, was just two seconds behind Nugent.

From fifth through 10th, in order, were Bill Santino of Crystal Lake, Jamie Olson of Fremd, Bill Gross of Fremd, Rich Flynn of Cary Grove, John Dieckrich of McHenry and Fred Miller of Palatine.

Others helping the winning cause of the Pirates were regulars Mark Johnson (11th), Steve Peterson (12th), Paul Kearns (14th), Dave Tehle (32nd) and Scott Williams (34th).

Fremd had Steve Inbody (16th), Ken Geheb (21st), Chuck Ruppenthal (24th) and Mike Rohrer (28th).

The sectional will be run not at Barrington as had been originally planned but at Crystal Lake's Veteran Acres Park on Route 176 at 11 a.m. Saturday. Members of the top three teams plus the top 10 individuals will qualify for the state meet at Peoria the following Saturday, Nov. 6.

Palatine, coming on amazingly strong late in the season, notched its third win within a week over Fremd, which until this year perennially dominated area cross country. The Pirates beat the Vikings in the biggest dual of the season just a week before and followed that with the Mid-Suburban League meet victory Saturday. Nugent was the individual winner in that one but Barnett avenged that victory Tuesday.

"Kearns ran the big race for us today to give us the lift we needed," said Palatine coach Joe Johnson. "And Barnett has been sick with a cold so he ran with a lot of courage."

"If any one of our guys has a lot of trouble, the others pick up the slack. That's the way it's been for us the last few meets."

"Fremd came on real strong today, especially Olson and Gross. They'll be tough in the sectional because they run real well on hills like there are at Crystal Lake."

Fremd coach Ron Menely agreed, saying, "I think the hilly course at Crystal Lake will be to our benefit. Our boys enjoy hilly courses and run best on them. They know how to attack a hill. All of the base mileage they run in the summer helps here."

"I think we have as good a chance as anybody to get downstate if everybody comes through in the sectional. We made a big improvement in the district and I was much more pleased."

Headed by defending state champion Maine East, five area teams qualified for the sectional meet this Saturday by taking the top five places in the Maine West District cross country meet.

Along with the top five teams from the district, the top 10 individual winners also qualified for the sectional. All but three of the top 10 harriers, however, came from the first five teams in the Maine West District.

Rick Runtz of Notre Dame was the district's individual champion and he was followed into the chute by teammate Gary Les.

Maine East's winning total was 60 points and Notre Dame took second with 100. Host Maine West was third with 120. Elk Grove fourth with 130 and Forest View fifth with 131. These five will attempt to qualify for the state meet in Peoria by finishing in the top three at the Barrington Sectional.

Maine South was sixth with 132, Evanston seventh with 153, Hersey eighth with 159, Arlington ninth with 201, Maine North 10th with 230, Niles North 11th with 304, St. Viator 12th with 312, Niles West 13th with 333, Niles East 14th with 432 and Rolling Meadows 15th with 445.

Joining the Maine West District qualifiers will be the Fremd District qualifiers Palatine, Fremd, Crystal Lake, McHenry and Schaumburg and the Warren District qualifiers New Trier West, Zion-Benton, Glenbrook North, New Trier East and Deerfield.

At Striking Lanes

The Vikings are leading all 16 teams in the Surrey Ridge Complex Bowling league at Striking Lanes, with the Rams and Browns following close behind in that order. The Vikings members are Georgia and John Line and Ken and Shirley Hatfield. Last week June Brinkman led the women with a 203 game and Jack Ahr paced the men with a 529 series (184 high game). Bob Crawford has the leading men's average with 178, followed by Bart Calabrese and Jim Nugent with 165. Sheila Fosha leads the ladies with a 162 average, Gail Passant has 160 and June Brinkman 152.

STRIDING WISELY. Forest View's Jim Wise (685) zeroes in on Maine East's Mike Seifert and Evanston's Larry Bates in Tuesday's State District cross country meet. The Demons won the meet, but Forest View and Elk Grove both qualified their entire teams by finishing fifth and fourth, respectively. Wise landed 10th individually in 15:45. (Photo by Tom Grieger)

Who's No. 1? Herald Ranking Likes St. Rita

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

The top half of the Chicagoland area ratings had little change but the ratings 11th through 20th were drastically changed due to upsets and head-to-head confrontations among rated clubs.

Thornridge, which was ranked 10th last week, lost a 14-8 thriller to sixth ranked Eisenhower and dropped to 14th.

Glenbard East, rated 11th a week ago, lost its crucial battle with powerful East Leyden, 30-12, and fell to 15th.

Marist barely struggled past St. Patrick 7-0 and fell from 13th to 17th. Sandburg, ranked 16th last week, lost to Reavis 25-23 and was left out of this week's rankings. Downers Grove North, rated 18th a week ago, was upset by Proviso West 33-14 and was dropped from the top 20.

Marian Catholic, ranked 19th last week, was caught in a 6-6 tie with Joliet Catholic and was also left out of the ratings.

St. Rita remained No. 1 with an easy 32-6 victory over Brother Rice. Evanston coasted past New Trier East 30-0 and stayed No. 2.

With its win over Glenbard East, East Leyden moved up one notch to third while Gordon Tech, idle this past week-end, dropped one notch to fourth.

The positions fifth through ninth remained unchanged as Hinsdale Central bombed York 64-0, Eisenhower defeated Thornridge, Glenbard West whipped LaGrange 25-8, Homewood-Flossmoor crushed Oak Lawn 36-6 and Loyola pounded Mount Carmel 33-8.

Holy Cross moved up to 10th place from 12th with a 21-0 shutout over Notre Dame. Niles West blanked Niles North 28-0 and went from 14th to 11th. Wheeling, a 35-6 winner over New Trier West, advanced from 17th to 12th.

Glenbrook North trimmed Glenbrook South 12-7 and moved from 15th to 13th. St. Viator remained on top of the Suburban Catholic Conference with a 28-7 victory over St. Joseph and is ranked 16th, up four notches from last week.

Barrington and Ridgewood continued unbeaten streaks and entered the top 20 for the first time in 18th and 19th positions, respectively. Bloom returned to the top 20 after a week's absence with a 44-14 win over Richards.

In the Herald Area ratings, Wheeling remained No. 1 and St. Viator No. 2. Hersey moved from fourth to third with a 14-0 victory over Fremd while Arlington, ranked third last week, fell to seventh as a result of a 7-6 loss to Palatine.

Elk Grove moved up one spot to fourth as the Grenadiers blanked Conant 35-0 and Forest View whipped Prospect 49-18 to move from seventh to fifth. Despite losing a 33-30 heartbreaker to Maine South, Maine North remained in the sixth position.

Palatine moved up one spot to eighth. Notre Dame fell one spot to ninth and Prospect remained 10th.

They Take Their Lives To Incentives

by DOROTHY OLIVER

You're a housewife who can't cope. The grocery store is a threat. Keeping up the house becomes a monumental problem. You can't tolerate the kids' communicate with your husband or even chat with the neighbors. You're a teen who can't relate. You've replaced reality with drugs. There are parents on your back, school pressures, social pressures and peer pressures. You're old and confused. You're a burden to those you love. It's hard to remember what just happened but memories of years past are clear and constant. You're waiting to die — but not sure you really want to.

People with problems — problems that disrupt the home and interfere with relationships

"THE MENTALLY ILL bring their life to you and you educate them so they can function happily. This is the cornerstone of all our programs," said Dr. Jeanine Gavin, executive director of Incentives, Inc., a private mental health facility on the far east side of Des Plaines. "This is a therapeutic community. We try to help someone relearn in a setting as similar as possible to what they really will face in the outside world."

Incentives operates out of a large, comfortable residence at 2424 Dempster. Twelve in-patients, from the elderly to the middle-aged to the young teen, interact, assume responsibilities and are treated in this family setting. Numerous out-patients come and go throughout the day for social activities, discussion and therapy.

"THIS IS A HOME, not a sterile hospital ward," Dr. Gavin said. "Our patients go through situations that parallel the problems they've had at home. They deal with an age range at home — they have to deal with an age range here."

Designing the programs at Incentives and overseeing methods of treatment is Dr. Gavin's job. She holds a Ph.D. in both sociology and psychology, has an extensive background in psychiatry and research, and was recently chosen one of the Two-Thousand Women of Distinction by the organization of the same name, headquartered in Dartmouth, England.

"I decided in first grade to be a psychologist," she said. "While studying psychology I was overwhelmed with the individuality of persons. Then in sociology I began to learn the sameness of people in cultures. It becomes striking how much people are similar and how much you can predict what they are going to do.

"WE TAKE THAT TACK with many of the programs we have here," she continued. "The patients are very much like other people. They may not fear the same things but they know fear. They may not get angry at the same things but they know anger. The geriatric can relate to the 16-year-old because they know the same feelings."

Incentives is an idea, according to Dr. Gavin, and it was her idea. At one point in her career she was able to see her hospital patients in a social situation at a cottage tea. "Seeing social pressures at work was such an insight. There is a lot to be said for group social pressure. The patient who doesn't care in their hospital ward will try to use good manners, dress nicely, etc., at a tea."

"I tried to discover how to manipulate the social pressure and use it to help them. I've based Incentives on social principles that work. We offer what is not available at a hospital but are in no way competing. We are an idea."

THE "IDEA" CONSISTS of comfortable, brightly colored, three-bed bedrooms, a spacious sparkling kitchen where patients are able to prepare their own meals, a dining area, a living room with overstuffed furniture, a television and game tables, a finished basement with a pingpong table, recreational facilities and conference rooms, and a large back porch, which is the site of summer barbecues and peaceful relaxation. The property is well maintained with flower beds, lawn areas and a private swimming pool.

The programs are innovative and constantly expanding. Dr. Gavin's personal philosophy of treating the mentally ill is evident.

"Systems can be conditioned by changing the chemical structure but I'm not for this system. I'm interested in the alternatives. Human beings can be changed without drugs. This is a psychological center."

INCENTIVES WAS a methadone treatment center until last spring when the state of Illinois decided not to renew its license to provide the drug for heroin addicts. Dr. Gavin instituted an experimental program using a substitute for methadone for the addicts remaining at Incentives.

"We are using a non-addictive drug to help them with some withdrawal symptoms (Methadone is addictive). When someone is ready to get off, they have been able to with the drug we are using. If they begin taking drugs again, they experience pain and we know what they are doing. It's a bad trip — a type of negative conditioning — and it's worked."

Another program she has instituted gives patients a project they must work on together. They make a video tape, working through communication to express their feelings and their thoughts to an audience. They write the script, make the props, create the music, fight through their differences, film the program and wind up with a 15-minute finished product. At the same time they are dealing with the personalities and feelings of others — the life parallel in the therapy.

DR. GAVIN HAS designed a new program for Incentives and is ready to initiate it. The program is for housewives — everyday, ordinary women in the community.

"We know there are thousands of women having kaffee klatsches, sitting with people they can trust, sharing the problems of their marriage, their affairs, their fears, etc. The afternoon coffee, however, can perpetuate some problems. There is no one to turn to and say 'I hate my child. The others will turn on her in anger and disgust. There is no one to tell her that this feeling is normal and natural. Sometimes the kaffee klatsch can make a woman feel abnormal or sick.'"

"Our program would use the kaffee klatsch idea, only a professional would be available to make the conversation usable rather than abnormal."

"THERE ARE WHOLE segments of the population with similar situations and similar problems. They would benefit from sitting around a dining room table with a professional and sharing their thoughts. The Vietnam wife has her special problems as does the housewife the single woman, etc."

Whatever the problem, Dr. Gavin and her professional staff of psychiatrists, social workers, nurses, therapists, specialists and counselors seek to provide the services to meet a patient's needs.

"We offer the same range of services as any mental health clinic, but we are designed to develop programs and services around the needs of the people who come here," Dr. Gavin said. "The world doesn't work the same as a scheduled program. You have to let it happen."

SITTING AROUND A kitchen table a group of patients at Incentives, Inc., 2424 Dempster, Des Plaines, discuss their problems, their fears and their world with a therapist. Incentive patients range in age from over 65 to the young teen and face a home situation, similar to the one they came from, during their treatment.

At the same time they are dealing with the personalities and feelings of others — the life parallel in the therapy.

DR. GAVIN HAS designed a new program for Incentives and is ready to initiate it. The program is for housewives — everyday, ordinary women in the community.

"We know there are thousands of women having kaffee klatsches, sitting with people they can trust, sharing the problems of their marriage, their affairs, their fears, etc. The afternoon coffee, however, can perpetuate some problems. There is no one to turn to and say 'I hate my child.' The others will turn on her in anger and disgust. There is no one to tell her that this feeling is normal and natural. Sometimes the kaffee klatsch can make a woman feel abnormal or sick."

"Our program would use the kaffee klatsch idea, only a professional would be available to make the conversation usable rather than abnormal."

"THERE ARE WHOLE segments of the population with similar situations and similar problems. They would benefit from sitting around a dining room table with a professional and sharing their thoughts. The Vietnam wife has her special problems, as does the housewife, the single woman, etc."

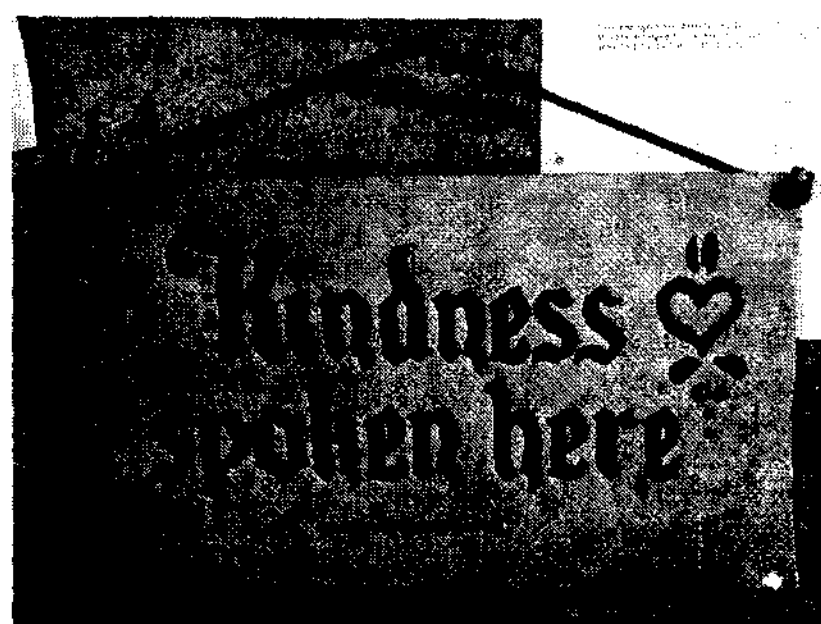

Whatever the problem, Dr. Gavin and her professional staff of psychiatrists, social workers, nurses, therapists, specialists and counselors seek to provide the services to meet a patient's needs.

"We offer the same range of services as any mental health clinic, but we are designed to develop programs and services around the needs of the people who come here," Dr. Gavin said. "The world doesn't work the same as a scheduled program. You have to let it happen."

SITTING AROUND A kitchen table a group of patients at Incentives, Inc., 2424 Dempster, Des Plaines, discuss their problems, their fears and their world with a therapist. Incentive patients range in age from over 65 to the young teen and face a home situation, similar to the one they came from, during their treatment.

cursed the roof to collapse. The brick building contained 400 55-gallon drums of enamel, most of which went up in the blaze, according to the firm's president.

Firemen washed down an area north of the building, protecting 13 3,000-gallon underground tanks containing solvents.

FIREMEN battled the blaze for more than two hours before it was under control. Use of diluted chemical foam proved ineffective.

"No matter what you do you live in fear of that everyday," said Neems, speaking of the static electricity that may have caused the explosion.

"All precautions had been taken at the building," he said, adding that the structure was "explosion-proof." Everything was grounded, he said.

"You live in fear of this all the time," he repeated.

Neems was outside the building when the first explosion occurred. He was returning from a business call when he heard the blast.

State Trooper Ted Kochajkiewicz, who was among the first on the scene, said flames were shooting out 150 feet.

"PEOPLE WERE running around all over," he said. "There was just mass confusion."

He said firemen got to the scene within minutes. However, John Foster, the firm's vice president, said it took 25 minutes before fire engines arrived.

The Elk Grove Fire Department reported it received the call at 9:55 and that Fire Chief Allen Hulett and one engine were at the scene four minutes later.

Hulett said he called for help from other communities while en route to the fire.

Neems said the amount of time it took firemen to get to the scene "was not a big issue" because of the magnitude of the explosion.

Hospital Geared For Disaster

by WANDALYN RICE

The pillar of black smoke was barely visible on the horizon when the staff of Alexian Brothers Medical Center began preparing for the disaster that never came.

The hospital's disaster plan went into action as soon as word came of the 10 a.m. explosion at Specialty Paint Company. The physical therapy room at the hospital was prepared to receive overflow patients, doctors were called from the floors and placed on alert and everyone waited.

"We can handle the patients on a priority basis and take the most badly injured first," public relations director Robin Leach said. "We're lucky because this early in the morning the doctors are still on their rounds and there are plenty of them in the hospital."

Miss Leach had just arrived back at the hospital from Chicago. Driving on the tollway she had seen the column of smoke and knew it would be a day for action.

"I was coming down the tollway and I was astonished at the reaction of the other drivers to the smoke," she said. "No one paid any attention."

'It Was Like A Big Shotgun Blast'

by BRAD BREKKE

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, things were running smoothly at Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village.

Workers in the plant were busily blending industrial enamel in a large tank.

Then there was a spark. Static electricity, maybe. At least that's what the workers say.

And then all hell broke loose.

It began with an enormous explosion. The blending tank erupted. And the factory went up in a fireball of flames, collapsing the roof.

One man, standing 20 feet away at the time, described it as a shotgun blast, only much larger.

"You see a shotgun go off . . . pow . . . there's a flash of fire from the muzzle and a loud blast. Well, that's what this was like, only the tank was like the muzzle and much larger.

"I was swept away and knocked up against the wall by the concussion. Hurt my shoulder some from being slammed so hard, but I think it'll be okay."

ANOTHER MAN in the plant at the time said when he heard the explosion, he raced lickety-split out the front door.

"Ran so fast I even beat the secretaries out and they were in the front office," he bragged later.

Several secondary explosions followed.

One man, Jacob Lee, suffered serious second- and third-degree burns on his back, face and hands and was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. It was Lee who was standing over the blending tank — the man closest to the chemicals — when the explosion occurred.

The plant employed only 14 people. Other than Lee, no one else was seriously injured.

Soon the Elk Grove Village Fire Department was on the scene with every piece of equipment it could muster. Later, firemen from 11 other suburban fire departments answered the call as the paint factory continued to burn out of control.

A HUNDRED FIREMEN were needed to bring the fire under control. And even then, they couldn't extinguish it. They had to let it burn out.

The building was totally destroyed. Seymour Neems, plant co-owner, said it was valued at $1 million. Specialty Coatings Co. is located at 2500 Delta Ln. in Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park.

Strong winds hampered firemen, who feared the fire would spread to surrounding buildings, although it didn't.

Coal black smoke billowed from the paint factory in huge sheets that cut visibility in the direction of the wind, like a midnight fog in Boston.

Motorists along Devon Avenue and Elmhurst-York Road, the area surrounding the fire, pulled their cars off to the side to watch the spectacle. The fire was visible for miles, as the clouds of smoke drifted and eventually blurred into the gray overcast.

Fire hoses were strewn everywhere, crisscrossing each other like a plateful of Chinese noodles.

Roads into the fire area were blocked off by police.

Fire trucks were pumping water on the blaze from every available hydrant.

"GET BACK FOLKS . . . the building is full of every flammable chemical there is . . . there might be more explosions . . . we haven't got it under control yet," warned Elk Grove Village Fire Chief Allen Hulett, to those who strayed too close.

A snorkel unit attacked the blaze from above while ground fire troops assaulted the flaming building from two sides with water and chemical foam.

Delta Lane was several inches deep in water. Oil and sludge could be seen mixing with the spent firewater as it cleaned and looped its way down the street to the sewers.

Mutual Aid Plan Proved Success

Even before he reached the scene of yesterday's fire at the Specialty Coatings Co. in Elk Grove Village, Allen Hulett, the fire chief there, notified other fire departments that extra help would be needed.

Hulett's call set into motion a pre-arranged plan under which other area fire departments knew immediately what piece of equipment would be needed. Too, they knew immediately whether to send their equipment to the scene of the blaze or to another station for backup service.

Among other things Hulett's call did the following: It brought a ladder truck to the fire from Mount Prospect. It resulted in the Des Plaines Fire Department sending an ambulance to the fire. An ambulance from the Hoffman Estates department was moved to an Elk Grove Village station for backup. A fire truck and ambulance from Schaumburg were sent to the fire.

THE MUTUAL AID plan used yesterday was first put into operation last January. Almost 20 Northwest suburban area departments participate in it.

The plan works like this: Each municipality is divided into several sections and each section has been assigned a specific box alarm number. At each department box alarm numbers are kept in a card file along with information on the location of a fire for each box alarm. Also listed is what equipment each town should send in the event of a fire in the specific box alarm location.

The purpose of the plan is to make it easier and quicker for a fire chief to get any additional fire fighting equipment he needs.

The plan has been used in connection with other fires this year. Only a few weeks ago, area departments held a practice session under the plan at Arlington Park Race Track.

New Teen Center Rules Tighter

Teens will no longer be able to sit and smoke cigarettes in front of Lions Park Recreation Center provided rules set up recently by a teen committee are enforced.

The 16-member committee Tuesday night approved rules governing smoking, loitering and general nuisance for teens using the park district teen center. The teen facility is in the basement of Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St.

Violators of the rules will be restricted in their use of the teen center, Steve Neff, part-time center director, said yesterday. He said teens would work with the on-duty teen center supervisor to enforce the rules.

No loitering will be allowed in the front or side entrances of the building, according to the rules. Instead, teens will be allowed to smoke outside at the rear entrance of the building. The general nuisance rule covers teens using drugs and alcohol, according to Neff. He said such teens would also be asked to leave the center.

THE RULES committee was formed after park officials told teens the center would be closed if teens didn't change their "attitude" with regard to the center. Paul Caldwell told teens to set up rules governing loitering, littering and vandalism.

"The kids decided there really is no way to enforce a no-vandalism rule," Neff said. "They do not feel good about turning names in. But they do feel it is unnecessary and are aware that vandalism will jeopardize the teen center."

Neff said the committee also decided to post a "discipline list" of names of teens who have been expelled from the center. He said the number of days a teen would be barred from the center would depend on "the seriousness of the infraction."

Much of the enforcement of the rules will be informal. "Teens recognized they must do something about it," Neff said. "And feel they can do it by disciplining themselves. I hope they will have the power to tell a kid to stop breaking the rules. They're not there to be policemen, but they are there to enforce behavior rules." Park officials are currently looking into alternative uses for the basement center in case teens don't make changes necessary to keep it open. One activity, floor hockey, has already been scheduled for the center for teens and younger residents.

"That's a fact that we're going to have to work with," Neff said. He said he didn't know how teens would respond to the programming.

OK Administrator Pay Plan

A 1971-72 salary schedule for Dist. 214 administrators has been approved by the school board, subject to the restrictions of the wage freeze.

The approved salary program is a revised form of a proposal submitted to the board two weeks ago. At that time, the board voted to table the proposal after questions arose concerning the effect of the wage freeze on the salary rates.

The program calls for salary increases up to 12 per cent of last year's rates, totaling up to $130,000 in the 1971-72 budget. According to the administrative salary committee, "we agreed to consider and establish individual salaries for the year as though the freeze had not taken place."

"Payment of the established salary would be made in accordance with freeze regulations and interpretations."

The schedule lists: assistant superintendents and principals between $20,000 and $30,000; coordinators, directors, assistant principals and assistants to the superintendent between $16,500 and $26,000; and division heads, department chairmen, directors of student activities, athletic directors and deans between $13,500 and $20,000.

The superintendent's salary has not been set by the board. Supt. Edward Gilbert now earns $33,500.

Revisions in the program concern what salary figure will be used for the basis of the 1972-73 rates if the freeze is not lifted before the school year ends.

Normally, salary increases are added to the salary the administrator received the year before. In its first program, the committee proposed using the 1971-72 contract figure for consideration of 1972-73 salaries, rather than the actual amount received by the administrator in 1971-72.

College Hires Health Experts

The Oakton Community College Board of Trustees has appointed eight experts in the field of health technology, two of them from Des Plaines, to serve on a committee to advise the college in curriculum planning.

Representing Des Plaines will be George Plante, assistant administrator of Holy Family Hospital, and Morris Squire, administrator of Forest Hospital.

Also appointed to the committee were Richard O'Halloran, personnel director of St. Francis Hospital in Evanston; T. L. Jacobsen, executive vice president of Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge; Dr. John McLaren, vice president in charge of patient care at Evanston Hospital; Sister Bonaventure, administrator of Resurrection Hospital in Chicago; Ralph Hutchins, administrator of Skokie Valley Community Hospital; and Don Frey, representative of Health Careers Council in Chicago.

Candidate Will Tour Far East

Samuel H. Young of Glenview, candidate for Congress in the newly drawn 10th Congressional District, has announced he will take a 15-day fact-finding tour of the Far East in preparation for his campaign.

Young recently announced he will seek the Republican nomination for Congress if Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, is not a candidate in the new district. Crane has yet to announce whether he will seek reelection in the 10th district or the 12th, both of which contain part of his present district.

The new 10th district includes Maine Township and four townships now part of the 13th, Evanston, Niles, New Trier and Northfield.

Young said he has scheduled meetings with U.S. officials in Tokyo, Hong Kong and Saigon. He also plans to visit with members of the 101st Airborne Division in South Vietnam.

Young said he hopes to study U. S. trade relations with China and Japan, progress of the South Vietnamese government in establishing independence and morale of U. S. troops, with emphasis on the drug problem.

Young was the runner-up in an eight-man primary election in 1969 in the 13th District. He is a former president of the Illinois Young Republican Organization and former Northfield Township committeeman.
